Hitler Ordering Italy Into War, Berlin Hears; Calls Goebbels for 'Sensational' Declaration; Rearguard Cutting Way to Sea, French Say

President to Ask Second Billion For Emergency Arms Program

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt will ask Congress today to double his billion-dollar emergency defense program to provide additional arms required in the light of German victories in Europe.

He made the announcement as he called his seven-member national defense commission to order in its first meeting and set six months as the goal for gearing the Nation's resources to full production for defense.

Six members of the new commission met in extraordinary session with Cabinet members and Army and Navy chiefs, and with all of the authority of its wartime predecessor began the huge task of quickly translating arms billions into planes, tanks and guns.

The President told his press conference yesterday he would send a message to Congress today proposing an additional billion dollars, more or less, for the Army and Navy, and explained that such a step is necessary because of a very great change in the world situation in the last two and a half weeks.

While the President did not refer directly to the rout of the Allied armies in Flanders, it was evident he had this in mind as the bulk of the funds sought will be to procure the mechanized weapons which made German success possible and new-type guns to oppose such forces.

Spare Canal Locks Voted

Meanwhile, the House reversed itself on another phase of the defense program and voted $15,000,000 in cash and $99,000,000 in contract authorization to start work on a spare set of bomb-proof locks for the Panama Canal.

Earlier in the session, the House had decided to defer the project which will take six years and an estimated $277,000,000 to complete. The Senate has already approved the appropriation, so yesterday's 187 to 141 vote assures a start on the new locks.

U. S. Gets British Patents

Other national defense developments of the day included:

Britain turned over patents on its prize aircraft engine—the famed Rolls-Royce "Merlin," which powers its fastest pursuit ships—to facilitate production of power plants for both Allied and American air fleets.

The Administration bill to raise $656,000,000 in special defense taxes and raise the debt limit by $3,000,000,000, was introduced in the House by Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau will testify today on the details of the measure, which would raise income taxes by 10 per cent and gasoline, cigarette and liquor levies by higher percentages.

Karing to Go

A huge youth training program, designed to provide qualified technicians for the Army, Navy and the munitions industry, was launched by the Administration.

All member of the Defense Commission were said by Mr. Roosevelt to be raring to go. Commission members, ranging from captains of industry and labor to Government officials and a woman university dean, said nothing. They set to work at once on the problem of staffing their separate, dovetailing

First Blow to Defense Plans

Wage Dispute Ties Up Work On 2 Cruisers, 2 Destroyers

Shipyard Union Ignores the Appeals Of Its Leaders in Vote at Kearny, N. J.; Secretary Edison Sees Quick Settlement

The country was confronted last night with its first strike in a "key" industry in the defense program, only a few days after President Roosevelt had voiced confident hope that such difficulties would be averted.

Officials here said quick settlement would be sought of a wage increase dispute scheduled to tie up today the Kearney, N. J., plant of the Federal Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co., where two Navy destroyers and tw ocruisers are under construction.

A White House source said the matter will be taken up immediately with the Maritime Labor Board.

Secretary of the Navy Edison expressed hope that it can be quickly settled.

"We cannot have trouble of this sort in these times," he said.

Kearny, N. J., May 30 (AP).—Union employes of the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co., where two destroyers and two cruisers are under construction for the Navy, voted today to strike at midnight in a move affecting 6,000 workmen.

John Dempsey, national vice president and president of Local 16, Industrial Union of Maritime & Shipworkers of America (C. I. O.) said 5,000 workers at a meeting in nearby Jersey City voted "overwhelmingly" to strike after he and two other leaders had urged them to delay action pending further negotiations.

Workers are asking a 10-cent-an-hour increase.

"I have notified the company of the strike," Dempsey said, and the company has agreed to close the plant tomorrow and not operate."

Although they had urged delay, Dempsey said the leaders would support the men.

McNutt Quits Race, Declares For 3d Term

U. S. Defense Needs Call for Roosevelt's Leadership, He Says

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt yesterday pulled his hat out of the Presidential ring and declared for a third term for President Roosevelt.

It was the first break in the Democratic circle of "if" candidates and it gave the "Draft Roosevelt" movement its biggest shove forward since Europe's war turned for the worse.

The former aspirant for the Democratic nomination, just returned from a country-wide campaign swing, said "the Nation's welfare, now dependent upon total preparedness to avert the threat of total war, requires that President Roosevelt continue as the chief executive."

And he asserted he voiced sentiments of a majority of the people when he said: "I want Franklin Roosevelt as the next President of the United States."

McNutt's withdrawal left the rest of the Democratic candidate field unbroken, despite third term impetus supplied by the President's pre-convention capture of a majority of the delegates and confident claims by New Deal third termers that Mr. Roosevelt "is now drafted."

Only recently, supporters of Vice President Garner and Postmaster General Farley, "unconditional" candidates in the race, reiterated doubts of the President's candidacy and stood by assertions that their names would be presented to the convention.

Senate Passes $60,000,000 Hospital Bill

Plan to Provide 6-Year Construction Program In 'Depressed Areas'

The Senate yesterday passed legislation to set up a six-year $60,000,000 hospital construction program in rural and "economically depressed areas."

The bill would authorize six annual appropriations of $10,000,000, starting with the fiscal year 1941, for building and enlargement of hospitals under supervision of the Public Health Service and Federal Works Agency.

Senator Murray (Democrat), of Montana, handling the measure on the floor, said the program would increase the Nation's hospital facilities by approximately 25,000 beds. The bill was approved on a voice vote and sent to the House.

The bill was originally introduced by Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, in line with recommendations in a message to Congress from President Roosevelt.

A National Advisory Hospital Council, consisting of eight "medical, osteopathic or scientific authorities," would assist the surgeon general in formulating standards for the new hospitals and personnel. The hospitals would be leased to States or communities for operation or constructed directly by the State or local authority on a grant not to exceed 90 per cent of the building cost.

The comparatively modest plan was submitted after the original public health program, which eventually would have cost hundreds of millions of dollars, encountered professional opposition and bogged down in Congress. The hospital project has been indorsed by officers of the American Medical Association.

Invasion Near, Britain Warned As Shattered Army Returns

By the Associated Press

London, May 30.—Invasion of England itself was described by Britain's leaders tonight as really imminent while dog-tired, wounded and unkempt Allied troops floundered sleepily home from the death trap of Flanders in bomb-raked ships.

Several defense sources gravely affirmed the belief that the Nazi forces across the narrow Channel soon would resume pursuit of the weary expeditionary troops, saved at the acknowledged cost of three British destroyers and several other surface ships.

Inviolate since 1066, while Britain fought its wars on foreign soil, the kingdom doggedly dug in for the worst.

As a foretaste of what defense leaders expected surely to come, Britons witnessed the arrival of shipload after shipload of those feebly cheering, quickly napping survivors of the 20 days it took the Nazis to rout them from the continent they had entered so hopefully.

Many Die on Way

Even the full-rout withdrawal carried every peril of warfare. While many survivors arrived intact, others were lost to the aerial and land barrages set upon their hastily loaded ships.

The ferocity of Nazi attacks upon the vessels was grimly underscored in tattered lines of gunfire and bomb holes in the funnels of the warships, transports and hospital craft put to desperate rescue duty in the Channel.

The passage was costly and little less vicious than the bloody retreat to the French coast.

The admiralty conceded the loss of the destroyers Grafton, Wakeful and Grenade, a small transport and various auxiliary ships in connection with the withdrawal of troops.

An evening communique gave official confirmation of the report that a successful withdrawal of at least part of the trapped forces has been effected.

The communique said the withdrawal operations had been carried out to date "with great skill and daring."

"The German high command has claimed to have inflicted very large losses on naval units and transports which they protect," the admiralty said, "as usual these bear no relation to facts."

The withdrawal was facilitated by the heroic stand at Calais of the small British force sent to France last week to maintain communications.

This force, which arrived just in time to find that the main body of the British expeditionary force was withdrawing toward Dunkerque, proved "of invaluable assistance" in the retreat, the communique said.

"This action," it continued, "will

'Interesting Nazi Personalities' Target of Bombers

With the Royal Air Force, in France, May 28 (Delayed) (U.P.).—British plans carrying out secret and urgent instructions from London have heavily bombed an important German objective where Nazi generals and other "interesting personalities" were assembled, pilots reported today.

A youngster of the Royal Air Force, who participated in the attack on the important "hush-hush" objective, said that the attackers dropped "a whole string of bombs flat on the target."

Near the objective, whose location was not disclosed, were many large German transport planes hidden in the woods, it was said.

The raid was reported to have been carried out under sealed orders from London.

(The dispatch gave no hint as to the possible identity of the German "interesting personalities.")

In night-long mass raids three German airdromes were attacked by British bombers, and fuel dumps and railheads were set ablaze.

Britain Gives Plane Motor Rights to U. S.

The British government yesterday turned over to the United States the right to manufacture all airplane engines made by the Rolls Royce Co., makers of the Allies' best airplane motors. The concession included the right to use in any manner desired the patents to the famed "Merlin"—the 12-cylinder, liquid-cooled engine used in the British "Spitfires," "Hurricanes" and other pursuit planes.

At the same time two of the three largest American airplane engine manufacturers gave the United States Government license rights on all their engines for a period of three years. The companies, it was learned, are the Wright Aeronautical Co., and the United Aircraft, producers of Pratt & Whitney motors. They agreed that the three-year grant might be extended if the emergency continues.

These two moves in America's big plane-building drive were announced last night by Dr. George Jackson Mead, special assistant to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau. Mead is in charge of the Treasury's new aviation division created when President Roosevelt placed Morgenthau in charge of coordinating the airplane expansion program.

Whether the British engine will actually be used, Dr. Mead said, depends on whether it is found to be superior to American engines.

Japan to Demand A Voice in Any War Settlement

Tokyo (Friday), May 31 (AP).—Circles close to the government said today that Japan, highly concerned in the fate of the Dutch East Indies, would demand a voice in any settlement of the European war.

These quarters said they expected a German victory, with the question then arising of disposition of the oil, rubber and tin of the Dutch East Indies.

The Japanese government was pictured as viewing with uneasiness the prospect that these valuable raw materials would be diverted entirely to Germany, cutting off shipments usually going to Japan.

Argentines Resent Sinking of Ship

Buenos Aires, May 30 (AP).—Resentful crowds of Argentines surged through the streets of Buenos Aires tonight following a long interview of President Roberto Ortiz with German Ambassador Edmund von Thermann over the U-boat sinking of the merchantman Uruguay off the Spanish coast.

Poilus Fighting Way to Coast; English Army On the Somme

By the Associated Press

Paris, May 30.—The imperilled French rear guards of the Allied northern armies were reported late tonight to be fighting their way, step by step, toward the sea after holding off the Germans to the bitter end in Flanders to permit the mass of their comrades to escape.

Military dispatches said the French troops under Gen. Jacques Adolphe Prioux had abandoned their positions along the south wall of the Allied escape corridor and were pushing along the 40-mile road to Dunkerque, where warships and transports are taking aboard the armies of the north.

[German sources claim Gen. Prioux and his staff have been captured.]

[While the coastal withdrawal was in progress, the New York Times reported from the Somme front that a second British army had arrived there and had taken up positions "somewhere along the river." The Allied pressure on the Somme is maintained, said the dispatch, but the operations are still local and of a minor character. Tonight's communique said "actions favorable to us are being fought along the greater part of the Somme front."]

Under Nazi Attack

The Germans attacked across Flanders halfway between Lille and Dunkerque in an effort to cut off the retreat but reports late tonight said the rear guard was squeezing through.

Both flanks of the French path to the sea are now held by the British troops, taking their stand in turn behind flooded zones north and south of the fortified portion of Dunkerque.

The ancient swamps south of Dunkerque, from Gravelines to Saint Omer, which have been dried up by modern drainage, once more are a salty bog, covered by waters admitted by flooded canals from the sea.

The Valley of the Yser, north of Dunkerque, also was flooded from Nieuport to Ypres over a width of more than 2 miles.

The German air force launched violent bombing attacks against the fleeing Allies and against the warships at Dunkerque, but was itself suffering heavy losses.

The Germans were estimated to have lost nearly 100 planes today alone.

Foe Held Along Yser

The late developments indicated the embattled rear guard might still reach the sea despite the German advances on the southern wall.

This wall, extending from Cassel to Gravelines, formed one side of a 40-mile-long corridor of escape running northwest from the region of Lille to Dunkerque—a besieged city manned by French sailors and marines—through which the British and French streamed toward the coast.

The other side was formed by an Allied line running from Nieu-

The War Today . . .

ITALY'S NEARER APPROACH to war was reported in Berlin last night as Nazis jubilantly proclaimed the victorious end of the Battle of Flanders.

FUEHRER HITLER SUMMONED Propaganda Minister Goebbels to the Western Front headquarters to prepare a "sensational announcement." Berlin heard that this announcement had to do with Italy's entrance into the war. Rome did not confirm it.

SOUTH OF DUNKERQUE, the French rear guard fought to cover the withdrawal of its main body and the British force from the port. The British admit the loss of three destroyers and a transport in the fierce Nazi air and artillery attack on the columns being evacuated to England.

WEARY BRITISH AND ALLIED troops from Flanders arrived in England as the British government prepared against invasion of the island.

FRANCE WAITED FRESH assaults on the Somme-Aisne line, in a new German drive on Paris, now that the Flanders battle has been lost.

British See Italy at War Within Week

Relations Worse As Duce Rejects Blockade Pact

By Frederick Kuh
United Press Staff Writer

London, May 30.—Anglo-Italian relations have taken a sudden turn for the worse, according to informed Italian sources tonight, and it was widely predicted that Italy would enter the war before the end of next week.

Sir Wilfred Greene, president of the British section of the Anglo-Italian committee for contraband matters, returned to London last Sunday after negotiations in Rome had resulted in what the British described as a satisfactory basis for settlement of the dispute over the blockade.

Early Wednesday, Italian quarters here said, Mussolini suddenly rejected the Greene pact. British authorities, who had been passing Italian ships unsearched and unmolested, resumed blockade restrictions, stopping at least three Italian ships at Gibraltar.

These events caused wide predictions that Italian entry into the war on the side of Germany was only a matter of days.

Mobilization Continues

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, May 30.—A council of ministers has been called for Tuesday, it was announced today, giving rise to speculation that something big will be decided.

One can only say now that Italy has been and is prepared to intervene; whether she will and, if so, when or where, is something that has to be awaited.

Steady, quiet mobilization has assumed very large proportions.

U. S. Weighs the Last War's Lessons at Unknown's Tomb

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

The rain slanted down, pelting those in the Arlington Amphitheater, darkening the flags and refreshing the roses and gladioli banked against the Unknown Soldier's Tomb.

All day the wreaths and sprays had been coming, and now the base of the marble sarcophagus was solid with the colors of spring.

One wreath—that of President Roosevelt—was carried to Arlington by Maj. Horace B. Smith, the senior White House military aide. The President couldn't go himself. He was held at his desk, working out the details of the greatest national defense program in the country's peacetime history.

The midde-aged men at Arlington with the jaunty overseas caps—the American Legionnaires and the Veterans of Foreign Wars—knew about that and understood. The Unknown Soldier would have understood, too.

He would be about 45 or 46 now, that nameless doughboy who was brought over from Chalons-sur-Marne in 1921. His hair would be getting thin on top and gray at the edges. He would still be mildly surprised that Uncle Sam no longer thinks him useful for soldiering, but is more interested in his son.

He would not yet have reached the stage where he was willing to talk about the battles he was in, preferring to leave that kind of talk to the "professional veterans."

He would not contend, as soldiers in old age are wontto do, that the

French Air Force Gone, Duce Can Strike, Fuehrer Expected to Say

By Louis P. Lochner
Associated Press Staff Writer

Berlin (Friday), May 31.—Italian participation in the war on the side of Germany appeared a long step nearer early today as the Nazi army continued relentlessly smashing British and French forces in the Dunkerque pocket of Flanders.

Excellently informed quarters said a conference between Adolf Hitler and Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels at the Fuehrer's field headquarters concerned the impending announcement of Italian intentions, and official quarters displayed a buoyant spirit in anticipation of the "sensational announcement" that was expected.

This development accompanied German declarations that the British-French withdrawal was a pell-mell retreat. Authorized sources in response to direct questions said most of the 16 transports, which they reported sunk by German bombers off the French coast, were loaded with soldiers.

Heavy Losses Admitted

They said this indicated Allies losses must have been great, but acknowledged their own losses also were heavy.

The prediction was made in authorized quarters that another impending blitzkrieg development would be a revival of a high pressure submarine drive so that the U-boats can be relieved from the region of Britain "for more distant waters."

The Berlin source said he understood there was an agreement between Hitler and Mussolini that Italy would enter the war only after Hitler has assured Il Duce that the French air force is so demolished as no longer to constitute a threat to Italy's chief industries.

Most of these are in the Po Valley, in the north of Italy.

French Forces Depleted

Whether this assurance has been forthcoming, now that Germany has won the bloody Battle of Flanders and claimed great inroads in the French and British air strength, is a matter of speculation.

As for manpower, reliable German sources estimated last night that France has but 3,000,000 men left to face 8,000,000 Germans and, possibly, 4,000,000 Italians.

[French military sources dispute these figures.]

These disclosures and estimates were made a few hours after the Reich's foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, had transmitted to the French government through Sweden an official warning of reprisals in the event German fliers captured by the French are mistreated, and after a parade of other indications that German anger is now being directed in the main against France.

Now that the Battle of Flanders is ending in a tempest of death from land and sky for the Allied troops attempting to escape to England across the Straits of Dover, there is wide speculation concerning a great onslaught on France's Somme-Aisne line, then Paris.

Should Italy enter the war, her position in the south, against France, would be much easier if the French troops were engaged against a great German offensive in the north.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

LOOPHOLE FOR ENEMIES

Justice Roberts of the Supreme Court is a calm gentleman of enormous self-control. So he should not be surprised if any day now a loin-clothed Hindu knocks on the door of his home, enters the hall, lays down a board thickly studded with sharp nails, and lies down upon it, meanwhile exhorting the justice to do likewise in the true faith.

Harlan Miller

Nor should Justice Reed bat an eye if a little group of flagellants invade his living room, begin to beat each other with whips, denounce the justice's religion and beseech him, either orally or with a phonographic transcription, to become a flagellant.

* * * *

And why? Well, because on a recent Monday the Supreme Court unanimously upheld the claim of three members of a sect called Jehovah's Witnesses that they have the "right" to enter a Catholic's home in New Haven and in its sanctity play a phonograph record denouncing the Catholic faith.

* * * *

On the following Thursday three avowed Nazis, claiming some allegiance to this same sect, peddled tracts in Del Rio, Tex., with the Nazi swastika on the cover. When they declined to salute an American flag and called it "a dirty rag," they were run out of town.

"—to convert the Justice"

It appears that the Fifth Column is alert, for the time being at least, to decisions of the United States Supreme Court. It is ready to take advantage of any such strange ruling. Any Fifth Column can join any sect it chooses, apparently, or create a new religion, and then operate with impunity.

* * * *

So the members of the Supreme Court might as well prepare for callers. If there are any Doukabours abroad in the land, eager to parade evangelically in the nude through someone's living room, they know where they may expect a tolerant reception.

* * * *

It is fair to assume that Justice Douglas, for example, is ready to abide by the unanimous decision of the court and welcome, with at least a minimum of hospitality, any wandering holy roller who wants to do a little rolling on the Douglas hearth rug.

* * * *

Socially, Justice McReynolds is no pushover. But a unanimous decision is a unanimous decision. So it would scarcely be cricket for him to object, if a whirling dervish were to drop in on him at his apartment on Sixteenth street and whirl and whirl, with outcries to persuade the justice of the error of his ways.

Alas, the possibilities are manifold. Any pacifist sect may now call on Secretary of War Woodring or Gen. Marshall, the chief of staff, and implore them to toss the Army into the ashcan. Or it can, if it wishes, aim its solicitude at less eminent members of the U. S. Army.

* * * *

And what is to prevent Berlin from sending over a flying squad of missionaries for its new pagan religion, to incorporate under the laws of Delaware and then proceed to sell paganism in the places where it will do the most good, with a side line of Hitlerism?

* * * *

An ardent missionary might even preach to gullible workers in airplane factories and arsenals that it is their lofty duty to commit sabotage, or to a gob that he must jam the gun turrents or scuttle the ship if he yearns for Heaven hereafter.

* * * *

We democracies are so delightfully tolerant. We are still so sure of ourselves that we don't plug up the rat holes. We are strong for free speech. We will continue to be, until someone makes us yell "Uncle," and that may be the last free word we ever utter.

Rumania Ousts Foreign Guards

Bucharest, May 30 (AP).—The guarding of Rumania's oil wells was taken out of the hands of foreign-owned companies by a new decree of the minister of national defense last night.

Under the order, British, French and other foreign companies must discharge their own guards and hire Rumanian citizens.

All automobiles and trains passing through petroleum zones are being searched, and foreigners found in refining, shipping and production centers vital to the oil industry are to be sent to concentration camps.

The French and British, who own 70 per cent of Rumania's production, are reported to have made plans for destruction of their wells and refineries in event of a German invasion.

Administration Blocks Action On Agency Curb

Barkley Declares Bill Might Balk Defense Legislation

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

Administration forces yesterday blocked efforts to assure Senate debate on the Walter-Logan bill with a warning that Congress must hold itself ready to act on short notice on defense legislation.

The Walter-Logan bill, passed by a three-to-one majority in the House on April 18, would permit court review of the rulings of more than 100 Federal agencies and commissions. The measure has been vigorously opposed by the Administration.

Senators McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, and Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, led the fight to bring the bill onto the Senate floor, asking for unanimous consent to take up the measure immediately after disposal of defense, relief and reorganization bills.

"No Punch and Judy Show"

The move touched off one of the sharpest debates of the present session. With comments of bundreds of holiday spectators nearly matching the volume of proceedings on the floor, Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, acting presiding officer, threatened once to clear the galleries.

"This is no Punch and Judy show," he said.

Majority Leader Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, fighting against any commitment to take up the bill, told the Senate "no one can tell in this urgent emergency when action on defense legislation may be necessary."

"This is no time to take up controversial measures that would require days of debate," he declared. "The temper of the country today will not stand for any sidetracking of defense bills to make way for further matters."

Hatch Puzzled

Hatch termed his own proposal "a very modest request" and declared that supporters of the Walter-Logan bill merely sought assurance that the measure would be considered after passage of the defense and relief bills—unless unforeseen developments confronted the Senate with new and more pressing business.

"If no one is blocking this bill," he added, "it's a little hard to see what's holding it up."

Senator Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, charged that a "paid lobbyist" for the National Association of Manufacturers is seeking passage of the bill in order to "sabotage" the work of New Deal agencies.

Federal officials are working "silently and secretly" in an "undercover" effort to defeat the bill, Senator Ashurst (Democrat), of Arizona, asserted. "Bureaus long drunk with arbitrary power refused to have the cup of arbitrary power dashed from their lips," he said.

Kansas City Political Leader Posts Bond On Bribery Charge After He's Freed On 5-Year Probation From Leavenworth

By the Associated Press

Kansas City, May 30.—Tom Pendergast, a glum faced man one year ago as he left his Democratic political machine in control of Kansas City and went to prison, came out smiling today from Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary—stripped of his power and facing a fight to stay from behind cell bars.

The 67-year-old stocky figure, whose very nod once meant the election of a State Governor, was in genial spirits on his arrival here after completing a term for income tax evasion.

"Hello, so glad to see you," he beamed to old friends he picked out on his way to the Federal office where rigid terms of a five-year probation were read to him, including one forbidding him to resume his role of political boss. Then he accepted service of a State warrant charging him with bribery, pleaded innocent and was freed on $3,000 bond furnished by a business associate.

Monday, a date will be set for his trial on a charge that he bribed R. Emmett O'Malley, the man he helped put in office as State insurance superintendent, into settling a huge rate case in favor of fire insurance companies.

The Federal Government in its successful prosecution of Pendergast for income tax evasion, leading to his plea of guilty, charged that Pendergast got a payoff for helping settle the rate case, but made an evasive tax return after losing large sums in bets on race horses.

One of those on hand to greet Pendergast today was a nephew, James Pendergast, who has taken charge of the Democratic political organization.

Still clutching a small cardboard box he brought from prison containing a few personal possessions, he left after his court appearances for his palatial home in an exclusive Southside district.

Pershing Expected To Meet 35 Who Sailed on Baltic

Gen. John J. Pershing is expected to hold a reunion tomorrow night with approximately 35 veterans of the American Expeditionary Force who accompanied him on the S. S. Baltic when he sailed from New York 23 years ago to take command of the American forces in France.

The 35 soldiers, from generals to privates, will meet at 7 p. m. at the Army-Navy Club in a gathering of the Baltic Society, an organization they formed to commemorate the trip.

Besides Gen. Pershing, there will be Gens. James G. Harbord, Merritt W. Ireland, Walter Bethel and Daniel Rockenbach, all retired officers of Pershing's war time staff; his aide, Col. George E. Adamson, and a number of enlisted men.

Willkie to Visit At Landon Home

Topeka, Kans., May 30 (AP).—Alf M. Landon said yesterday Wendell Willkie, New York utility executive discussed as a Republican Presidential possibility, would visit at the former Governor's home west of Topeka for two hours tomorrow night.

The titular G. O. P. leader has invited some State party leaders to dine with Willkie, who will come here from Chicago and take a train to Denver later in the evening.

The Gallup Poll

Willkie's Popularity Continues Sharp Rise; Dewey Drops Slightly, Remains Far in Lead

By Dr. George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., May 30.—A sharp rise in the popularity of Wendell Willkie as a Presidential candidate, and a small decline in the popularity of Thomas E. Dewey have taken place in the last two weeks of May.

GALLUP

A survey conducted among Republican voters by the American Institute of Public Opinion finds that Willkie's popularity has doubled since the last check-up May 17, while the Dewey percentage has declined six points. Senator Robert A. Taft has gained slightly.

Despite these changes, Dewey continues far in the lead as the Presidential choice of the Republican rank and file. When a cross-section of G. O. P. voters throughout the country were asked:

"Whom would you like to see elected president?" the spontaneous choices of those expressing an opinion were:

TODAY		MAY 17
Dewey	56%	Dewey	62%
Taft	16	Taft	14
Vandenberg	12	Vandenberg	13
Willkie	10	Willkie	5
Hoover	2	Hoover	2
Gannett	1	Gannett	1
James	1	Bridges	1
Others	2	Others	2

There is a sufficiently high undecided vote, however, to indicate that the race is by no means closed. Nearly one-third (32 per cent) of those polled said they had not made up their minds about any candidate yet.

Wendell Willkie's rise to fourth position in the Institute's surveys has come in the short space of about two months. In March a survey found him polling less than one per cent. By early May the Willkie figure rose to 3 per cent, by May 17 to 5 per cent and today it climbs to 10 per cent. Willkie backers have circulated petitions in every State, and Willkie himself recently completed a trip to the Middle West where he delivered several public addresses.

Since Presidential candidates are nominated by conventions, and not by popular acclaim, the survey results do not mean that Willkie, or Dewey, or any of the other leaders will necessarily be the choice of the G. O. P. convention in Philadelphia next month.

Willkie's popular strength is largely confined to the Eastern States at the present time. Twice as many voters are for him in New England and the Middle Atlantic States as in the sections west of Ohio and Indiana.

Interviewers who conducted the poll for the Institute report that the Willkie followers are for him mainly because of his business achievements. Their most typical remarks are "I'm for Willkie because he's a good businessman."

"Willkie could coordinate resources in time of emergency."

"He understands the needs of business."

"I'd rather see a businessman in the White House now that we have to put industry to work for national defense."

Black Is Nominated To 6-Year Term at FCA

President Roosevelt Wednesday sent to the Senate the nomination of Albert G. Black to a six-year term as governor of the Farm Credit Administration.

Black has headed the FCA since last December, when he succeeded F. F. Hill. His new term would begin June 15.

McNutt Urges Credits for Allies If They Would Prevent Defeat

Arlington Speaker Calls for 'Total' U. S. Preparedness

More solemnly and introspectively than in any year since the World War, Washington yesterday memorialized America's war dead while flurries of rain fell and speakers called for national preparedness and a will to pay for it.

Overlooking a crowd that sat under umbrellas or bared its head in the Arlington Amphitheater, Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt urged the Nation to meet "the threat of total war with total preparedness."

McNutt proposed acquisition of West Indies islands, if that would strengthen the United States defenses, and extension of credits to the Allies, if such a procedure would prevent their defeat.

Earlier in the day, after a parade with 12 bands and 1,461 uniformed marchers had passed up Constitution avenue, Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, told an audience at Georgetown University law school that Congress must levy billions in taxes for preparedness unless the limitation on the national debt is raised.

"As much as we deplore this necessity, it must be faced with courage; we must not let liberty down," he told his audience, honoring the law school's 29 World War dead.

Four times McNutt drew applause when the address touched national defense.

"If by extending credits to the democracies, fighting with their backs to the sea, defeat for their cause may be averted, the future welfare and safety of this country would justify such a course," he said.

The crowd applauded his observation that "if, by following the precedent of our acquisition of the Virgin Islands, we can forestall attempts of unfriendly powers to obtain a foothold within striking distance of the Western Hemisphere, it is the legitimate exercise of our right to security to acquire those bases and fortify them for our own protection."

He said America "will build the greatest military and naval and aerial defenses the world has ever seen. We will not equal our potential enemies in military strength. We will outdo them. We will show the world what a vigilant, alert and free people can do when danger is recognized."

It does not follow that America should go to war 'because neutrality and isolation insure no peace," McNutt said. "It does mean, however, that we are in grave danger of having a war thrust upon us. And to avoid that unhappy event will require all the statesmanship, courage and wisdom that a unified and determined America can summon."

"Grave Issues" Foreseen

He suggested that "grave issues" may arise for American solution within the next few months, weeks or possibly days. These, he said, may originate in Europe or in the Orient.

"There is no occasion for alarm or for hysteria," he went on. "But there is every reason for this country to exert itself to the utmost of its ability to attain a state of total defense for a threat of total war.'

The Nation, he said, "need not count the cost, for whatever it is it will be cheap. It cost America $35,000,000,000 to take part in the last war. What would it be worth to avoid total war, as it is waged today?"

He suggested that the Nation look to its internal economy.

"Men who have long been out of work are not effective citizens," he said. "If required to denfend their country they will not make effective soldiers . . . And eventually they lose their spirit, their morale and their patriotism. Men are not eager to seize the sword to protect a jobless way of life."

President Sends Wreath

The exercises at the Arlington Amphitheater, facing the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and sponsored by the Grand Army of the Republic Memorial Day Corporation, were not attended by the President because of urgent engagements.

James G. Yaden, the organization president, presided; the Marine band played. Joseph Bentonelli, Metropolitan Opera singer, gave three solos.

Taking part in the exercises and the parade wsa Col. John M. Kline, 93 years old, commander of the Potomac G. A. R.

The White House wreath was placed at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier by Maj. Horace B. Smith, White House aide. Other White House wreaths were laid at the base of the battleship Maine's mast in Arlington; on George Washington's tomb at Mount Vernon; the Tomb of the Civil War's Unknown Soldier, and the Spanish War Memorial.

Exercises at the Battleground National Cemetery, Brightwood, under auspices of the Grand Army of the Republic and citizens of Brightwood were interrupted in the afternoon by rain.

The parade was participated in by regulars, former service men and their auxiliaries. Policemen Jerome Tarleton and R. Y. Hesse counted eight pieces of horse artillery, two pieces of motor artillery; 12 bands, 1,461 uniformed marchers, 153 civilian marchers, 160 equestrian marchers, all requiring 28 minutes to pass.

The war reflected itself in Philadelphia and Detroit observances, the Associated Press reported.

In Detroit, Herbert Busse, German submarine commander in the World War and commander of the German veterans' post, explained the withdrawal of his unit from a parade "to avoid any embarrassment to other foreign groups."

An estimated 75,000 persons marched in New York City parades. Mrs. Roosevelt spoke on "Peace and the Significant Challenge of Memorial Day This Year" during the services in Ferncliffe Cemetery, Ardsley, N. Y.

Philadelphia police guarded services at Fort Hill, near Fort Washington, Pa. American Legion officials reported they heard that the German-American Bund planned to hold a "special meeting" simultaneously with Memorial Day services.

Gettysburg Ceremony

Speaking at Gettysburg, Pa., in the National Cemetery where Abraham Lincoln made his famed address, Gov. James, of Pennsylvania declared:

"Peace can be attained, if at all, first by preparing to defend ourself; second, by tending to our own business and tending to it properly; and third, by setting as our goal the vision of an America of the future which can be a rock of liberty in a sea of anarchy and dissolution."

Gen. Julius F. Howell, 94, of Bristol, Va., National commander of the United Confederate Veterans, and Frederick James McWade, 93, of Holmesburg, Pa., a veteran of the Union forces, appeared on the same platform with Gov. James.

Senate Accepts $60,000,000 Boost For Electrification

By the Associated Press

The Senate agreed yesterday to a $60,000,000 increase in rural electrification funds voted by the House in the annual farm appropriation, but it refused to accept numerous other House changes in the $1,000,000,000 measure.

Senator Russell (Democrat), of Georgia, won unanimous approval for a second conference with the House to try to adjust these differences.

Still in dispute between the two chambers were the formula for paying $212,000,000 of "parity" benefits to farmers; restrictions on $50,000,000 in farm tenancy loans, and smaller items involving about $5,000,000.

The House originally voted a $40,000,000 fund for rural electrification. The Senate directed that this be a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation instead of a new appropriation from the Treasury. The House accepted this idea but increased the loan to $100,000,000. The Senate now has accepted the $60,000,000 boost.

Mrs. Roosevelt Warns Nation On Hysteria

Face Realities Without Hatred, She Tells 10,000

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Ardsley, N. Y., May 30.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, delivering a Memorial Day address to 10,000 persons assembled on the lawn of Ferncliff Cemetery here this afternoon, urged Americans to face the realities of a war torn world without fear or hatred, and resolutely to defend the Nation's physical security.

"We know today that what we hoped for—a peaceful world—is no longer with us," Mrs. Roosevelt said. "We know that in most parts of the world there is suffering and fighting. We had hoped, and many of the men that we honor today died hoping that never again would any human being suffer as they suffered. That hope we have had to give up.

"No matter what we have to do—granted that when there is force abroad in the world, we have to turn again to force—we must not allow our spirits to turn to fear and hate. We must mee the situation that we face today with courage and with calm. We must not be ridden by our fears. We must keep our Nation still firm in the way we have believed was the democratic way of life. We must not, because we are afraid, lose any of the things that we hold dear."

The President's wife warned her listeners against the type of hysteria already beginning to show itself in her letters, she said, which reported of one's neighbors that they had been "influenced by something subversive."

"I do not think there is any reason," Mrs. Roosevelt continued, "for minimizing the possible danger that any nation faces today. It is much better to look the situation straight in the face and accept the fact that in a world where force is paramount every nation faces certain dangers.

"I have no patience with people who say that to face a situation or to state it is in any way an attempt to frighten people. I think it is hardly necessary to tell all of you who came here today that this is a serious time for us or our country, or the world as a whole, but I think what each and every one of us wants to remember is that we here in this country, must keep our spirits on the plane of religion. We must believe in religion. We must believe in God and we must translate our beliefs into actions.

"If for one minute we lower our banners, the hope of the world is lowered, indeed. We are today, I think, the one beacon light for many, many people."

Soviet, Hungary Accord Augurs Balkan Peace

Reds Withdraw Troops At Magyar Frontier; War Fears Lessen

By the Associated Press

Budapest, May 30.—Soviet Russia has withdrawn soldiers from the Hungarian frontier and Hungary, in return, has suspended plans to call more reserves to her army, it was announced officially today, in a southeastern Europe peace move.

This action, along with others to settle Balkans disputes, appeared generally to convince the Hungarian capital that the Axis powers—Germany and Italy—might succeed in limiting the scope of the European war to British and French territory.

Budapest is strongly influenced by Berlin and Rome.

The reciprocal measures of military assurance between Hungary and Russia resulted from an agreement reached by Russia's premier-foreign commissar, Vyacheslaff Molotoff, and the Hungarian minister to Moscow. Officials declared the relations between the two countries now are the best since the Soviets reached the crest of the Carpathian Mountains last fall upon the partition of Poland.

Indications were that a Hungarian economic mission might be dispatched to Moscow soon.

A lessening of tension here led many Hungarians to believe the interests of Germany, Italy and Russia in southeastern Europe—where that trio of major powers has a decided voice—nearly have reached an equilibrium.

Belief is expressed in some quarters that the chances of this area remaining peaceful are increased, even if Italy shortly enters the war.

Yugoslavia's fear of an Italian attack has been quieted by Fascist diplomats, it was reported.

Seyss-Inquart Heads Dutch Civil Regime

Issues Proclamations Where Queen Formerly Opened Parliament

By Oscar Mohr
Copyright by New York Times

Amsterdam, the Netherlands, May 30.—Reich Minister Arthur Seyss-Inquart assumed today the highest civil powers in the former kingdom of the Netherlands when, on Chancellor Hitler's order, the military commander, Gen. Alexander von Falkenhausen, laid down his functions in Holland. The authority he formerly held as military head of the occupied nation is now divided between Herr Seyss-Inquart and Maj. Gen. Friedrich Christiansen, the new military commander.

The transfer of authority took place in a picturesque ceremony in the Ridderzaal, the medieval sanctuary of Dutch tradition, where in former days Queen Wilhelmina opened the chambers of Parliament each year. This time there were German soldiers instead of Dutch troops offering the military salute in the Binneshof, with German military bands and the brilliant uniforms of Third Reich officers providing a setting for the ceremony ushering in Holland's new era.

The entire ceremony had almost a purely German character. German civil and military officials of all ranks filled the hall. Among the Dutch were only the permanent secretaries of departments which will continue to function in collaboration with Herr Seyss-Inquart and his staff of specialists. Neither Commander in Chief Henri Gerard Winkelmann nor other Dutch military officers was obliged to assist, and there were no diplomats present.

Proclamations Follow

As the Reich Minister entered and was seated, a German orchestra struck up Wagner's Rienzi Overture, preparing the atmosphere for the proclamation speeches which followed. In the course of these Herr Seyss-Inquart, in his new capacity of civil head of the Netherlands, proclaimed the following:

"Dutch laws hitherto observed shall remain valid as far as possible. Dutch officials are to be instruments of power in the new administration. Independence of legal jurisdiction will be preserved. Regarding economic matters, it will be seen to that the Netherlands is not subjected to further discomforts of living than are rendered necessary by enforced communal relations with the Reich and the destructive will of Germany's enemies. Reconstruction of all damage done by the war will be undertaken immediately with all energy."

Herr Seyss-Inquart announced in the latter respect the foundation of a reconstruction fund which is to be built up from savings in state expenses and such voluntary donations as may be forthcoming.

French Struggle Toward Channel

ions which already had reached Dunkerque were being moved across the English Channel under cover of the guns of the British and French fleets, others were pouring down the corridor, forcing a bloody passage at points where port to Ypres along the Yser River, and here the French war ministry spokesman declared that the Nazi rush was being held up.

While the broken Allied battalthe Nazi advance guards sought to bar them.

The Germans were successful during the day in throwing a light line across the corridor from Cassel, 12 miles northeast to Poperinghe, but French rear guard tanks at once smashed into it.

Air battles raged along with the vast ground movements and a French source declared about 75 German planes had been shot down.

The German advance on the southern wing had its first big success of the day in the capture of Mount Cassel—two miles from the town itself—and was carrying on tonight.

Declared by a French spokesman to be outnumbered nearly three to one, the Allies left the tragic fields of Flanders punished as they never had been. Many areas lay under water, flooded by the French in a last effort to delay the conquering German march to the sea. They were alight with the fires of burning buildings and torn by the incessant explosion of thousands of guns.

Despite the loss of Flanders—which gave the Germans control of 10,000 square miles of rich territory, virtually all of France's coal mining region and about half her industrial area—the French authorities took it with chins up.

Homes and buildings lay in black ruins.

"Now, more than ever, American industrial aid is absolutely necessary," said a spokesman for the ministry of information.

But in the face of defeat and devastation, the French spoke with pride of the "glory" of the Allied struggle from the beginning of the battle to its present end and declared, in contrast to Berlin reports, that there had not been "a single surrender."

Defense Bill Given House; Hearings Today

$656,000,000 Measure May Be Reported Out By End of Next Week

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

The Administration bill to raise $656,000,000 in national defense taxes and increase the national debt limit by $3,000,000,000, was introduced in the House yesterday by Chairman Doughton, of the Ways and Means Committee.

With the speed characteristic of the new defense program, Doughton's committee, to which the bill was referred, today will hear Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau express his views on the revenue measure. Chairman Doughton said last night he hoped the bill would be reported out of committee by the end of next week.

The bill provides for the addition of 10 per cent to income tax payments and for increases ranging from 10 to as high as 50 per cent on such commodities as gasoline, cigarettes, automobiles and liquor. The new rates are fixed for the next five years.

The $656,000,000 expected to be raised from the new levies annually over the five-year period will pay for the $3,000,000,000 in additional Treasury obligations which the bill authorizes over the existing debt limit. These notes are specifically limited to providing funds "to meet any expenditures made, after June 30, 1940, for the national defense, or to reimburse the general fund of the Treasury therefor."

The additional 10 per cent on every individual and corporate income, personal holding company, excess profits, capital stock, estate, gift and transfer tax is expected to yield $229,000,000 or more per annum.

A 50 per cent jump in the Federal gasoline tax, from 1 to 1½ cents a gallon, will bring in $112,000,000; a 16 per cent increase in cigarette tax from $3 to $3.50 per thousand will yield $77,000,000; a 33 per cent jump in the liquor excise is expected to produce $91,000,000.

Tobacco and cigar imposts are raised about 16 per cent, and even snuff does not escape the new levy. A 20 per cent increase is imposed on still wines, while a 10 per cent rise is slapped on brewers.

Other increased "super-taxes" include a jump from 3 to 3½ per cent on automobiles; from 2 to 2 ½ per cent on parts; from 2¼ to 2½ cents on tires; from 4 cents to 4½ cents on tubes; from 5 to 5½ per cent on radios and mechanical refrigerators; from 5 to 5½ per cent on matches; from 10 to 11 per cent on toilet preparations, and from 3 to 3½ per cent on electrical energy.

Theater admissions will be taxed 10 per cent if they are above 30 cents, instead of 40 cents, as at present.

The 10 per cent addition to income taxes would be superimposed after the tax is calculated according to present rates. Thus, a current tax of $10 would be raised to $11, a flat 10 per cent increase.

Meanwhile, Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, presented his bill for a horizontal 10 per cent cut in all governmental expenditures except national defense and interest on the national debt. This slash, he said, would effect a saving of $500,000,000.

The proposal will be offered in the form of an amendment to the 1940 relief appropriation bill, which is expected to be reported to the Senate early next week.

organizations, then looked over quarters in the Federal Reserve Building.

The President said he would not recommend a definite amount for defense in today's message, but that Army and Navy officials would explain their needs to the Congressional committees and let them decide on what is to be voted now.

He said, though, that he believed that something between just under a billion dollars or just over that sum would be required, and that the supplemental fund will just about double that proposed in his message of two weeks ago. Besides money for tanks, planes, antiaircraft and antitank guns, fixed ammunitions and powder, Mr. Roosevelt said there would be funds for the Navy.

The new outlay for the Army is estimated in official circles as between $800,000,000 and $800,000,000, with about $730,000,000 as the most likely sum. The $400,000,000 to be asked for the Navy came as something of a surprise, even to many naval officials who worked late last night preparing a program to be presented to Congress today.

While no provision is made for additional troops beyond the 280,000 strength to be obtained under the earlier program, the new plan calls for training CCC enrollees in noncombatant Army duties.

The new defense program will swell Army and Navy appropriations to about $4,500,000,000. Now pending are the $1,823,000,000 Army and $1,473,000,000 Navy supply bills, while more than $200,000,000 in addition will be voted for naval shipbuilding and bases, to carry out pending authorization bills.

Besides approving funds for the new Panama locks, the House sent the Naval Appropriation bill to conference with the Senate to iron out details. It may come up for final vote in the House today.

The War Department civil functions appropriations bill, which carries the money for the new locks, was sent back to conference for further consideration of disputed rivers and harbors and flood control projects. Opposition to the building of the locks was on the ground an air raid on the Canal might destroy both existing and spare locks, and that the money could be spent more advantageously on defense measures that can be completed in one year rather than six.

President Roosevelt and the Army high command, however, have insisted the work is vital to the security of the Canal and would make it practically impregnable. The locks would be reserved for use of the Navy in time of war.

Well-informed circles said more than 25 per cent of the new Army outlay would be used to create from 25 to 30 ammunition plants, including factories for making smokeless powder, TNT, nitrates, shells, armor-plate and small arms.

Other of the funds will add from 2,500 to 3,000 fighting planes, 1,500 to 2,000 tanks, several additional antiaircraft regiments, and large sums for research. Heavier caliber antitank guns must be provided, in the light of the failure of the Allied weapons to stop the German tanks.

For an hour and a half the President talked over the duties of each, member of the defense commission in the presence of Cabinet members, Army and Navy chiefs and House and Senate leaders. Then he called in reporters and said he expected to halve the 13-month period required to reach a full-time production basis in the World War.

Mr. Roosevelt responded no to a query on whether the program would be purely "voluntary," said the group would have in effect all of the authority of the wartime commission set up by the 1917 defense act, and indicated it would report to him and not to any Cabinet defense council.

But the President told reporters he hoped to avoid the World War economic spiral. He said that no price-fixing is contemplated at present, he wants to avoid taking over the railroads in any emergency, he expects no stock market trouble that will hurt the country, and he plans to guard prices and consumer supplies against any inconvenience to the public.

While the defense commission program apparently will steer clear of railroad operation, stock market trading restrictions, and actual industrial control, it was said elsewhere that though teeth could be applied if need be, carefully directed cooperation will serve every defense purpose.

The President explained in detail to reporters how the program will be geared to that objective.

Mr. Roosevelt illustrated how William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors, charged with the production job, would channel fabrication into the finished product of industrial raw materials, falling under supervision of Edward Stettinius, jr., chairman of United States Steel.

Knudsen's first job will be to get down on paper the specifications and requirements of the Army and Navy for materials to be purchased. His next task, said the President, will be the scheduling of production, and the working out of an order of priorities of manufacture, so the finished product will be moved smoothly through the assembly stage. His third job will be delivery of the finished goods.

In this connection, the President pointed out that Knudsen through his assistance would know where surplus facilities were available to speed each type of production. He indicated that standardization will play a role. The Army and Navy must determine, for example, whether two or three types of training planes and engines can be used instead of 14 or 15.

Directing the transportation phase, the President said Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, would operate on the double-desk principle, with his end of the desk representing the Government.

For example, Stettinius would call Budd when steel was ready to move through the final processing stage, inform him where it was, the date it must move to plant and the number of freight cars required. Budd would turn this information over to John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, and it would be up to the railroads to see the steel moved. Similarly, if there was a jam, Budd would hand the complaint to Pelley, who would clear it. Budd's work in moving a much larger tonnage of freight than is now needed would extend as well to ships, barge lines and trucks, said the President.

Sidney Hillman, head of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union, who was prevented by a cold from attending yesterday's meeting, will supervise noncombatant employment needs, carrying on the work directed for three weeks by Secretary of Commerce Hopkins.

Hillman will be in general charge of supplying men for basic civilian pilot training, for instruction in radio and automobile mechanics and repair work, training of cooks and other noncombatant work. Earlier the President had announced extension of these training courses from the National Youth Administration to the CCC. In addition to coordinating these efforts, Hillman will cover employment and labor relations of industry.

The job of Miss Harriet Elliott, dean of women at the University of North Carolina, will be to watch consumer prices and consumer supplies to guard against living cost increases, Mr. Roosevelt said.

Similarly, Leon Henderson, Securities and Exchange Commission chairman, will watch basic raw material costs. Their work will be largely statistical for the time being, he said.

On the farm front, Chester C. Davis, of the Federal Reserve Commission, will keep tab on agricultural supplies and prices to see that they do not run into a jam, said Mr. Roosevelt. He will seek to hold prices up to parity as far as possible, not for any partisan objective but to keep the farm leg of the program in line, he said.

Price controls are not contemplated at the present time, the President told reporters, but every effort will be made to prevent the World War economic sequence which saw prices go up, labor charges reflect this and the added costs passed on to production. He said price fixing isn't planned because the evil spiral hasn't yet appeared.

The Treasury's procurement division, to be headed up by Donald Nelson, of Sears-Roebuck, will continue to handle the run of Government purchasing, as it did in the World War, Mr. Roosevelt said. He added that he saw no need for new machinery for Government buying of shoes, and such office items as desks and typewriters.

The President said he was determined to avoid if possible taking over the railroads since a conversation he had last summer with Daniel Willard, former president of the Baltimore & Ohio, who was in charge of the lines under Government operation in the World War.

He said he agreed with Willard that if the Government took over the rails again the chances are the companies will never get them back. Every railroad president knows this, he said.

The President said no consideration is being given to closing the stock exchanges. He said he had been over this earlier with William M. Martin, president of the New York Stock Exchange. Mr. Roosevelt told Martin he was older than he, had been through a lot of stock exchange panics since 1907, and he discounted any danger to the Nation from this source. They both agreed, he said, that the thing for the people to remember is to keep their feet on the ground and their mouths shut. He said there is no panic problem involved.

Mr. Roosevelt said he shortly will name two more executive assistants to aid him in his task of coordination but will hold the sixth "anonymous" post open to be filled in an emergency.

Called into the White House conference, Senate Majority Leader Barkley and House Majority Leader Rayburn familiarized themselves with the details of the program. Barkley said no new legislation will be required. Rayburn called the plan "perfectly fine."

Senate Unit Approves RFC Defense Loans

Would Let Agency Lend to Industries Producing Arms

The Senate Banking and Currency Committee yesterday reported favorably a bill that would enable the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to lend up to one billion dollars to corporations to strengthen the national defense.

Overriding charges by Senator Robert A. Taft (Republican), of Ohio, the bill's only opponent in the committee, that its terms were too broad, the group acted doublequick to approve the measure which has been backed by Jesse Jones, head of R. F. C.

Can Lend for Materials

As approved, the bill contains power for R. F. C. to make loans to corporations manufacturing materials for national defense, and empowers the agency to lend money for purchase of industrial raw materials of a strategic nature, for supplies and equipment.

The provision allowing RFC to subscribe to stock of firms engaged in defense work aroused the opposition of Senator Taft. He threatened to carry his fight to the Senate floor.

The war-financing provisions of the approved bill were appended to the measure which also allows RFC to pay the Treasury $300,000,000 of its surplus capital by buying that amount of Federal Home Loan Bank stock.

Bank Features Dropped

Last week, by an amicable agreement between Jesse Jones and Secretary Morgenthau, the bill was pruned of features that would have allowed Jones to share Morgenthau's power to permit RFC purchase of preferred bank stock, and would have eased the terms of real estate loans by national banks.

Opposition to the war-financing parts of the bill was based, it was understood, on a belief that the measure would open the door for vast Government financing of private industry.

U. S. Probing Sabotage at 3 Plane Plants

5 Moves to Cripple West Coast Units Indicated by Officials

Los Angeles, May 30 (AP).—County and Federal authorities today probed five attempts in the last ten days to interfere with water and power supplies to three large aircraft plants making planes for the Government and the Allies. They sought to learn whether the acts were part of an organized sabotage plot.

The most recent act was early today. The power line to the Hawthorne city water plant was cut, stilling for five hours pumps supplying the new Northrop airplane factory and the City of Hawthorne. A wood-control bar was sawed in two, breaking the water company's power switch.

Early Sunday morning the El Segundo substation of the Southern California Edison Co. was entered and a switch damaged. At the same time a switch was thrown on a pole at El Segundo and Sepulveda boulevards. These controlled power lines to the El Segundo Northrop plant.

Five "Incidents" Probed

Another power line was cut, parallel to that leading to the North American and Douglas plants, throwing a minor circuit out of commission. Investigators believe the intent was to cut the other line.

A fifth incident was said by investigators to have been an attempt to cut the water supply of the North American plant.

Fears New Outrages

By the Associated Press

Senator Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, expressed concern yesterday that "growing hysteria about a fifth column" might undermine civil liberties, involve the United States in war, and make possible "a government like Hitler's."

Norris, the only Senator now sitting who voted against American entry into the World War, told reporters that he feared a repetition of World War raids when "hundreds of persons, entirely innocent, were arrested, shackled and handcuffed just because their enemies made false charges against them."

Norris said "it is history" that J. Edgar Hoover, now head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, assisted Attorney General Palmer in directing those raids.

Hoover has drawn Norris' criticism in the past, and the Senator is opposing President Roosevelt's plan to shift the Immigration Service from the Labor to the Justice Department because, he said, "I am afraid Hoover may get control."

23 Priests to Be Ordained Today At St. Dominic's

Twenty-three young men today will complete eight days of prayer and meditation and be ordained as priests at St. Dominic's Church. The candidates include one Chinese and two Spaniards, who left Spain upon the outbreak of civil war there.

Archbishop Michael J. Curley of Baltimore and Washington will conduct the ordination, assisted by the very Rev. Adrian T. English, prior of the Dominican House of Studies, and the Rev. G. B. Stratmeier. The mass will begin at 8 a. m.

The 23 priests are to spend about one more year at the House of Studies before being assigned to teaching and preaching duties as members of the Dominican Order.

British Taken Home in Fierce Channel Fight

3 Destroyers Sunk As Planes, Mosquito Boats Harry Retreat

count among the most heroic deeds in the annals of the British army."

The communique did not say exactly what happened to this small force but mentioned that "its refusal to surrender Calais until it contained a large number of the enemy" was accomplished "in spite of repeated attacks and of continuous air and artillery bombardment."

77 Planes Downed

The Royal Air Force was credited with successful screening of the withdrawing troops. In "constant engagement with the enemy," the communique said, the Royal Air Force destroyed "over 77 enemy aircraft."

While news of the partly successful jamming of the Nazi trap was announced in Britain, the citizenry was warned by Home Secretary Sir John Anderson, that "there is every prospect of early call upon the civil defense," meaning that invasion of England appeared imminent.

He urged all units to keep "fully manned and in a state of readiness and efficiency."

Spectators viewed in tears and wrath tired and battered troops home from Flanders.

Communiques issued almost simultaneously on air, naval and land operations gave details of the perilous Channel battle.

"Latest reports show," the air ministry said, "that at least 77 enemy aircraft were destroyed by our fighters during the day.

"Meanwhile, Royal Air Force medium bombers were attacking enemy transport columns and armored fighting vehicles, destroying bridges and machine-gun emplacements."

Air Fields Raided

The communique said repeated attacks had been made upon German-held air fields, "causing extensives fires in hangars and surrounding buildings."

The admiralty said in reporting losses of the destroyers Grafton, Wakeful and Grenade and other vessels that "operations of this nature cannot be carried out without losses."

The Grafton and Grenade, both built in 1936, were of 1,335 tons each and carried 145 officers and men. Each carried four 4.7-inch guns, six smaller guns and eight torpedo tubes.

The Wakeful, 1,100 tons, was completed in 1917 and refitted in 1939. It carried four 4-inch guns and two heavy machine guns.

The transport lost was a small one, the Abukir, 689 tons.

The admiralty said "the next of kin of the casualties are being notified as details become available," presumably meaning that few rescues were made.

Vice Admiral Sir James Somerville assured the kingdom in a broadcast tonight that British naval forces are prepared to meet any kind of a German attempt at invasion.

Children Move Sunday

At the same time the health ministry said it might be necessary to broaden the areas of the east and southeast from which children are leaving next week.

Already 39,000 children, comprising 61 per cent of the school population of 15 cities, are ready for evacuation starting Sunday.

Health Minister Malcolmn Macdonald, in a broadcast, called on all parents to register their children for transfer, and declared the risk of early bombing was "real."

In the streets, the stores and the trains for the first time since the war started a reluctance to discuss the happenings is evident. Ashen-faced citizens, almost all of them awaiting word of a relative or a friend, can no longer bear to talk about it.

Returning soldiers stumbled in exhaustion into the trains that will take them inland.

The entire southeast coast of England has become a front line. Women and children are leaving. The government is expected to order all civilians out of the area soon.

If Germany consolidates her air bases on the French coast she will have her bombers five minutes away from England.

A Fight to the Finish

In official circles, a fight to the finish was promised.

Alfred Duff Cooper, minister of information, declared that Adolf Hitler no longer can have "the seat at the conference table which so long has awaited him." He added:

"The Allies are forces against which Hitler may deliver one defeat, two defeats, defeat upon defeat, but which I believe he cannot overcome."

That the channel fight strikes into virtually every British home was illustrated in today's news that the royal family had lost a member in action. The victim was Lord Frederick Cambridge, first cousin of King George.

Another probable victim was Capt. William Simpson, a naval hero who was decorated early this year. He is missing and believed dead.

Hitler 'Declaration' Awaited; May Be Call for Italy to Enter War

Many military observers also believe a deeper plunge into France is necessary for Germany before its forces can directly attack England with the fullest effect.

The German source which gave the figures on the present standing of the belligerent armies on the continent said that about a million of France's original 4,000,000 men under arms were dead, imprisoned or facing annihilation in the north of France.

Of the remaining 3,000,000, German sources estimated that 1,000,000 are needed as possible defenders against Italy. Another 1,000,000 are said to be lined up between the Somme and Aisne rivers protecting Paris. One million are said to be in the Maginot Line.

Germany's thundering guns and diving planes took terrific toll on the Allied flight from Flanders as the Nazi armies announced tonight capture of the veteran French general, Rene Jacques Adolphe Prioux, with uncounted hundreds of his battle-worn troops.

Prioux and his mechanized men had been fighting to hold open the outer end of the Allied corridor to the sea.

The Berlin radio said the 61-year-old general, commanding parts in the French First Army, was trapped yesterday with his entire staff at Seenvoorde, just east of Cassel—barely 20 miles from Dunkerque, France.

It was added that "the number of prisoners taken by the Germans cannot yet be estimated, even approximately."

The high command proclaimed "destruction" of the escaping armies of the Allies and their ships by the score.

Two whole flying corps, land guns, and even the leveled muzzles of antiaircraft weapons tore at the remnants of the British expeditionary force, struggling in the sea and along the coast between Dunkerque and Ostend.

Behind the British were the French, many of their units cut off from the shore, declared by the high command to be annihilated or laying down their arms, helpless, uncounted.

Dienst said the war is entering a wide open phase, and that the first great attack of the German air fleet in the Dunkerque-Ostend area was a prelude not only to increased air assaults but to intense submarine warfare, conducted from Belgium and Dutch bases.

Most Germans, watching straws in the wind, believe the fury of the land and air attack will descend within the next few weeks upon the French armies shielding Paris.

The German high command painted, in austere words, a grim picture of the plight of the Allies plunging off the Channel coast, almost within sight of the white cliffs of England.

"The bitter battle of Flanders and Artois is nearing the end with the destruction of the English and French armies fighting there," it "The English Expeditionary Force since yesterday is also in complete dissolution. Leaving enormous quantities of war materials behind, the English are fleeing seaward.

"Swimming and in small boats, the enemy is attempting to reach English ships lying in the roads outside the harbor, upon which our air force bore down with destructive effects."

The two flying corps which wrought such havoc at Dunkerque and Ostend were commanded by Gens. Von Richtofen and Gravert, the former a cousin of the late World War ace, Baron Manfred Von Richtofen.

Their bombs wrecked the anchorage locks at Dunkerque, making the harbor useless, and the British rescue ships had to stand out to sea.

Fires swept the town.

In addition to the three warships and 16 transports (claimed) sunk by the air force, the high command said ten warships and 21 merchantmen were damaged badly or set afire and that artillery and anti-aircraft sank one patrol boat and damaged 11 patrol boats or speedboats.

Eighty-nine Allied planes were destroyed through yesterday, 68 shot down in a vast battle over the channel.

Attacking from west, east and south, the German armies behind the coast trapped new Allied units, and, in a 12-mile pocket south of the industrial city of Lille, unnumbered Frenchmen were reported surrendering, all hope of escape gone.

Tonight, semiofficial advices from the front said the British and French still were resisting at some points in their trap, but the last shot will not be long delayed.

Said DNB, the German news agency: "The last act of the British Expenditionary Army, which set out to 'hang its washing on the Siegfried Line,' now is approaching."

It dismissed French attacks on the Somme front with the curt phrase: "Thrown back."

As to what will happen next, only Adolf Hitler, in his headquarters in the west, can decide.

Many military observers, however, believe a deeper plunge into France is necessary for the German army before it can start real operations against England.

If Italy comes into the war, they point out, her situation will be more favorable with the French armies engaged in protecting Paris on the north.

Trip Across Channel Almost as Punishing As Stay in Flanders

A Southeast Port in England, May 30 (AP).—Thousands of Britain's smashed army of Flanders, staggering with fatigue from the bloody 20-day failure across the Channel, landed on home soil tonight.

But many were lost on the narrow stretch of water that was turned all the way into a raging strip of fire.

With them were many French infantrymen; there were men who told in awe of the might of the German army and air force and of the cheapness with which life was held in Nazi columns.

Their trip across the Channel had been scarcely less punishing than the 20 days spent in ravaged Flanders.

One soldier thus described the embarkation:

"When we were hit (by bombs) we swam ashore, but when the ship didn't go down we swam back to her again to take her out of the harbor. But then she turned turtle and we had to swim again. Some of us were in the water for hours before we were picked up by a British warship."

Great Swarms of Planes

Telling of continuous air attacks from the very beginning of the Flanders campaign, they all declared it was the great swarms of German planes and the great weight of German numbers that finally pushed them off the Flemish plain.

Hospital ships as well as troopships were targets for Nazi bombs, they declared.

"Our fliers are magnificent," said one, "but it's volume that we need."

Another, telling of the Channel trip, thus philosophically described his troubles with a ship that had been hit:

"I was very thankful when after swimming 7 or 8 miles I was able to get hold of a table. Another fellow and I sat on it until we were picked up. All of us were almost naked and we have had no food since yesterday at midday and no sleep for three days.

"But it's back again now to help the army . . ."

Belgians Still Fight

"It's not only British troops we're bringing over," he explained, "but French and Belgians, too. The Belgian's don't want to give up fighting.

"If only they would give us more planes we could tell the Germans a different story. As it is, they have got as much as they have given, and we have not been bombing and machine gunning men in the water.

Five Belgian officers in the party declared they were astounded when the order came for the Belgian army to cease fighting.

One Belgian, speaking of King Leopold's capitulation, said angrily:

"I was asked to hand over my revolver. I immediately refused and with my companions I made for the coast. Finally we reached the British and French.

"We do not intend to stop fighting on orders of Leopold—and there are thousands of other Belgian soldiers of the same opinion. The British and French are still making a magnificent show in the north."

Withdrawals Continue

Withdrawals from Flanders, which already have cost the British three destroyers and a number of auxiliary craft, went on tonight while those remaining on the French side were fighting a great rearguard action to hold Dunkerque until the retreat is complete.

There was no indication of the total number of the British able to withdraw.

Over and over these returning men, many blood-stained and black with powder—emphasized the need for planes and more planes.

They told of Germans attacking in waves of 50 planes time after time, literally filling the air.

They accused the Nazi fliers of mass murder of refugees, flying 200 feet off the ground and sparing nobody—not even children.

Congress Gets Bill to Train Million Youths

Byrnes Asks Fund Providing Training For 300,000 in CCC

This country's first vast youth training program moved toward law yesterday.

Scheduled to provide national defense jobs and training for upwards of 1,000,000 between 16 and 24, the plan—forecast yesterday—would be speeded by legislation introduced in Congress during the day by Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina.

The Administration spokesman, acting with the approval of the President, asked that the relief bill be amended to provide for the training of Civilian Conservation Corps enrollees in noncombatant activities essential to the Army and Navy in wartime.

300,000 Affected in CCC

The Byrnes amendment would permit training of 300,000 enrollees in the maintenance of motor vehicles, road construction, photography, signal communication, cooking, first aid and other noncombatant activities.

Defense advisors pointed out that all these skills could fit quickly into Army and Navy needs in wartime, but it was vigorously emphasized that there is no intention in this plan to militarize the CCC, although there are several bills in Congress to this effect.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt worked on his second emergency defense message, announced yesterday, which will ask Congress for about $1,000,000,000, part of which would be spent for youth training under the direction of Sidney Hillman, new defense coordinator of labor problems.

Byrnes said that his proposal was prepared with the approval of Chief of Staff Gen. George C. Marshall, as well as with President Roosevelt's indorsement.

Would Expand Program

As plans to bring needy youth receiving Government aid into the defense program made progress, there were suggestions yesterday that young people not in need be offered similar work training.

If 1,000,000 youths are selected for training, as a minimum, they would come from the rolls of CCC, the National Youth Administration and the Works Projects Administration, it was said yesterday.

Byrnes also proposed yesterday an amendment to the $1,111,000,000 relief bill to earmark $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 of the relief money for use on national defense projects.

Meanwhile, David Lasser, president of the Workers Alliance, appealed to Congress for tripling of the relief funds, saying that the unemployed are "embittered material for un-American propaganda." He asked that defense appropriations be matched dollar-for-dollar by relief appropriations.

John W. Studebaker, commissioner of education, estimated that 750 trade schools and 150 engineering schools are ready to train 1,500,000 noncombatant workers a year, if required.

Nazi War Machine Loss Is 40%, U. S. General Says

By the Associated Press

Well-informed House members said yesterday Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, told a House appropriations subcommittee it was estimated that 40 per cent of the German army's mechanized equipment had been destroyed in the Nazi's desperate drive to the English Channel.

Members said this estimate gave rise to speculation that the tide of Europe's battle might turn in the near future in favor of the hard-pressed Allies, since it seemed that Germany's acknowledged superiority in mechanized equipment could not be maintained in the face of such terrific losses.

Woodruff Upholds Lindbergh's Views

Representative Woodruff, (Republican), of Michigan, yesterday challenged members of Congress to answer or criticize, sentence by sentence, the recent radio address in which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh called for "a definite policy" before proceeding with the national defense program and urged an end of "meddling" in European quarrels.

Recalling that 15 years ago the late Brig. Gen. William "Billy" Mitchell was "held up to public ridicule, abuse and condemnation; ostracized socially; damaged financially, and finally sent to his grave with a broken heart because he dared to warn this country of the potential power of airplanes," Representative Woodruff declared that the same sort of intolerance is now being met by Col. Lindbergh.

D. C. Lags in Red Cross Drive as Donations Total Only $58,556; Officials Renew Appeals

National Campaign For $20,000,000 Hits $4,378,335

The American Red Cross campaign for $20,000,000 to aid war victims was expected to follow a Memorial Day slowup with a spurt today, especially in Washington, where Government workers will be paid.

National headquarters announced that $4,378,335 had been raised. The gifts yesterday included four gold pieces worth $37.50 which were mailed in a brown paper wrapping by some anonymous donor.

Washington lagged behind the national average, having collected only $58,556.03 of its $300,000 quota. Otto Lund, manager of the Washington Chapter, appealed to citizens to make Memorial Day reverence to American war dead an occasion for succoring victims of the conflict in Europe.

Lund Issues Appeal

"I entreat you in the name of the Christ," said Lund, "to help us, that we may be enabled to give at least the barest comforts, the meagerest food and some semblance of shelter and clothing to the 5,000,000 pitiful women, children and old men who are wandering on the fringes of the blood-soaked battlefields, tortured by crashing shells and bombs."

Next week nine packing cases of clothes and surgical dressings from Washington will be shipped on the relief ship McKeesport. Lund said two consignments of serums and surgical implements had been sent to England by clipper.

William Green, president, and George Meany, secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, called on labor "to do its full part at this tragic period in the world's history."

Labor Asked to Give

"We are appealing to all national and international unions, State federations of labor, city central bodies and directly chartered unions," the officers said, "to respond to this humanitarian appeal and to make such financial contributions as may be possible."

"The moment has arrived when we must make personal sacrifices. We can assure the officers and members of the American Federation of Labor that the need for help and assistance is very great. The probabilities are that, even though we give generously and freely we cannot meet more than the minimum requirements of suffering humanity. Let us do that, at least.

"Give individually out of your earnings and your savings.

"Give out of your treasuries in such amounts as you may find it possible to contribute."

5,000,000 Now Refugees

Meanwhile, the number of hungry and homeless war refugees swarming across France was placed at more than 5,000,000 by the International Red Cross and the League of Red Cross societies at Geneva, Switzerland. Their plight was described as "desperate."

The international groups called on 22 national organizations in Europe, Asia and Latin America to match the cooperation of the American Red Cross.

Lund reminded those being asked for money, that every cent of the war relief fund is being used for actual relief and that none of the $20,000,000 being collected will go for administrative purposes.

The national campaign, said Lund, has the services of fewer than 25 paid workers, thousands of others giving their labor as well as contributions. This is true in Europe, too, where volunteer workers do much of the work of operating the Paris headquarters, which has only five paid workers to direct relief in Belgium, France, England, Luxembourg, Norway and Finland.

TEMPLE BAILEY

"How can any one realize the misery of the war refugees without being miserable himself?" asked Miss Temple Bailey, author of "The Tin Soldier," "The Gay Cockade" and other books, yesterday. "How can any one think of those pitiful old people, those shuddering mothers and hungry babies and be happy himself?" she added. "And isn't doing something to help them the way to relieve one's own feeling? This really is a time to "give 'till it stops hurting.'" Miss Bailey backed up her appeal with a $500 check to the American Red Cross war relief fund

Envoys Express Thanks

Gratitude for the quickness of American Red Cross action in sending relief to their stricken people was expressed last night by Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, Minister from Norway, and Dr. A. Loudon, Minister from The Netherlands, in a radio broadcast in connection with the Red Cross appeal for funds.

In matter-of-fact statements which needed no embellishment to indicate the magnitude of the relief problem, the envoys answered questions in an interview over Station WJSV.

Dr. Loudon said that in addition to many Netherlands citizens who sought refuge in England, approximately 50,000 reached Paris. "The American Red Cross, I have been told, sent 1,000,000 francs, or approximately $20,000 to aid them," he said.

"At the same time, $100,000 was cabled to London to assist the British Red Cross in caring for Dutch, Belgian and French evacuees. Also thousands of garments were sent from America to help clothe the refugees," Dr. Loudon pointed out.

Morgenstierne told how the American Red Cross established a credit of $25,000 with the British Red Cross in London "for the immediate purchase of drugs and medicines, which were urgently needed in Norway." In addition, $10,000 was cabled to the American minister in Sweden for relief of Norwegian refugees," he said.

Word has been received that those funds have been exhausted, he said, and Red Cross headquarters there has cabled $10,000 more to Stockholm for refugee aid.

News Guild Elects Slate Committed To 'No Politics'

The Washington Newspaper Guild Wednesday elected a slate of delegates to the American Newspaper Guild convention on a platform advocating leaving "politics to the politicians" and moving national headquarters from New York City.

Those elected were Robert M. Buck, of the Washington News; Elisabeth May Craig, correspondent of the Portland (Me.) Press-Herald; Julius Edelstein, of United Press, and Barney Taylor, of The Post. Alternates were Una Franklin, Times-Herald; James D. Secrest, Post; William Ring, Times-Herald, and Al Toombs, Star.

Chosen for the W. N. G. executive committee were Thomas L. Stokes, Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance; Virginia Kraich, United Press, and Nate Robertson, P. M.

Nearly 7% Of U. S. Income Goes for Arms

Amount Is Still Small in Contrast To Foreign Spending

By John L. Beckley,
Associated Press Statistician

New York, May 30.—The increase in the American defense expenditures for the year to $4,300,000,000 means that about 6½ per cent of our national income will go for armament, if the rate of income continues around currently estimated levels.

This is a big slice, but small compared with what major foreign powers have been spending, even before they went to war. Only rough estimates are available, but currently they are believed to be pouring out from 25 to 50 per cent of their national income for war.

Wall Streeters took the view this big expense budget will have to be met largely by borrowing, although the present plan in Administration circles to boost Federal taxes by 10 per cent might pay off the total in six or eight years, on the basis of current estimates.

Also, another thing which some believe, is that the big arming program announced for this year, probably will not be discontinued next year.

With the situation changing rapidly, accurate estimates as to the amount foreign powers are spending on arms and war cannot be had, but most authorities have lately placed England's and France's combined rate of expenditure at $15,000,000,000 annually, and Germany alone at about the same. This, of course, means actual spending, and does not include cost of property damaged or destroyed in warfare.

Canada Rounds Up 8 Leaders Of Dominion Fascist Party

Mounties Crack Down on Blackshirts In Before-Dawn Raids; 'Fuehrer,' Aides Face Charges Under War Defense Act

By the Associated Press

Montreal, May 30.—Royal Canadian Mounted Police cracked down today on the National Unity (Fascist) Party, arresting and arraigning in court eight of its top leaders on charges under the defense of Canada regulations.

The blow against the Fascist organization came after police sifted through a mass of evidence seized a week ago in more than 20 raids on homes and offices of leaders and members of the party.

Arrested and arraigned today were the following:

Adrien Arcand, self-styled National Fuehrer; Dr. Noel Decarie, national treasurer; Hughes Clement, provincial adjutant of the party legionnaires; Maurice Scott, leader of the party's uniformed guards; Henri Arcand, national director of transport; Marius Gatien, national adjutant of the legionnaires, and G. R. Barck, party organizer at nearby Ville St. Laurent.

Striking swiftly before dawn, squads of police rounded up Scott, Henri Arcand, Gatien, and Barck. Meantime, other members of the force arrested Adrien Arcand and Decarie at Arcand's summer home at Nomingue, Que., more than 100 miles north of here in the Laurentian Mountains.

The men were charged under sections of the defense of Canada regulations which make it an offense for anyone to spread reports or make statements likely to interfere with prosecution of the war.

The Canadian Legion today urged the Dominion government to speed the war effort by taking "immediate steps to conscript manpower, wealth, national resources, business, industry and other institutions."

The legion decided upon advice of its newly elected president, Alex Walker of Calgary, to send a "small committee" of its Dominion Council to Ottawa to discuss the situation with the Canadian government officials.

Judge Tells Sailor To Battle Only For His Country

Otis Allen, 23, a seaman attached to the Naval Air Station, was brought into Police Court yesterday on a charge of disorderly conduct—fighting in the street.

Arrested early yesterday at Nichols avenue and Good Hope road southeast, after a minor brawl with a soldier from Bolling Field, the sailor told Judge George D. Neilson the fight was a result of a long feud.

"An old Army-Navy feud?" the judge asked. Allen replied that the feud was a personal one and had nothing to do with the service.

"You'd better save yourself for any fighting you may have to do as a member of this country's armed forces," Judge Neilson warned, suspending sentence.

Refugee Ship Fares Allotted To U. S. Needy

State Department To Help Americans Short of Cash

By the Associated Press

A State Department official said yesterday the department had allotted funds from its own limited appropriations to enable needy Americans to travel home from Europe aboard the President Roosevelt.

Congress gave the State Department a special fund of $500,000 last autumn for special war emergency work. Most of this was expended at that time, when around 80,000 Americans were brought back from Europe.

A portion of the fund also was required for the many transfers of Foreign Service officers necessitated by the war.

London, May 30 (AP).—Three hundred dollars each stands between 300 to 400 "destitute" Americans and safe passage home from the war danger zone, authoritative embassy sources disclosed today.

The $300 is required for passage on the liner Roosevelt, due at Galway, Ireland, Saturday. The ship left New York May 24 to pick up refugees and is expected to start back as soon next week as passengers can be taken aboard.

About 300 Americans who have booked passage traveled through Dublin to the port today on a special train with Commander N. R. Hitchcock, assistant naval attache of the United States Embassy in London.

Three to four hundred others were said to be "so poor they hesitate to sign primissory notes to the Government for $300 which they feel they never will be able to repay."

The American Refugee Society, which in September interviewed hundreds of applicants, has been helping with "small loans."

Officials at the American Legation in Dublin recalled that many now applying for passage loans refused to quit the danger zone when the United States sent five ships last September after the outbreak of war.

Extraordinary precautions were being taken for the arrival of the Roosevelt. Only passengers and a few officials will be allowed aboard. The dock will be guarded by police.

In the American party with Commander Hitchcock were Mrs. Robert Montgomery, whose movieland husband has joined an ambulance unit in France, and Robert Sweeney, amateur golfer, whose name has been coupled with Barbara Hutton, American heiress.

Taber's Charges 'Not True,' Writes Secretary Perkins

Secretary Perkins, called a "notorious incompetent" by Representative Taber (Republican), of New York, retorted Wednesday that her regime had "cleared up irregularities and dishonest situations" found in the immigration service when she took control in 1933.

Miss Perkins wrote Taber she felt compelled to label as "not true" his assertion in House debate Monday that she "has steadily and steadfastly failed and refused to enforce the immigration law, and continuously admitted and kept here those who were not entitled to stay."

When she took office in 1933, she continued, she was confronted "by clear evidences of corruption in certain offices."

"It was our duty to correct these things and we did so," she added.

"The changes made, at times misrepresented by some, were designed to improve the system.

"They have cleared up irregularities and . . . accomplished many of the reforms badly needed and recommended in the report of President Hoover's Wickersham Committee in 1931."

DR. GEORGE J. MEAD, named to assist Secretary Morgenthau in purchasing planes and parts, yesterday announced at a press conference that England had turned the patents on its prize airplane motor over to the United States to facilitate production of engines for both the American and Allied air fleets. The motor is the "Merlin," a 12-cylinder, liquid-cooled Rolls-Royce, as used in powering British "Spitfires" and "Hurricanes"

U. S. Suggests Ecuador Oust Nazi Airlines

By Frank L. Kluckhohn

Copyright by New York Times

The United States Government is holding conversations with Ecuador looking toward elimination of the German-operated Sedta Airline there. The presence of about 100 German planes in South America, most of them openly or covertly operated by German pilots, has caused concern, in view of the European developments.

It has been suggested in friendly fashion that Ecuador displace the Sedta service with a local one in which American equipment would be used, official quarters said. Ecuador has countered by saying that it has no real objections, but the German service gives many free rides and has established low rates.

As a result of day-by-day study of the German air situation in Latin America, this Government has information that most of the German ships in use are 17-passenger trimotored Junkers which could easily be used as bombers.

It also has learned that about 50 per cent of the German pilots have been naturalized, or have taken out papers, in the countries where they are flying and that a system of air fields, essentially German controlled, extend through Brazil, Bolivia, Peru, Chile, Ecuador and into Argentina.

As Nazi organizations and sympathizers in South America become more vocal in the light of the German army's advances in Europe, the feeling is growing in official circles here that these planes and pilots constitute a danger not only to the internal peace of some Latin-American states, but, perhaps, a threat to the Panama Canal as well.

The United States and Colombia, in cooperative fashion, worked out what is believed here to be a satisfactory solution of the situation created by the activities of German pilots on the Sedta Lines in Colombia, near the Panama Canal. Although only two German planes are in the Sedta service in Ecuador, that country lies just south of Colombia, and for that reason presumably was next on the list.

According to information here, the situtaion is more alarming, however, in Brazil, where the Condor Line, a local subsidiary of the Deutsche Lufthansa, operates 24 or 25 planes and has access to about 50 air fields, many of them on the coast. Five or six Lufthansa planes were turned over to Condor when Lufthansa halted its transatlantic air service at the start of war.

The Varig line in the southern Brazilian State of Rio Grande do Sul is ostensibly domestically owned, but information here is that Germans in that state actually control the line.

In Peru, within possible striking distance of the Panama Canal, the Lufthansa still operates under its own name.

In Bolivia, key to central South America, Aero-Lloyd still operates despite the war.

By the United Press

Representative Andrew J. May (Democrat), Kentucky, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, yesterday called on Latin American Republics to evidence their willingness to cooperate in defending the Western Hemisphere against invasion by granting the United States permission to establish air bases in strategic locations.

May also urged, in an interview with the United Press, that Central and South American nations take immediate and drastic steps to eliminate "fifth column" elements. Recent reports have indicated considerable subversive activity in several countries, notably Mexico ond Panama. These governments claim to have the situation in hand, however.

"Th United States," May said, "is the greatest producer, has the greatest resources, and is the most powerful Nation of this Hemisphere. It naturally can be expected to bear the heaviest burden in defense of the New World. But Latin American nations must assume proportionate responsibilities in the defense program.

"The chief contribution they can make is to permit the United States to establish air bases and fortifications in some of their territories, particularly in strategic areas to defense of the Panama Canal."

Nazis Bomb Nonmilitary Town in France

Ruthless Raids Cease as Allies Take Reprisals

By P. J. Philip

Copyright by New York Times

With the French Armies in Eastern France, May 30.—In the course of a long trip by automobile today from Paris to near the fateful battlefield of Sedan I passed a little town of about 17,000 population which is farther than Paris is from any present or past fighting.

When I last passed through it on May 10 it was a busy, prosperous-looking place, orderly and active, but in no special way engaged in the war. There were only a few elderly soldiers who directed the traffic and a few Red Cross trains in the railroad sidings ready for wounded, of whom, until then, there had been very few.

It is a little town of specially interesting history, for its predecessor was burned to the ground in the medieval wars and it was rebuilt by order of the King. Today, it has largely succumbed to the fate of its predecessor.

On one afternoon about two weeks ago 400 houses were burned down by German incendiary bombs. The planes sailed over about 5 o'clock, coming from the west, out of the sun, and although there was time for nearly everybody to take to the air raid shelters, they could save nothing. These 400 houses are a mass of blackened rubble out of which personal furniture is being salvaged with difficulty by its former orders and the military.

No kind of military objective could have been served by this burning of a town which was not even on the German route of march. And as if enough damage had not been done, the planes came back a few days later and dropped heavier explosive bombs on a different quarter, killing and wounding about 120 people.

It was in revenge for that second raid that the Allied planes bombed some German towns, and since then it is to be noted this part of France has been left alone by the German bombers.

These pitiful wrecked homes, of which there are now so many in France, at Amiens, in Cambrai, in Arras and an ever growing list of towns, cannot be rebuilt by reprisals, and yet it is the most natural thing in the world for those who see all their little possessions destroyed to demand that the same treatment should be meted out to the towns and villages of the destroyer.

Is this war, then, going to continue in this way? It is just as ruthless, just as senseless as anything that was ever done a thousand years ago in human history. Perhaps more so, because then at least the destroyers had the justification of passion. To drop incendiary bombs on a little town like this by the release of an automatic spring from an airplane flying in perfect security because there was no defense has not that justification of passion. It seems much more nearly to resemble the worst kind of vice.

Col. J. T. Ryan, Capital G.A.R. Veteran, Dies

93, Was Last Survivor Of Historic Eleventh Maryland Regiment

Col. John T. Ryan, 93, last survivor of the historic Eleventh Maryland Regiment and one of the last three Civil War veterans living in Washington, died yesterday at his home, 119 Eighth street southeast, while the country paid tribute to his comrades who had passed before him.

Ill at his home for the past four months, the veteran's only complaint was that his feet had a "bad ache." At his home where three succeeding generations were gathering, his widow, Mrs. Sally Gates Ryan, last night tried to reconstruct the career of her husband.

Col. Ryan was born March 3, 1847, in Baltimore. He ran away to enlist in the Maryland Eleventh Volunteers, while two brothers, William and Joseph, joined the Confederates. Under Gen. Lew Wallace, author of "Ben Hur," he served at the battle of Monocracy where Confederate Gen. Jubal Early was turned back in his thrust on Washington.

Fought Indians

Without a scratch he also came through the battle of South Mountain, Frederick and numerous skirmishes. After Appomattox he spent three years fighting Indians in the West with the Sixth Cavalry.

Mrs. Ryan last night recalled that her husband had indirectly saved the life of his brother, William, when he was captured by Union soldiers. Their mother appealed to President Lincoln who is reputed to have said, "The boy under Grant will save your son under Lee."

In 1889 he came to Washington from Baltimore and entered the Navy Yard as a moulder. His knowledge of guns later got him the job of training seamen in the use of arms for 20 years.

For 14 years, up to the time of his last illness, Col. Ryan was employed at the executive door of the Capitol. The walls of his apartment home are lined with photographs showing him with important personages, including President Theodore Roosevelt and the present First Lady.

A member of Kit Carson Post of the G. A. R., he was a former senior vice commander of the Department of the Potomac. His title of "Colonel" he obtained by virtue of his long service with the G. A. R. For 75 years he had been a member of Millington Lodge, No. 166, of the Masons, in Baltimore.

Surviving, besides his wife, are a son, William T. Ryan, of Washington; three daughters, Mrs. George H. Ryan, of Washington, Mrs. Rose E. Ryan, of Brentwood, Md., and Mrs. Willard R. Pratt, of Utica, N. Y.; nine grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren.

Col. Ryan's body will lie in the Wilson Memorial Methodist Church, 754 Eeventh street southeast, from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m. Monday. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

U. S. Ambulance Driver Tells Of War's Terror on the Somme

By Horace W. Fuller.

Written for the United Press

Paris, May 30.—I have just returned from duty with the French armies in the field, where I have been driving an ambulance in the Amiens sector.

The following is from notes I wrote describing my experiences during the past ten days.

I was in an advanced dressing station in a wheat field on the south bank of the river Somme. I looked about a mile ahead into the city of Amiens. It was being bombed. German planes were coming over hour after hour dropping high explosives and incendiary bombs. Most of the city was in flames. The thirteenth century cathedral, however, was still intact.

Every load of wounded we carry pays its toll in dead to the low-flying bombers and new "strafing machines." These latter have perfected murder by installing machine guns, not in the nose, but in the floor of the plane so that it needs only to fly level at tree height and spray the roads with death. Along the road there are about 10 dead bodies every 100 yards.

On Monday morning, May 20, about 1 o'clock, our section of 16 ambulances was ordered up to Amiens. All along the route we saw gasoline depots blow up mysteriously. In Amiens we found only one gendarme, who guided us to a hospital. Dead and wounded were lying around. Many were dying because there are not enough physicians for operations. We picked our way through bomb-pitted streets and sheets of flame with about 50 wounded, mostly refugees. Even our kitchen truck was pressed into service.

For 72 hours we worked without sleep, transferring wounded from battlefields and the desolation of towns to ambulance trains. When we did get time to sleep, we spread blankets on the ground because the smell of blood was too strong in ambulances, hospitals or railway stations. Eighteen ambulances have carried about 3,000 wounded in five days.

The Germans bombed Beauvis as we were trying to empty the hospitals. We had only time to evacuate the less seriously wounded. The dead and dying were left. We were not able to rescue many supplies—just a small amount and also some wine.

We returned four days later and buried the dead.

Thursday, May 23, I saw a Frenchman flying a Morane attack 27 German bombers. One German fell in flames like a huge goose.

Near Beauvais I was driving one of six small ambulances called to evacuate the wounded in a little town of about 1,500 people. Suddenly we heard the roar of nine bombers. We took as many wounded as possible and raced for the outskirts to hide under trees while bombs dropped like huge hailstones.

I am in Paris for a couple of days' rest. Tomorrow I am going back to those battle scenes.

Screen Writers' Guild, Exhibitors Attack Neely Bill

By the Associated Press

The Neely Bill to outlaw block booking and blind selling of motion picture films was attacked yesterday by the Screen Writers Guild and numerous small independent exhibitors.

Mrs. J. K. Berette, of San Antonio, asserted before a House Interstate Commerce subcommittee that the bill was a "vicious and perennial legislative nuisance," and protested against Congressional "tinkering" with the motion picture industry. She said she represented the motion picture committee of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs.

Ralph Block described objections of the Screen Writers Guild as directed principally at provisions of the measure requiring producers to present a synopsis of each picture to exhibitors in advance of booking.

Hugh W. Bruen, of Whittier, Calif., representing the independent theaters of southern California and Arizona, said independent exhibtors believed the legislation would impose a "heavy load" on small exhibitors by forcing them to contract for pictures singly instead of in blocks.

Art Jury Chosen For Museum Show

Selection of a jury to select winners at its annual art exhibition in the New National Museum Monday was announced yesterday by the Association of Federal Architects.

The jury will include George Nelson, associate editor of Architectural Forum Magazine; Louis Skidmore, of a New York architect firm, and Louis Justement, past president of the Washington Chapter of the A. I. A.

The exhibit will be open to the public through June, starting Tuesday.

Adm. Glennon U. S. Navy Gun Expert, Dies

Rear Admiral James Henry Glennon, 83, who began his career on wooden ships of the old Navy and did not retire until most of today's steel dreadnaughts were commissioned, died yesterday in his apartment at 2122 California avenue northwest.

Admiral Glennon's research into ballistics had a large part in the developing of the cannon he first fired into the deadly, long-range rifles of the modern fleet.

Already in place are the mementoes of his work. They are the 13-inch shell holes ripped in the Spanish cruiser Reina Mercedes by guns Admiral Glennon helped design and then fired himself when he was a combat officer on the Massachusetts in the Spanish-American War.

Born in Shasta County, Calif., February 11, 1857, Admiral Glennon was the first native Californian to be graduated from the Naval Academy, where he became one of the service's finest mathematicians. After his graduation he was one of an expedition which surveyed the west coast of Central America.

Later Admiral Glennon was assigned to Annapolis, where he became an expert in ordnance and wrote several treatises, in which he computed original formulae which became cornerstones of the growing science of ballistics.

The Admiral commanded the forward gun turret of the battleship Massachusetts in the Spanish War in 1898. He directed the fire when his vessel pounced on the cruiser Reina Mercedes as it tried to flee after the battle of Santiago. The Spanish ship was sunk. Later it was raised and now is stationed at the Naval Academy.

Admiral Glennon was executive officer of the Vicksburg and a member of the joint Army and Navy expedition which participated with Gen. Fred Funston in the capture of Aguinaldo, leader in the Philippine Rebellion.

Following his Philippine service, Admiral Glennon was assigned to the Bureau of Ordnance in Washington. He was commandant of the Navy Yard and superintendent of the Naval gun factory here in 1916 and 1917.

When America entered the World War, Admiral Glennon was the naval member of the Elihu Root Commission to Russia.

At Sebastopol, Admiral Glennon found that the Russian Black Sea fleet bluejackets had revolted and jailed their officers in the uprising that resulted in overthrow of the Kerensky government, which is regarded by Naval officials as the beginning of the Bolshevist movement.

Unperturbed, he parleyed with the de facto commanders and they invited him to address the enlisted men of the fleet. Admiral Glennon's hour-long address so moved the bluejackets that they restored their officers to duty.

Admiral Glennon returned from Russia to command a squadron of the Atlantic Fleet in the World War. Subsequently he was commandant of the Third Naval District with headquarters at New York. He retired there February 11, 1921.

Admiral Glennon is survived by his wife, two sons, Commander James B. Glennon, in charge of the Naval Office Laboratory here, who lives at 2812 Courtland place, and Lieut. Comdr. Harrison Randolph Glennon, retired, New York, and a sister, Miss Lsabel Glennon, of San Francisco.

Funeral services will be at 10:30 a. m. Saturday, in Fort Myer chapel, with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

McNutt Quits Race, Declares For 3d Term

U. S. Defense Needs Call for Roosevelt's Leadership, He Says

McNutt, a self-announced candidate only "if" the President does not run, has made no gesture of withdrawal and friends anticipated no statement from him. Secretary of State Hull, still promoted by his friends on his foreign affairs record, has never varied from firm assertions of no presidential ambitions.

President Roosevelt, silent through all of the stormy primary battles for his renomination, has yet personally to answer the query: "Will he run?" Rank and file Democrats have assumed that he will.

Known to Roosevelt

McNutt's withdrawal from the race and declaration for a third term was made with the knowledge of President Roosevelt, it was reliably understood.

The former Indiana Governor and former Philippines High Commissioner who came to Washington to handle the largest of the President's new independent agencies, made his declaration after addressing annual Memorial day ceremonies at the Arlington memorial amphitheater.

McNutt's statement of withdrawal, voicing "sincere hope" that the President will accept renomination, struck the strong preparedness theme.

Questions of two-term precedents, McNutt said, because "insignificant in view of the danger to our security and the hopes or desires of any individuals must be subordinated to the National interest."

"It is true," he said, "that there are able men in both parties who are capable of directing the affairs of the Nation under ordinary circumstances. But the emergency which faces us is so critical that it requires the strong leadership and wealth of experience in world affairs that the President alone can provide."

In stepping aside, McNutt asserted that "at every cost, America must maintain a unity and solidarity which will enable us to throw our entire strength into the task of preparing to face a hostile world." He said the country is behind the President and his foreign policy and believes that in his leadership lies the best hope of peace."

Organization Turned Over

At McNutt headquarters in Indianapolis, Frank McHale, his campaign manager, said the McNutt organization would be maintained, to work for the renomination of Mr. Roosevelt. McHale said in McNutt's 16,000-mile trip cross-country, he "found a sentiment for the President that caused him to lay aside any personal ambitions to promote the national welfare."

McNutt's entry into the Presidential race last year was accompanied by reports that he was Mr. Roosevelt's chosen heir. Third term forces, led by Secretary of Interior Ickes, speedily spiked this report. Yet McNutt remained consistently on good terms with the President and obtained White House assent to his recent stump tour.

He withdrew after the third term drive had turned largely to a hunt for a Vice Presidential candidate to team with the President. Both Garner and Wheeler had received consideration for the role, despite protestations of no such ambitions. The New Dealers insist that neither Garner, Farley nor Wheeler will show an opposition hand in the final analysis, but will join in the end in the third term effort.

Price Names 11-Man Council To Coordinate Defense Plans

Meshing of State's Steps Toward Industrial And Military Preparedness With U. S. Efforts Declared Group's Objective

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., May 30.—Upon an eleven-man Virginia defense council Governor Price has placed responsibility for meshing this commonwealth's steps toward military and industrial preparedness with the national defense plan.

The council, which is to be headed by Dr. Douglas Freeman, editor of the Richmond News-Leader and chairman of the Virginia State planning board, will have, said the governor, the "loyal assistance and cooperation" of all citizens, State agencies and "private interests, individual and corporate."

"The council," he said, "will survey and estimate the Virginia situation in relation to adequate national military and industrial preparedness and State needs, formulate plans for the prompt and efficient mobilization and use of the industrial facilities, natural resources and manpower of the commonwealth required for effective national defense, and cooperate, as the State's coordinating authority, with the national defense commission and other agencies of the United States."

Vice Chairman of the council will be W. J. Jenks, of Roanoke, president of the Norfolk and Western Railway Co., and the group coordinator will be Lieut. Col. Mills F. Neal, who is a member of the State staff of the Virginia national guard, a leader in the Richmond light infantry blues and president of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce.

The other eight members named by the governor were James S. Easley, of Halifax, president of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce; Homer L. Ferguson, of Newport News, president of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co.; Maj. Gen. C. E. Kilbourne, of Lexington, superintendent of V. M. I.; Dwight Morgan, of Norfolk, president of the Virginia Manufacturers Association; State Labor Commissioner Thomas Morton, Highway Commissioner Henry Shirley, Agricultural Commissioner L. M. Walker, jr., and Brig. Gen. S. Gardner Waller, the adjutant general of Virginia.

Brig. Gen. Waller, Virginia's adjutant general, said today that with the completion of five projects authorized this year the State's National Guard units would have their finest armory facilities in history.

Armory construction recently approved includes: Covington, $15,000; Clifton Forge, $15,000; Chase City, $12,000; Winchester, $15,000, and Fredericksburg, $2,400.

Nine new armories have been constructed within the past few years at a tota cost exceeding $700,000. The new structures at Newport at a total cost exceeding $700,000 units while new single unit armories have been built at Charlottesville, Blacksburg, Petersburg, Emporia, Blackstone, Hampton and Berryville.

Lack of Nazi Aid To Defeat Japan, Newsman Says

Falling off in German aid to Japan as a result of the European war has helped "swing the balance" in the Sino-Japanese War to China, Frank Oliver, veteran correspondent in the Far East, declared last night in a lecture at the George Washington University Hall of Government.

Japan, becoming steadily less able economically to support the long struggle in China, has been on the defensive for the last 18 months, Oliver now Reuters representative here asserted.

Chinese forces, meanwhile, are slowly but surely gaining momentum in the drive to dislodge Japanese forces the newspaperman said.

Principal factors in initial gains by Japan, Oliver said, were owing to a "visible Trojan Horse" of 7,000 Japanese troops sent into North China well before the commencement of hostilities in July, 1937, as well as an "amazing espionage system," and highly efficient communications methods.

Raise U. S. Income To Pay for Arms, Willkie Urges

Topeka, Kans., May 30 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie, arriving for a brief visit with Alf M. Landon, told a crowd which greeted him at the railroad station today:

"The lights of liberty are going out in Europe today one by one. The only thing this fellow Hitler respects is strength. The way to make this Nation strong is to show that we can make an industrial and agricultural system function under the democratic process."

"The President is a piker," Willkie told the gathering, "when he talks about bringing the annual income up to $80,000,000. I say we can make it $150,000,000. That's the only way we are going to avoid back-breaking taxes for national defense."

Mystery Death Of Banker's Son Investigated

Westminster, Md., May 30 (AP).—Authorities continued an investigation tonight in an effort to determine the cause of injuries that proved fatal to Norman Boyle, r., 13, son of a Westminster banker and civic leader.

The youth, his clothing torn and dirty, was found by companions last night leaning against a tree near the high school. Crying and unable to say how he had been hurt, the boy was taken home.

When his condition became worse early today he was rushed to Baltimore by ambulance, where he died on the operating table of a blood clot on the brain.

Investigators said the youth may have fallen from a high wall in an alley near the high school. His hat was found some feet away. After reaching home, the boy collapsed. A Westminster physician said the youth had a small bump on his head, but after being revived, Norman could not account for the injury.

3 Battleships Arrive Today At Annapolis

Anchoring to Herald Opening of Middies' June Week Rites

Annapolis, Md., May 30 (AP).—The battleships New York, Texas and Arkansas will arrive early tomorrow morning off Annapolis. They will take the new first and third classes on a summer practice cruise to the Canal Zone and South American waters, leaving June 8.

A life-sized bronze bust of the late Admiral William S. Sims, commander of the United States fleet in European waters during the World War, will be presented at 3 p. m. to Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, academy superintendent.

A group of alumni will present the bust—a gift of the Naval Academy Association of New York—at ceremonies at Memorial Hall.

At 4:35 p. m. the graduating class will be granted permission to drive automobiles within the city limits. They also may take guests for cruises in Naval Academy boats, with underclass midshipmen acting as crew members, and play golf at nearby courses.

At 8 p. m. tomorrow, the academy alumni will revive an old custom by gathering in Bancroft Hall for a reunion dinner. Meanwhile the finals of the Quarterdeck Society public speaking contest will be held in Mahan Hall. The victorious midshipman will receive a gold watch.

The baccalaureate sermon to the graduates will be delivered at 10:45 a. m. Sunday by Chaplain William N. Thomas in the academy chapel. Only first classmen and their relatives and friends will attend.

Services for the second, third and fourth classes will be held prior to the baccalaureate sermon.

Miss Perkins Hits Back

In an open letter addressed to Representative Taber, Secretary of Labor Perkins answers his charge that she has "steadily and steadfastly failed and refused to enforce the immigration law and continuously admitted and kept here those who were not entitled to stay."

As the agitation over the Bridges case revealed, certain members of Congress have very little regard for the rights of aliens under our laws. Their irritation is directed against the Secretary of Labor because she has consistently emphasized those rights and called attention to the dangers of dealing arbitrarily and hastily with alien groups. The stress thus laid upon fair dealing and humane treatment on the part of the authorities does not imply ineffective enforcement of the laws, as some Congressmen too hastily conclude.

In her able reply Secretary Perkins is not content with a categorical denial of Congressman Taber's charges. She notes the steps that have been taken under her administration of the immigration laws to prevent illegal entry and speed deportation of aliens illegally in the country. It is certainly desirable to have these innovations called to public attention. Perhaps the Secretary of Labor has been too modest in failing to publicize her achievements and too tolerant of unfair criticism.

The reason for her customary silence in face of attack—so markedly in contrast to the explosive tactics of certain members of the Cabinet—is revealed in the letter to Mr. Taber. So long as her personal competency alone is challenged, Miss Perkins explains, she does not believe it in the interest of the public "to raise personal objections to the free expression of opinion, however unfavorable."

But unsubstantiated charges of deliberate failure to enforce laws, for whose administration the Secretary of Labor is responsible, are not merely personal attacks. They concern not only the head of the department but all the major officials and minor Government employes who help to administer the immigration law.

In reminding Mr. Taber that his attack was made under a rule of immunity, the Secretary of Labor makes a suggestion which should be heeded. It is that their protected status implies for Congressmen a self-imposed obligation to avoid misrepresentation in bringing accusations which reflect upon the character or competence of administrative officers who cannot speak for themselves.

Idiotic Formality

Shipments of implements of war to the Allies are being seriously hampered by certain restrictions, applied under the Neutrality Law, which obviously are of no value whatsoever in preserving neutrality.

Their only utility is to make it more difficult to fill the commercial orders which the law allows. This situation is the less tolerable because it is so clearly at variance with the universal demand that all aid consistent with existing neutrality legislation should be given the Allies forthwith.

A case in point is the regulation which forces American airplanes, sold to Canada for shipment to Great Britain in foreign bottoms, to be grounded at the border, then pushed by hand into Canadian territory, and then flown on again after transfer of title has taken place.

Secretary Hull on Wednesday amended the regulations to the extent that United States nationals may now fly these planes over the maritime provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. This means that Canadian pilots will not have to take control of the planes at the border, and are thereby released for combat duty in the war zone.

But the objectionable restriction about landing the planes on this side of the Canadian border and then rolling them across the frontier is, seemingly, still in operation. This means not merely delay, but also that the planes may cross the line only at points where there are natural landing fields, extending on both sides of the border.

In cooperation with the Canadian authorities, a further regulation should be issued permitting United States nationals to fly belligerent aircraft direct from the factory, where transfer of title could be made, to the Canadian port of shipment. It is merely a matter of reasonable interpretation of the law. There is no apparent need for Congressional assent, even though this could doubtless be immediately obtained.

Room For Expansion

When the Temporary National Economic Committee was holding hearings on investment and savings problems a number of witnesses declared that the United States has reached a static period of economic development which offers inadequate outlets for capital funds.

Dr. Alvin Hansen, of Harvard, one of the most persuasive exponents of this pessimistic doctrine, stressed the declining rate of growth of population and the lack of important industrial innovations as major causes of the check to industrial expansion. In his opinion, the situation requires the Government to step into the breach and put to use the savings that private industry can no longer effectively employ.

A number of other witnesses, among them several Government officials and well-known economists, shared Dr. Hansen's view that the United States has entered a period of "industrial maturity" which necessitates an expansion of Government enterprise in order to solve unemployment and investment problems.

The Brookings Institution has just published a study entitled "Capital Expansion, Employment and Economic Stability" which very convincingly refutes these assumptions. On the basis of detailed analyses of the financial status of industrial corporations, the investigators assert that several billions of additional capital would be required to finance a strong expansion movement. The evidence does not support a widespread belief that many large corporations are now independent of outside credit. "With any pronounced industrial expansion," it is said, "the demands upon the financial markets would be of a magnitude comparable to those of any period in the past."

The study also notes that in the past a decreasing rate of growth of population has not prevented industrial expansion. Indeed, a stationary population with rising living standards is capable of creating new demands and thus supporting an expanding productive system. Moreover, there is no reason to believe that this country is suffering from a dearth of new investment openings. For a decade capital outlays for replacement purposes have been subnormal and modernization of equipment has lagged. There are also many new developments under way which offer immense potential opportunities for employment of men and money.

If the useful employment of immense amounts of new capital can be envisaged, why are investment outlets for idle funds so restricted at present? The Brookings investigators think the answer lies in a system of taxation that discourages investment and in fiscal policies that alarm investors. To a lesser degree the Federal Securities Act is also regarded as an investment deterrent, since it has increased the costs and the risks of new financing.

These conclusions are based upon extensive and detailed analyses of the Government's tax system and its fiscal policies, which work separately and jointly to discourage private enterprise. Thus, as the study points out, very high surtaxes, together with the system of tax-free bonds, discourage the sale of corporate securities, particularly equities, to those whose incomes fall in the high brackets. In addition, Government spending and the rapid expansion of Government credit agencies not only undermine investor confidence but also result in Government preemption of investment fields at the expense of private lenders.

If one agrees with these conclusions—and they are backed by extensive evidence—the remedy is plain. Private capital expansion, and with it, expanding employment and increasing economic stability calls for reformation of the tax system, improvement of the budgetary position, less competition from Government lending agencies, and fewer restrictions upon the free flow of private capital.

Capture Of Narvik

Almost four weeks have elapsed since the Allied withdrawal from Namsos, a development which marked the end of effective resistance to the German occupation of central and southern Norway.

In the meantime, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg have been completely overrun. The rich industrial area of northern France is also in German hands. After twelve days of the fiercest fighting the world has ever seen the epochal Battle of Flanders is nearing its close. Germany has won a victory, the Allies have suffered a defeat, of staggering dimensions.

In this all-enveloping darkness even a feeble ray of light is not without its encouraging aspects for the sorely pressed Allied peoples. On Wednesday it was officially announced that Narvik had been taken.

At the moment this development is significant chiefly by proving that, despite the fighting in Flanders, the British felt able to risk ships and planes and men in the now successful attempt to dislodge the German garrison from Narvik. But it also indicates that, gloomy as is their present outlook, the Allies are not hesitating to take a long-range point of view.

From such a viewpoint the British occupation of Narvik may have real value. Should the war continue through the summer, possession of this port would effectively cut off Swedish ore shipments to the Reich, since the route via the Gulf of Bothnia is ice-choked about six months in the year. And despite the seizure of valuable ore deposits in Luxembourg, Germany would sorely feel the loss of Swedish ore shipments.

Whether time will be vouchsafed Great Britain and France to make use of the Narvik leverage to deal a serious blow to Germany's war economy is another matter.

Hemisphere Defense

Speaking at the dedication of the Columbus Arms mural, in the Hispanic Room of the Library of Congress the Undersecretary of State this week emphasized that "there has never previously existed so comprehensive an understanding, so close a relationship, as that which fortunately . . . binds the American republics together today." And Mr. Welles went on to say that:

"Any act of aggression by a non-American power, whether it be committed south or north of the Equator, is a challenge to the security of all and will be so regarded by them."

The last few years have seen a marked increase in the sense of solidarity among the nations of the New World. For the United States this is one of the few bright spots in an otherwise grim international situation. Yet it must be recognized that a totalitarian victory in Europe would subject this solidarity to severe strains.

The problem of hemisphere defense is not merely military, although the military aspect looms large in American thinking at the present time. It is clearly important that we build up our fighting power so that any European nation will think twice before considering any extension of aggression to the New World. So it was clearly a step in the right direction when the Senate on Tuesday gave unanimous approval to the measure, pending since last July, which facilitates purchase of war materials by other American republics from the United States.

But to develop Pan-American solidarity other measures are necessary. Ways and means must be found whereby the dependence of many Latin-American nations on the European market, a dependence which can easily be used to extend Europe's political influence in this hemisphere, can somehow be reduced.

The United States, of course, cannot and should not absorb all the exports of all the nations to our south. But it is clearly in the interests of National defense to expand the flow of goods in inter-American trade. That means expansion of imports as well as exports. In reexamining our defense program this point should not be forgotten.

Mary Anderson

It is many and many a year since the brilliant star of Mary Anderson first appeared in the theatrical heavens—so long, indeed, that when news of her death was published yesterday many were shocked to realize they had forgotten her.

At her debut in the part of Juliet at a benefit in Louisville this girl of 16 amazed and enraptured her audience with the beauty and maturity of her performance. From that night, until her abrupt retirement at the very summit of her powers, her career was a succession of such triumphs as no actress of our own day can even dream of.

At New Orleans, after seeing her as Meg Merrilies in a dramatization of Guy Mannering, thousands followed her carriage through the streets. It was the same everywhere, both in her own country and abroad. London she conquered almost by a single performance.

Although Juliet remained one of her greatest roles she had presently a rival in Julia Marlowe. Those who are old enough to have made the comparison at first hand are still unable to render a verdict. But no actress before or after has equaled Mary Anderson as Perdita. This was her last and greatest role. And it was here in Washington, at the time of the Harrison inaugural, that she was last seen in it. A few seconds before the final curtain she collapsed.

While she soon recovered from her illness, no blandishments could thereafter coax her back to the theater. She had married, and as Mrs. Antonio Navarro she lived for the next half century in quiet retirement in England.

It is a tribute to Mary Anderson's genius, and to the British character, that in an hour like this her English friends can pause to mourn her.

An Augury

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The following three assertions are now generally admitted to be entirely factual:

First, Hitler will certainly demand, and get, the entire navies of Britain and France if he defeats the Allies within the next few weeks—which seems quite possible.

Second, Hitler is utterly ruthless in devastating, by aerial bombardment, any "enemy" city that stands in his way, regardless of the resultant ghastly slaughter of civilians. Warsaw, Rotterdam, Steinkjer, Arras testify to that.

Third, Hitler' typical method of initiating hostilities is by a shattering "blitz" attack, without warning or declaration.

I think that no American will endeavor to dispute these facts. What follows from these facts? What do they mean for New York City, for Boston, for you and me right here in Washington, on Pennsylvania avenue or Massachusetts avenue, or in Anacostia or Bethesda? Let's try to think it through.

Hitler will be in possession of a truly tremendous fleet—including five magnificent brand-new British battleships of the Jellicoe class and such superb French ships as the Dunkerque.

Realizing the imminent threat of Hitler's new sea power and sea domination, we Americans will move most of our fleet into the Atlantic. But we can't move all of it. Many vessels must be left in the Pacific to guard Hawaii and our West Coast. The American fleet that comes into the Atlantic will be outnumbered by Hitler's new fleet to the extent of not less than two to one (and three to one would be nearer the truth).

Hitler will not be "exhausted;" his Nazis will be bursting with vigor, pride, ambition, power. Will he give us a chance to bulwark ourselves and augment our strength? He won't—he will attack us at once, this very summer.

Could our American fleet, with its 1921 battleships, defeat the threefold stronger fleet of Hitler's? The Chances are against it. What, then, is to prevent Hitler from seizing Bermuda, the Bahamas, Newfoundland? In those places Hitler would quickly create great airports—quickly he would fly to them 4,000 or 5,000 of his air fleet.

This Nation, our own beloved United States, is in the most deadly danger of devastation and attempted conquest, before the end of this very year of 1940. That is not "hysterical chatter," but the cold and brutal truth. AUGURY.

Training For Defense

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For the practical foundation of America's international policy in the immediate future with the object of compelling a wholesome respect by the powers for this Government's representations, and with the view of promoting world amity in justice by the processes of public opinion, I would suggest:

That each physically sound youth at the age of 18 years be called to the colors for the purpose of receiving military training for the defense of the United States, and for receiving instruction in the rights and duties of nations. The period of his preparation for the ultimate responsibilities of a citizen will be five months, and he may not be recalled in any later year for military discipline except by act of Congress. The law providing for this training will limit the duration of its operation to 15 years, and will proclaim that its object is to confront reasonably a world condition in which certain nations defying each concept of international justice, and recognizing no law, potentially threatens the safety of the United States and the territories and independence of nations in these continents whose peace and integrity are vital to the inviolable interests of America.

The ignorance, incoherence and illusions that fill the excited forums of the air and of the press are astounding. A public opinion must be created in America that is founded in an appreciation of what our rights and duties are as a member of the society of nations, and only thus may be definitively defeated a menace that is less distant than naziism. The threat of sovietism to the republic, ultimately military, is presently of a nature that can be opposed only by some such project as the training of the youth to fight a physical enemy with physical power, and an ideological enemy with the power of invincible knowledge, righteousness and wisdom. EDWARD CONN.

Armament Costs

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The country should not get too excited over the news that Uncle Sam is going to spend a billion dollars for war armament, etc. That is very conservative.

Cost of ordnance alone, required to equip the first 5,000,000 Americans called to the colors in 1917-1918 in the World War is estimated at between $12,000,000,000 and $13,000,000,000. We had 8,000 manufacturing plants producing ordnance at the time of the Armistice. Despite the enormous expenditure made for ordnance no less an authority than Gen. Pershing, writing his report of the A. E. F., claims the only big guns he ever got from the United States during the war were 19 75s, 24 8-inch howitzers and some naval guns. The artillery that supported United States troops on the battlefields of France was loaned or bought from France and England.

It cost approximately $375,000,000 to build the Panama Canal. During the World War Uncle Sam built 32 big Army camps, and this construction cost about seven-tenths as much as it cost to build the canal. Army bases at the ports in this country cost for construction as much as $32,000,000. Airplane construction cost a billion, with no deliveries to the A. E. F.

All of which goes to show that an appropriation of $1,000,000,000 is just a drop in the bucket. And if we don't get any better ratio for our money than we got in 1917-1918—the matter is one of extreme seriousness.

HARRY RANSOM.

Taking A Stand

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Because democracy could once have been preserved as easily as human happiness could have been preserved by Adam's refusing to eat the apple, we, in democracy's hour of increasing peril, have no right to refuse to struggle in its behalf. Just as Christ drank the bitter cup which careless man made necessary, even so must democratic man now drink the bitter cup which his own carelessness has set before him. Every further failure to cooperate with the other democracies—every further retreat and surrender—can only multiply our final agony. Somewhere we must take our stand, in final, unyielding, all-enduring determination to achieve nothing short of absolute victory for human freedom.

And as we determine upon absolute victory for freedom in this hour of fearful doubts and struggle, the rest of the world will know at once that the cause of freedom is not lost. The embattled democratic armies will at once take heart again, even though our strength cannot at once be fully felt.

BOLLING SOMERVILLE.

"Steady, Everybody!"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The temper of every man and woman who tries to observe the decencies in the ordinary contacts of life (here in Washington, perhaps more than elsewhere) is going to be severely tried in the days immediately ahead.

Heated discussions and diatribes, angry arguments and altercations, insinuations and recriminations with respect to the war and to the domestic political situation—we're going to experience all of these. You and I, the man who delivers the milk, the fellow next door, the woman in the bus and even school chums are going to suffer pangs of disappointment, disillusionment and dismay at the bewildering change in things we hold dear.

Some of the expressions on the part of our neighbors are going to be bitter and acrimonious. We'll be sorely tempted to question the good faith even of the family downstairs whom, yesterday, we called "good people."

The order of the day should be "Steady, everybody!" Liberal and conservative, New Dealer and big business advocate, Democrat and Republican, big Navy man and isolationist should all, without exception, realize that fear is born and panic is grown on ill-founded conclusions. It's diabolically easy, in the disturbed state of the Nation today, to attack a fellow's convictions that are not soundly based and weaken the foundations of his faith in things.

It is at once the strength and the weakness of popular newspaper columnists that they can and do influence millions of persons' viewpoints. Permit me to suggest that it is the function of the big fellows in the newspaper game to counsel calmness and clear thinking in every issue of their newspapers. There's an election in the offing. Surely, it's important who goes into the White House, the Senate or the House! But it's also important who starts an incipient riot by careless or reckless speech that may lead to a disturbance of catastrophic proportions.

Let the people of the Nation's Capital show a worthwhile example of how to meet a crisis in this Nation's affairs. J. W. W.

Siren Song Of Pacificism

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: During the past 20 years "The Siren Song of Pacifism" has been well sung and today we find ourselves on "the rocks of helplessness." No wonder, in a sitting I was having many months ago, the spirit of the immortal Teddy came complaining that the efforts of himself and others in toiling up the hill of San Juan had been in vain. And the Indian spirit on January 5, 1938, should insinuate that the white man was in his second childhood when the U. S. S. Washington was sunk.

The song made its hearers forget the fate of those who would not support Hannibal at the right time and wanted to be let alone to enjoy a life of ease and luxury and follow commercial pursuits. The sandy wastes that once housed the proud city of Carthage stand as a monument of reproach to the fallacy of listening to such a song.

The Post Impressionist

Local Boy

Once upon a time there was a kid who couldn't decide what he wanted to be when he grew up. He thought maybe it would be nice to be an usher in a theater.

He lived in a little jerkwater town that didn't even have a theater, but there was a pretty good-sized city not far away where he went to school sometimes which did have one, and the kid, who was 12, figured it would be a pretty good way of making a living to be an usher.

It wouldn't be like working at all; it would be fun and you would be getting paid for it at the same time.

There was only one thing wrong with being an usher. And that was that if you spent all your time ushering you wouldn't have any time to learn how to be a hero.

The kid had read at school about heroes and he thought heroing was a pretty good thing. If you were a hero, people stood up when you walked by. If you were an usher they just sat down and forgot about you.

Still, it took a lot of work to become a hero and it wasn't always fun while you did it. Ushering was easier. And a lot pleasanter.

The kid tried to find out about these things, but he didn't get much help from his family.

For one thing, his old man didn't hang around the house much. He spent most of his time in a joint down the street with the boys, drinking. About the only time he came home was for meals, and lord knows, he didn't have much to say then. Just spent most of his time shoveling it away. If he did say anything it was usually to the effect that he was pretty good, the old boy was.

Sometimes his old man got pretty well potted and if the kid got in his way, the old boy would haul off and bat hell out of him.

Those things were annoying. The kid decided after a while that he didn't like his old man.

He did like his old lady, but she was sick most of the time, and besides she didn't know a great deal about ushering, or heroes either, for that matter. She was pretty smart all right and she didn't slug you when you weren't looking. But almost the only thing she could talk to you about was sewing or cooking.

Paula certainly wasn't any help. She was his sister and she was only 4. What did 4 know about things!

There was Max, of course. Max wasn't the smartest boy in the neighborhood, but it was fun being with him sometimes. Max didn't have much ambition, though. All he wanted to do when he grew up was to go to the city and get "a good job." Still, Max was a good fellow to have around when some of the tough guys from the other side of town started getting funny.

Most of the time, though, it was more fun being alone.

There were several ways you could do this—really being alone, not just being away from people. There was a difference. Being away from people just meant that there wasn't any person with you—the faded whitewash on the walls was still there and the farmers passing by on the main street outside were still there.

But when you were alone, you were somewhere else. You could do that in books—that was one way. You could pick up a history book and in no time at all you were storming some far off citadel. Or you could hitch a ride to the city and just by watching some people on the stage at the theater you would soon be in some distant land where there was music and fun.

Sometimes you could be alone just in your mind.

But then it would be time to eat and the old man would come storming in twirling his mustache and it was best to make out you were busy doing something around the house—arranging the books on the desk or setting the table, or something.

"Clara," the old man would say to the old lady, "that kid is moon-struck. He'll never amount to a cuss."

Once in a moment of rare intimacy the kid told the old boy that he thought maybe he might like to be an artist. The old man nearly busted a gut over that one.

So the kid kept wondering about things and about what to be when he grew up, and he got pretty mixed up about the whole business.

Then one day when he was in the city at the theater things began to seem much clearer to him.

The play that day had been knocking around for years—97 to be exact, and the plot had been rewritten by would-be dramatists and poets for centuries, but it seemed like hot stuff to the kid. The actors were hammy and then some, but to the 12-year old they were like gods.

The piece was called "William Tell" and it was all about a heel named Gessler who was always causing trouble and being nasty to nice people. Gessler and his kind were oppressing a whole nation, and the kid ground his teeth with rage at the villains and gripped the arms of his seat.

The payoff, of course, came when Tell shot the apple off his son's head with an arrow.

Right then the kid knew that heroing was better than ushering. He wandered out of the theater in a daze and all the way home he thought how satisfying it was to do magnificent things like shooting apples off people's heads, and smacking down people you don't like.

He remembered it for a long time. Years afterward when he grew up he was still talking about it.

The theater was in the city of Linz near the village of Leonding in upper Austria where the kid lived. The year was 1901. The kid's name was Adolf—Adolf Hitler.

The World Germanica

By Dorothy Thompson

Plan for Economic Rule

THE GERMANS have a clear plan of what they intend to do in case of victory. I believe that I know the essential details of that plan. I have heard it from a sufficient number of important Germans and persons closely in touch with important Germans to credit its authenticity, the more so as previous information regarding military strategy which emanated from the same sources has been completely confirmed by the events.

GERMANY'S PLAN is to make a customs union of Europe, with complete financial and economic control centered in Berlin. This will create at once the largest free-trade area and the largest planned economy in the world. In Western Europe alone—Russia is another chapter—there will be an economic unity of 400,000,000 persons, skilled, civilized, white men, with a high standard of living. To these will be added the resources of the British, French, Dutch and Belgian empires. These will be pooled, in the name of Europa Germanica.

THE GERMANS COUNT upon political power following economic power, and not vice versa. Territorial changes do not concern them, because there will be no "France" or "England," except as language groups. Little immediate concern is felt regarding political organizations. The Belgian King will remain on his throne, and may be rewarded with the throne of Holland. Mussolini will remain on his balcony and Victor Emanuel on his throne; other governments will be set up, but no nation will have the control of its own financial or economic system or of its customs.

The Nazification of all countries will be accomplished by economic pressure. In all countries contacts have been established long ago with sympathetic businessmen and industrialists, and those who have been openly hostile will be punished by boycott. The German occupation armies will fraternize with the Allied soldiers and persuade them that the great social revolution has occurred.

As far as the United States is concerned, the planners of the World Germanica laugh off the idea of any armed invasion. They say that it will be completely unnecessary to take military action against the United States in order to force it to play ball with this system. They point out that there will be no other foreign market for the raw materials and agricultural products of the United States, since these can hardly be sold in the Western Hemisphere.

Here, as in every other country, they have established relations with numerous industries and commercial organizations, to whom they will offer advantages in cooperation with Germany. Certain conditions will have to be met. No orders will be taken from or given to firms headed by personalities unfavorably regarded by the Nazis. No advertising contracts will be placed with newspapers directed by or publishing the work of pro-Ally or anti-Nazi editors or writers.

(This is exactly the way in which they have already swung into line the press of southeastern Europe.)

The immense gold reserve of the United States will be, obviously, worthless. The international currency will be a managed currency, the German mark, and all external trade will be based upon barter. This new world-wide complex will want raw materials, and will pay for them in manufactured goods. The United States will become an economic colony, for its economic independence will be lost. There will be immense demands upon the Southern and Middle Western States for cotton, wheat, etc., and upon the mineral wealth of this country, which they will take at high prices measured in terms of manufactured articles. The German planners predict a stampede of the South to collaborate with this system. This stampede will be fostered and directed by their agents.

SOUTH AMERICA will be conquered by business agents, not by guns. The plantation owners will be asked by the Germans whether they want to sell their meat, cotton and raw materials to Germany in exchange for machinery, industrial material, automobiles, etc., or whether they want to be boycotted. Inasmuch as the chief market of South America is Europe—and obviously the United States cannot take these products, which compete with our own—they count on the complete breakdown of the Western Hemisphere policy. "America," they say, "will be reduced to attempting to conquer all the arts of economic persuasion at our command. We shall be the peacemakers, and they the warmakers." The economic penetration has already been established in all South American countries and in Mexico, and will be accompanied by political ultimatums and propaganda activities.

GERMANY WILL BE the industrial and financial dynamo at the center of all this, with special privileges. Reference is made to the American Civil War, to the conquest of the industrial North over the agricultural South. France will be kept to agriculture and the manufacture of quality goods. "She can still make dresses and women's handbags."

London is to cease to be a financial center, but will be the chief commercial center, under Nazi domination. When it is possible to find pro-Nazis of French, British or other nationality, they will be put into power in their own countries. Otherwise, German governors will be put in. In any case, all political activities will be quietly watched by the Gestapo.

TO ACCOMPLISH ALL this it is necessary to complete a total war against Britain and France. Original plans were to drive through to the Channel ports and offer a separate peace to France. The progress of the German armies, however, now leads the German generals to the belief that they can deal a knockout blow to both London and Paris.

The former is to be accomplished by the invasion of Britain at a time when her very meager army is decimated. The Nazis intend to blast a channel or channels across the Channel—corridors across the corridor—probably from Antwerp or Calais. They will sweep mines from a fairly narrow channel with speedboats and submarines and heavily mine both sides of it, transporting troops under the cross-Channel fire of heavy guns of a size and range not yet used in this war.

Nazi troops now concentrated in Norway will be used for the invasion, simultaneously, of Scotland. Invasion will be by giant submarines, boats and planes.

Assault troops will be landed at the same time at half a dozen points along the coast. The Nazis have speedboats which can carry 200 men and can cross several times a night.

They consider London the easiest city in the world to invade once the troops have landed. The roads approaching it are undefended, many major highways and numerous small roads converge upon it and are connected with cross roads through which several units can approach at the same time and retain communication with one another.

All operations will be accompanied by terrific air attacks.

KING LEOPOLD
A Nazi Reward?

THE BRITISH ISLES will be held as hostage for the empire and the fleet. It is contemplated that the fleet will be scuttled or will go to Canada. "But no new stand can be made in Egypt or in Canada or elsewhere in the empire or among the commonwealths because we shall have the British Isles at our mercy, with the entire population. We will destroy the ports and cut them off from food. They can either sign on our terms or be systematically ausgerotted and starved."

The Nazis believe in the system of hostages. They now admit that they tried it first with the Jews to see whether world Jewry would buy out its coreligionists. They thus demonstrated that the humanitarian impulses of the world are one of their own most useful weapons.

RUSSIA WILL NOT be invaded. "We have no interest in the political system. Stalin will work with us. We are only interested in the organization of the Russian transport system in increasing the production of the oil wells and exploiting minerals. Russia is full of our engineers and more of them will be welcome. The Russian system is all right, but it needs Nazi discipline and German technical skill to exploit it. Slavs cannot organize."

THEY DO NOT believe that the proletarian workers in any country will seriously oppose them—even if they could. They argue that the tendency in all democracies demonstrates that workers only want to eat and have work, and care nothing for national matters or for individual liberty. What remnants are left of the pre-Hitlerian epoch myths will be terrorized out of the workers by the Gestapo. "And," they add, "there is nothing that capitalists will not do, if profitable. Democracies have taught their people, workers or corporation chiefs to believe only in money."

And, finally, only the master race, the Germans, will be allowed to bear arms. If, however, the United States wants to concur, all armaments can be radically reduced.

Fair Enough

Unwitting Consorts

ABOUT THE SAME time that President Roosevelt was on the air last Sunday night warning the country against clever schemes of foreign agents two other members of the New Deal family delivered public addresses.

In New York Mrs. Roosevelt attended a meeting of the New York Youth Congress, a subsidiary of the American Youth Congress, which is a transmission belt of the Communist Party. Harold Ickes made a speech in Cleveland.

Mrs. Roosevelt's hosts adopted a resolution consistent with the Moscow party line, condemning rearmament by the United States. They also opposed action against the Communist Party and cheered an assertion by Vito Marcantonio, a Congressman who runs with the Communists, that the new weapons of the United States were intended for an aggressive war on behalf of the American dollar and the British pound. Mrs. Roosevelt, who often attends meetings of transmission belt or Trojan horse organizations of the Communist Party, did not see eye to eye with the youth congress, insisting that failure to rearm might result in the needless sacrifice of many American lives.

The identity of Mr. Ickes' hosts I do not know, but the account which I read said that he "urged a vigorous campaign against 'fifth-column' activities."

JUST HERE I would point out—not that it seems necessary—that both Mrs. Roosevelt and Mr. Ickes have been consistently guilty of consorting with the "fifth column" of the Communist anti-American conspiracy, and that there are no more deadly and stealthy enemies of the civil liberties which Mr. Ickes treasured in his speech than certain groups to which they have flagrantly and gratuitously given aid and comfort.

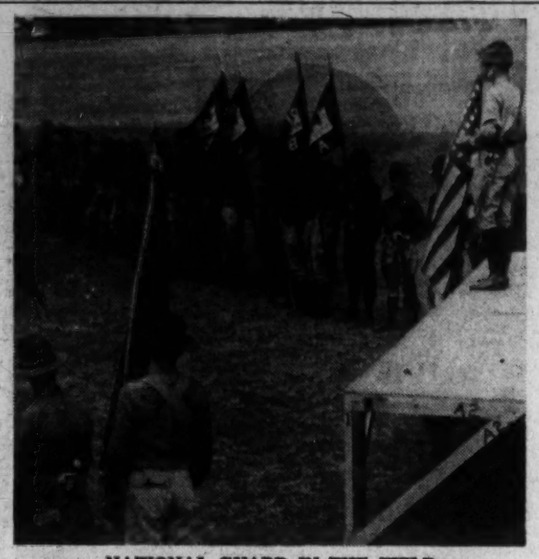
Mrs. Roosevelt has attended meetings of the National and World Youth Congresses, both controlled by vicious adult conspirators in Moscow, and has adorned, with her political and personal prestige, meetings promoted by the Trojan horse workers' alliance. Those organizations are no more innocent than the anti-American bund of the Nazi government or the Sons of Italy, which maintains cordial relations with and promotes devotion to the Fascist, antidemocratic, anti-American government of Italy among Americans of Italian blood. There is no more justification for the appearance of an officer of the American Government or a member of the President's personal and political family at occasions organized by the Moscow "fifth column" than for the appearance of the same persons at rallies of the bund or the Fascist order.

Mr. Ickes showed his preference or tolerance for the Communist breed of Trojan horse when he made an ostentatious political appearance under the auspices of the National Lawyers' Guild. This guild was organized as a liberal rival to the American Bar Association, for which there was need of rivalry. Soon, however, it fell under the partial control of "fifth-column" lawyers—who are most numerous, incidentally, in the Washington Chapter, where many of them are or were employed in the Government in the guise of liberals and New Dealers, concealing the party membership or holding the status of fellow travelers.

FERDINAND PECORA, a justice of the New York Supreme Court, a liberal, the man who conducted the Wall Street expose in the early days of the New Deal and a founder of the Lawyers' Guild, openly denounced the Trojan horsemanship of the Communists in the guild. As in the American Newspaper Guild, the American majority, occupied with their regular work and unwilling to devote their time and energies to a constant fight against Communist influence, presently found that the Communists were making the policies and decisions and following the Communist Party line.

On another occasion Mr. Ickes selected for his platform the New York Newspaper Guild, which has been notoriously communistic in policy and is now recognized by the American membership and by a larger number of nonmembers as a faithful Old Dobbin of the Trojan stables. He sat with undercover Communists and ill-disguised fellow travelers whose "clever schemes" then, as now, were designed to sabotage recovery and who today have abandoned the New Deal, because the President denounced Moscow's assault on Finland and because the New Deal is attempting to arm against Stalin and his ally, Adolf Hitler.

Mrs. Roosevelt is her own boss, and Mr. Ickes, having an official position and official responsibility, is only slightly less free. If they must run with the Communists, that is all right, but their conduct tends to confuse the meaning of the President's warnings against the "fifth column."



NATIONAL GUARD IN THE FIELD
Since its members are mostly civilians with regular jobs who can give comparatively small time to training, Ernest Lindley questions its role as part of an initial protective force

Sugar-Coat Dissolved

By Ernest Lindley

Our 'Armed Force'

THE EUROPEAN WAR, since it has become real and terrible, is bringing to the surface ideas concerning our national defense which experts in various lines have long held but seldom dared to express vigorously.

Example No. 1 is the role of the National Guard. At present the National Guard is considered part of our initial protective force—the armed force which is supposed to be immediately available for our national defense. For years it has been increasingly evident that the National Guard cannot be, or expected to be, immediately available for our national defense, except in a few specialized and narrowly defensive lines, such as the manning of antiaircraft guns.

It is sheer make-believe to think that civilians with regular jobs who can give only a few hours a month plus their summer vacations to training can be made into effective, immediately available field forces. Even if they can be given the training, they cannot be kept hardened for the demands of war when the emergency arises.

Yet the theory of our present national defense, on the Army side, is that the National Guard, at full strength, will be ready to go into action instantly. The Army has been compelled to rely on this fiction simply because, in a long period of intense starvation, it has had no alternative. Yet months of intensive work would be required to train and harden our National Guard field forces to go into action against a well-trained and hardened enemy. And if it goes into action at all it will be against such an enemy force.

AT PRESENT our initial protective force consists of the entire National Guard of 235,000, plus about 100,000 of the regular Army. The present authorized strength of the regular Army is 227,000, but 70,000 are required for outlying garrisons, and about 57,000 as cadres for additional units of our protective mobilization force, which theoretically consists of 1,000,000 men, and for headquarters work in Washington and the various corps areas.

The regular Army is about to be increased to 280,000, the full authorized peace-time strength. But a large part, if not all, of this increase will be needed for defense of our outlying air and naval bases and for the enlargement of the Air Corps.

Within a few months, if not immediately, the American people will be informed that we must have a regular Army of from 500,000 to 750,000 men. This would take care of the expansion of the Air Corps and provide us eventually with a fully trained, hardened, mobile force of ground troops, in addition to the garrisons needed to defend the naval and air bases which we already have, plus those which we may acquire in the next few months.

Most of the units in the National Guard would then be moved to where they belong: To the secondary line of defense, or protective mobilization force, which would be useful after from three to nine months of intensive training and conditioning.

Illustration No. 2 is in aviation, a field which has been sufficiently dramatized by the present war, and by the President's desire to have a productive capacity of 50,000 planes annually and an eventual combined air force of 50,000 planes. Slowly but certainly the plain proofs of the importance of air power have been annihilating the rigid prejudices of our most orthodox officers in both the Army and the Navy. The most fanatical believer in the ultimate importance of ground troops now knows that it was air power which prevented the French army from organizing a counter-offensive against the German thrust toward the channel ports. German planes bombed the railroads and roads running north and northeast from Paris, and so required extensive repair work before French troops could be massed on the Somme in sufficient force to attempt a counter-offensive. German air power continued to disrupt or harass every effort of the French army to bring up forces, and especially artillery, for a counter-offensive. In the sector running from Rethel to the Meuse River the story was similar. Reserves behind the Maginot line had to be moved shorter distances than was necessary to mass for a counter-offensive from the Somme. But German domination of the air required nearly all movements to be made at night and to be camouflaged before dawn. It imposed on the French ground troops a tedious and extremely difficult task.

ILLUSTRATION No. 3 is a special application of air power. In the Army Air Corps today there must be at least 25 potential "Billy" Mitchells—competent flying officers who are willing to risk courtmartial to tell the country what they believe to be the truth about our long-distance bombers. These are bombers which can go to sea 1,000 miles or more and return, each carrying a ton or more of high explosives. With our unmatched bomb-sight, these planes can fly above the higest range of antiaircraft guns but, according to men who know these planes and our bomb-sight, can hit surface vessels with astonishing accuracy.

We have now about 50 of these four-engined long-range bombers. Old appropriations provide for a total of 178. The new emergency defense program would add 200 more. The enthusiasts for these bombers say we should have 1,000, and that we can obtain and provide crews for them within one year. They are the kind of planes which experienced air transport pilots can fly. They are vulnerable to ground-based fighter planes. But their advocates assert that with speeds of around 300 miles per hour they are fast enough to run away from any planes that can be based on aircraft carriers. They insist that with 1,000 of them we could prevent any fleet in the world from crossing the ocean. Behind the scenes men who know this weapon are now making the most strenuous efforts to obtain recognition for it. They insist it should have priority over all other types of planes for our Army. For, they assert, it can prevent any potential enemy from coming close enough to make it necessary for us to fall back on our shorter-range bombers, attack and fighter planes.

These illustrations, important as they are, could be multiplied. We have entered into a period when the sugar-coating can be dissolved and some of the harder facts—or what seemed to be hard facts to sundry experts—can be told to the American public.

Cricket Out Of Luck

("A cricket, the first insect to fly the Atlantic, arrived on a clipper ship at La Guardia Field. It was chloroformed by orders of the plant quarantine inspector."—News item.)

You deserved a better fate;
What a bug you seem to me—
First to fly the broad wide sea!

First insect to take a plane
Through the gale, the snow, the rain;
First to take a hop like that—
To you I take off my hat.

No big sendoff, no wild roar;
Just a bug on wing; no more.
No newsreels and interviews—
Just an insect on a cruise.

No world tension, no suspense,
Yet yours was a feat immense;
No wild hubbub, ah, how grim!
No one even called you "Slim."

Though your flight was truly great,
No one told us what you ate;
No reporters followed you,
Jotting down your every view.

No one told by radio
How things with a cricket go.
When he's up there does he burp?
Is he too upset to chirp?

Does a cricket on a flight
Take a sandwich, rye or white?
Does he take a chocolate bar
As does every flying star?

No reception, no crowd gay—
No procession up Broadway . . .
No remarks at City Hall
For the greatest bug of all.

Not a single banquet ticket
Tell me, cricket, was it cricket?
Not a word of welcome warm . . .
Just a dose of chloroform!

You were dangerous, they said,
So they made you very dead;
This perplexes me today;
Other bugs get in okay!

Ex-Kaiser (greeting the German troops in Holland)—What detained you?

"'Hang the expense! The Nation must be prepared,' was the substance of the President's remarks."—News item.

Men, roll up those appropriations! And don't shoot until they see the whites of our I. O. U.'s.

Nothing in years has made us feel that our National safety is so insecure as the recent newspaper and newsreel pictures of three pudgy, middle-aged United States Congressmen on their knees, aiming Army rifles at cameras, and all under the caption "Study United States Defenses."

It's pretty exasperating these days, with the war of wars raging, to keep tuning into the radio in the feverish search for bulletins, and getting a chat on chocolate bars, egg-whips or how to plant hollyhocks.

Italy And The War

By Barnet Nover

Mussolini As Gauleiter

REPORTS from Rome are unanimous in emphasizing Mussolini's absolute determination to bring Italy into the war on Germany's side. All that remains, we are told, is a signal from the Duce that will set the legions marching. And that signal, it is predicted, will not be long in coming.

It can be taken for granted that the overwhelming majority of the Italian people do not want to go to war. Their country is in no danger of invasion and during the past five years they have had to fight two costly and profitless wars. The real victor in each case was not Italy but Germany.

It was in the setting of the Ethiopian crisis that Hitler found it possible to remilitarize the Rhineland, a development which resulted in a fundamental alteration of the European balance of power. And while Italy got little out of the Spanish venture except some blank checks filled in by Gen. Franco and a long casualty list, Germany used Italy's involvement in Spain to destroy the independence of Austria. Should the Fascist kingdom enter the present war and emerge from it victorious the real victor will not be Italy and certainly not the Italian people but again Germany.

Unfortunately the Italians are not masters of their destinies. They are prisoners of a dictator who is himself a prisoner.

FOR WEEKS on end the Fascist press and Fascist spokesmen have prepared the Italian people for the grim task they will be asked to perform. The Italians have no love for Hitler and little more for his minions. But anti-German feeling has been obscured by incessant anti-British propaganda. When and if the Italians go to war it will be against England, not on behalf of Germany.

What can Italy gain? On paper a great deal. Mussolini's dream of a revived Roman Empire remains a dream as long as the British and French empires exist, as long as British sea power is unbroken. Should Great Britain and France be smashed, Italy might fall heir to the French colonies in North Africa. The Mediterranean, so goes the dream, would then become an Italian lake.

But that is only a dream. For while the Roman Empire was supreme and unchallenged throughout the vast area it dominated, it was also unchallenged from outside. It was not until Rome was in its decline that the barbarians from the north became a real problem.

Now, however, an Italian victory would be primarily a German victory. Mussolini cannot be victorious without Hitler. And a victorious Hitler, freed of any necessity of having to reckon with Great Britain and France, would constitute an ever-present danger for Italy.

To be sure the Fuehrer might reward the Duce for Italy's intervention by permitting Italy to expand in Africa and the Mediterranean. But what he might give he could also take back. The creation of a greatly enlarged Italian empire would not make Italy strong enough to cope with a Germany possessed of all the resources of Europe.

BUT ITALY is not Mussolini (the present identification of the two is the tragic child of circumstance) and what counts at the moment is not Italy's stake in the war, but Mussolini's.

Italy can survive Hitler's downfall. Indeed, such a development, by removing a dangerous and aggressive neighbor forever th... ening Italy's exposed flank in the Tyrol and along the Adriatic, would be a boon to the kingdom. But Mussolini could not long survive the Fuehrer's overthrow. For in Europe, where the Nazi system had been smashed, the dominant powers would be Great Britain and France. All further avenues of possible Fascist aggression would then be cut off.

It was only because of the existence of the Third Reich that Mussolini was able to carry out successfully his Ethiopian and Spanish and Albanian aggressions.

Without benefit of the German menace the Duce would no longer be able to blackmail the western democracies; nor would they have any reason to appease him. His bubble of pretense would then be forever pricked. No dictator can long survive that.

From his point of view, therefore, an Allied victory would be a disaster. But he cannot afford to sit by and allow Germany to win without his assistance. He must seize what he can while Germany is occupied elsewhere and while his actions benefit the Reich, in the hope that, swollen with his own gains, Hitler might allow him to keep the trifles of empire he might have succeeded in gathering up at the expense of the western democracies. Sometimes, as the case of Dr. Seyss-Inquart, the man who betrayed Austria and is now political commissar for conquered Holland, suggests, Hitler is kind to his gauleiters.

France Condemns 2 Spies to Death

Copyright by New York Times

Paris, May 30.—Two death sentences and two severe prison terms were pronounced yesterday by a military tribunal in the pre-Munich spy case involving the Baroness von Einem. The baroness, who escaped but has been reported executed in Germany, was condemned to death in absentia.

Jean Gaston Amourelle, former stenographer in the French Senate, was sentenced to death. Leo Hirsh received a ten-year term and Arnold Perroux, alias Aubin, was sentenced to five years.

Preparedness Pleas Mark Bi-State Rites

O'Conor and Compton Speak at Antietam Battlefield

By the Associated Press

Tributes to the war dead and pleas for preparedness in the event this Nation becomes involved in another conflict marked Memorial Day services in Maryland and Virginia yesterday.

Throughout the bistate area, the graves of heroes who gave their lives for their country were decorated and speakers praised their valor, while praying that American blood might never again be spilled of foreign soil. Rain dampened the exercises and parades in some sections.

Gov. O'Conor and Lewis Compton, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, led the preparedness pleas in addresses at Antietam Battlefield, where thousands of soldiers fell in the Civil War struggle to unite America.

"If we have either reverence or gratitude for those men to whom Memorial Day is dedicated, then we owe them the pledge of preparedness," the Governor said.

"Our Government has told us that measures for defense are now being made, but there are measures which every man and woman can make in his own heart.

"He and she can steel that heart with the fortitude which is ours by the right of inheritance. Just as our forefathers bequeathed us liberty, so they bequeathed us the courage and the vigilance which are necessary to preserve it."

Compton asserted the United States Navy, "ship for ship and man for man, is equal to, if not the superior of, any navy in the world," but "we have neither enough ships nor planes nor men to meet the threats that are looming."

"The Navy builds for peace," he said. "We covet no other country. But if others covet us, the strength of our Navy is the basic deterrent to any contempated invasion of our shores.

In Cumberland a parade of five divisions marched from the armory to Rose Hill Cemetery, where memorial services were held. Frederick also had a parade and services at Mount Olivet Cemetery, where Gen. James A. Drain, a former national commander of the legion and a World War hero, spoke. The Francis Scott Key Post raised a new flag at the grave of the composer of "The Star-Spangled Banner"—the only spot in the United States where the flag flies day and night.

Two 6-foot poppy anchors in memory of veterans lost at sea were dropped off Greenbury Point light at Annapolis by members of the Admiral Robert E. Peary Post, V. F. W. Two subchasers took the group out into the Severn for the ceremony.

At Winchester Maj. Robert Reeves, of Front Royal, Va., was the speaker at exercises in National Cemetery here this afternoon. The ceremonies were preceded by a parade in which the local bands, National Guard units and veterans organizations marched. Dr. C. R. Anderson introduced the speaker. Stores and business places were closed.

war in which he fought was more ferocious than this one. He would know better. He would remember that in 1914-18, a parachute was a contraption to save life, not to take it. He would remember that the war birds of his day—Baron Richtofen, the German; Guynemer, the Frenchman, and Rickenbacker, the American ace—were rather romantic fellows who went after each other in the sky, not after refugees stumbling along a road.

He would be gratified at America's present alertness, and would graciously forgive those who were calling him a flag-waver back in the 20s and 30s, simply because his legion or his V. F. W. outfit was asking that the Army and Navy be kept strong.

He would be struck by the fact that the very people who once were denouncing him and his comrades as patrioteers and alarmists are now surpassing him in flag-waving and viewing-with-alarm. He himself would be a little skeptical about playing "The Star-Spangled Banner" after each movie performance, and would agree with Damon Runyon that it isn't necessary for Hollywood to "sell" patriotism to Americans.

He would not be worrying about Hitler invading the United States because he would know there were good military arguments against it. But he would know that if this country's erstwhile Allies go down in the current European inferno, America is going to face perhaps the gravest crisis since its founding.

He would be a pretty good fellow to have around, this fellow who sleeps in Arlington and who is "known but to God."

130 to Get Degrees At Commencement Exercises June 3

By the Associated Press

Westminster, Md., May 30.—Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, of Washington, will deliver the address at the seventieth annual commencement of Western Maryland College in Alumni Hall at 10 o'clock June 3.

Approximately 130 students will receive degrees. In addition to the 128 seniors invested in April some additional extension students will graduate. Two graduated students, Janet MacVean, Chestertown, Ohio; Curvin M. Beitz, Westminster, and Alverta Ford, Cumberland, will receive master of arts degrees.

The commencement program begins with the presentation "Our Town" by the college players Friday at o'clock.

Registration for alumni day starts at 9:30 o'clock Saturday. The varsity and alumni will play their annual baseball game in the afternoon. There will also be a tennis and golf tournament, open house at school clubs and building inspection. The annual garden party for seniors and alumni will be at 2:30 o'clock in Robinson garden.

Dr. Fred G. Holloway, president of the college, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon Sunday at 10:30 o'clock. Westminster churches will not hold services in order to take part in the college program.

Leesburg High

Leesburg, Va., May 30.—Miss Dorothy Edmondson, a sophomore in the Leesburg High School, won the Rotary prize for making the most improvement during the past school year. Other Rotary prize winners were Esther May Keys, seventh grade; Thomas Caulkins, sixth grade; Tunis Campbell, fifth grade; Samuel Breckinridge, fourth grade; William Fiske, third grade; Thelma Miller, second grade; Francis Pounds, first grade, and Raymond Moore floater room, third and fourth grades. The prizes were awarded at the annual banquet given by the Leesburg Rotary Club on Wednesday evening.

Luray High

Luray, Va., May 30.—Joshua Robinson will be valedictorian of the senior class at Luray, with Frances Clem, salutatorian. There are 41 graduates. Commencement exercises will be held Monday night, June 10. The class sermon will be preached Sunday night in the Methodist Church by the Rev. Robert Gibson, of Alexandria, Episcopal minister.

St. Mary's Academy

Leonardtown, Md., May 30.—The annual music recital by the senior class of St. Mary's Academy will be held at the academy on May 31 at 8 p. m. Class night exercises of the senior class will be held on Saturday at 8 p. m.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 30.—Addison G. Billingsley, sr., 67, resident of Fredericksburg since 1893, died today in Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, where he had been under treatment for three years.

A native of Culpeper County, he was local justice of the peace for some years and acted as clerk of the city council for 18 years, as well as being city collector for 12 years. He served with Company K during the Spanish-American War. For some time he served as exalted ruler and secretary of the Elks Lodge and was voted a life membership in the organization.

He is survived by two sisters, one daughter and four sons. Funeral arrangements had not been made this afternoon.

Maj. Ulrey Takes Over Volunteers Of America Post

Majj. Walter O. Ulrey, newly appointed commander of the Washington area, Volunteers of America, Wednesday night officially took command of the local post in ceremonies at the affiliated Girls' Club and Hospice, 1525 Sixteenth street northwest.

Speakers including Mrs. Lloyd W. Biddle, Charles P. Keyser and Emmett L. Sheehan, members of the advisory board, praised work of Maj. H. Mills Eroh, former District commander, stressing the value of the hospice which he established.

Prelates Mark 150th Year Of Catholic Church in U. S.

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, May 30.—Services commemorating the 150th anniversary of the establishment of the Catholic Church's American hierarchy were conducted in the Baltimore Cathedday today. The diocese of Baltimore was the first Catholic See in the United States.

At conclusion of the solemn pontificial high mass a bronze laurel wreath was laid before the tomb of Archbishop John Carroll in the crypt beneath the cathedral's main altar. Te was the first churchman with the rank of bishop in this country.

Many of the leading church dignitaries of the East attended the services, held with the blessing of Pope Pius, who sent this message through Cardinal Maglione, papal secretary of state:

"On the occasion of the Baltimore celebration of the 150th anniversary of the appointment of the first bishop, the holy father gladly imparts to the archbishop, the clergy and faithful his paternal blessing."

The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, presided at the mass, and the celebrant was the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, archbishop of Baltimore and Washington.

The Right Rev. Msgr. Peter Guilday, of Catholic University, Washington, told in his sermon of Archbishop Carroll's life. Archbishop Carroll was born in Upper Marlboro, Md., and spent most of his life in Baltimore.

The first archbishop was a cousin of Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, who signed the Declaration of Independence for Maryland, and of Daniel Carroll, who helped frame the Federal Constitution.

Also attending the mass were these bishops: The Most Revs. Peter L. Ireton, coadjutor bishop of Richmond; Eugene J. McGuinness, Bishop of Raleigh; Emmett M. Walsh, Bishop of Charleston; Gerald P. O'Hara, Bishop of Savannah-Atlanta; Edmond J. Fitzmaurice, Bishop of Wilmington, N. C.; Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of Catholic University; Michael J. Keyes, S. M., titular Bishop of Aeropolis, and John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of Baltimore and Washington.

Blake Bachelor Meals Are Inspired by Dutch

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor.

ARE MEN or women the better cooks? This has long been a controversial subject. While it scarcely could be conceded to men wholeheartedly that they are masters supreme of the skillet, yet the fact remains that most bachelor hosts do feed their guests amazingly well.

Barry Blake is definitely in this class—both a bachelor and a master at giving excellent buffet suppers. Meal planning is not his vocation. He is production manager, Station WJSV, Columbia Broadcasting System; yet he does entertain in a most distinctive and appealing manner and plans food with all the precision he does radio programs.

Martha Ellyn

Barry plans his meals on the theory that anyone who cannot occasionally enjoy plain cooking is no epicure. When you have been a guest at one of his bachelor dinners you are aware that he has inherited from his old Dutch Hauernschmidt family the idea that there should never be prandial skimpiness.

Hailing from Baltimore, where seafood is the rule rather than the exception, he often serves a tantalizing gumbo with rice. And being adept at concocting a crepe suzette, he delights his guests with excellent crepes. I asked him why he didn't have the traditional shoo-fly pie with his Dutch dinner. He said, "For the same reason that some people like noodles with a steak rather than the proverbial French fried potatoes."

But Barry's preference is for Dutch food. I may be slightly prejudiced in favor of Dutch cookery, too, since my ancestors came over on the Pink Mary from the Netherlands, but I think that almost anyone will be tinged with envy to know of this bachelor's design for eating. Following is a menu that this gourmet endorses, and also recipes for some of the favorite dishes:

Dutch Buffet Supper

Flash un Kas Cocktails
Sauerbraten Potato Filling
Dutch Slaw Hot Biscuits
Crepe Suzettes Coffee

Flash un Kas—Work ½ pound butter and ½ pound cream cheese into 2 cups flour. Chill thoroughly. Roll pieces of dough very thin. Cut with a small size round cookie cutter. Spread with a goose liver paste seasoned with favorite sauce, or with ground Smithfield ham with sauce and tomato catsup. Fold over and bake in moderately hot oven until brown.

Sauerbraten—Season 4 pounds beef, round, chuck or rump, with salt and pepper, place in an earthen dish and add 1 pint vinegar and water to cover. Add 4 bay leaves, 12 peppercorns and 4 whole cloves, and let stand for 5 days in a cool place, tightly covered. Put the meat in a Dutch oven, brown well on both sides and add 1 bunch carrots cut in strips, 6 onions sliced, and 1 cup of spiced vinegar. Cover and cook over low flame about 3 hours or until meat is tender. Then add 1 tablespoon of sugar and 12 crumbled gingersnaps and cook for 10 minutes. More of the spiced vinegar may be added if necessary. This makes an excellent gravy.

This is Mr. Blake's own recipe for the fish gumbo he often serves as first course at buffet suppers.

Fish Gumbo—Add 1 quart of water to 2 cans of vegetable soup and bring to boil. Add 5 finely chopped peppers, 2 bunches of chopped celery, 1 pound chopped mushrooms and allow to cook for 1 hour. Add 1 pound chopped okra, and let soup simmer for 2 hours, adding water if needed. Mix together 24 oysters cut in small pieces, 24 clams with their own juice, cut up, 1 pound each of crab meat, lobster meat and cooked shrimp. Season well with thyme, laurel, bay leaves and caraway seeds. Add all to gumbo and cook for about ½ hour. Serve over rice.

Potato-Scallion Dish Is Family Fare

New potatoes and scallions make a fine dish to serve with broiled filet of sole, bread sticks, cucumber salad, a strawberry pie and coffee for a family dinner. Here is the recipe for the potato-scallion dish.

New Potatoes With Scallions

Scrape 12 small new potatoes; then cook in salted water until tender. Meanwhile, cut off roots and part of stems of scallions. Wash scallions and cut in 1 inch pieces. Cook in boiling salted water for 5 minutes, then drain. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in top of double boiler; add 2 tablespoons flour and blend. Add 1¼ cups milk, 1 teaspoon salt and dash of pepper. Cook until thickened. Add cooked potatoes and scallions, and heat well. Serves six.

Entertaining Easy for Bachelor

The casual attitude of Barry Blake shows that there is no necessity for concern when a bachelor entertains. He is making ready for serving the first course of his supper in the living room—gumbo in tureen, to be served in shells. The bronze fisherman and peony-columbine arrangement form an interesting centerpiece. Jensen silver, Spode tureen, and coarse linen napkins are all excellent items to use when a bachelor sets his table

MISS RICHTER

Helen Richter's Recipe Provides Delectable Dish

By The Post Food Editor.

During the summer hostesses often like to serve something besides icy desserts, and yet have those that are refreshing and light. The contestants in this week's Post Recipe Contest have designed some for such times. Following are the winning recipes:

Apricot Wafer Tarts

Helen Richter,
24 Rhode Island Ave. N.E.

Recipe—Crush ½ pound filled wafers and save out ½ cup of crumbs to use for top. Place remaining crumbs in bottom and on sides of individual tart pans. Cream together ½ cup butter, 1 cup confectioner's sugar and 2 egg yolks. Fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Spread this mixture on top of wafer crumbs in tart pans. Cover with 1 cup apricot pulp made by cooking dried apricots with as little water as possible, then putting through a strainer. Spread 1 cup whipped cream on top and sprinkle with remaining crumbs. Chill in refrigerator for 12 hours before serving. Serves 6 to 8.

Transparent Tartlets

$1 Prize

3707 Woodley Drive N.W.

Recipe—Line individual muffin tins with pastry. Cream together ½ cup butter and 2 cups sugar, then beat in 5 eggs, one at a time. Stir in 3 tablespoons lemon juice. Turn into prepared pans and bake in hot oven, 400 degrees for 5 minutes, then reduce heat to moderate, 350 degrees and bake about 10 minutes, or until firm. Makes 15 tartlets.

Glazed Fresh Fruit Tarts

$1 Prize

Mrs. Albert Day,
Auburn Ave., Bethesda, Md.

Recipe—Prepare 4 cups fresh fruit or berries. Fill 6 baked individual pastry shells with fruit, reserving 1 cup. Crush remaining 1 cup fruit. Add 1 cup water; cook 5 minutes, strain. Make glaze by combining 1 cup sugar, 4 tablespoons cornstarch and ¼ teaspoon salt. Add to cooked juice and cook until thick and clear, about 3 to 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add 1 tablespoon butter, cool slightly. Pour by spoonfuls over fruit, coating thoroughly. Chill. Garnish with whipped cream. Serves 6.

Custard Chocolate Tarts

$1 Prize

Mrs. B. C. Phillips
631 Allison St. N.W.

Recipe—Sift together 1⅘ cups pastry flour, ½ teaspoon salt and ½ cup cocoa. Cut in ½ cup shortening and add 4 or 5 tablespoons cold coffee a little at a time, handling as for ordinary pastry. Roll and press pastry over bottom of muffin tins or bake in patty shell pans. Bake in moderate oven and cool before filling. Filling—Combine 5 tablespoons cake flour, ¾ cup sugar and ⅛ teaspoon salt to make custard. Scald 2 cups milk in double boiler. Add a little to first mixture, blending until very smooth, return to double boiler and cook until thick and smooth, stirring constantly. Beat 2 whole eggs or 4 egg yolks slightly, add some of hot custard mixture, stirring rapidly. Return to double boiler and cook 2 minutes longer. Cool and add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Coconut may be added if desired. Pour into shells and garnish with whipped cream. Makes 6 medium-sized tarts.

MISS RYAN

Others Offer Attractive Sweets For Summer Meals

Cherry Tarts

$1 Prize

Mrs. W. J. Stannard,
4309 Twelfth St. N.E.

Recipe—To make pastry, mix 1 cup pastry flour, 3 tablespoons sugar, a few grains salt, few grains lemon rind. Add ¼ cup butter. Work in with pastry blender and add 1 egg yolk beaten slightly, with 2 tablespoons cold water. Chill, roll in a circle ⅛ inch thick, and bake about 20 minutes at 375 degrees. Spread to within ½ inch of edge with cream filling. Pipe a high border of meringue around edge and brown in oven, 375 degrees for 5 minutes. Fill center with cherries, with juice well drained.

Cream Filling—Mix 4 tablespoons sugar with 3 tablespoons flour, and a few grains salt. Add ⅔ cup scalded milk gradually. Cook 15 minutes in double boiler, stirring constantly. Add to 2 slightly beaten egg yolks and cook 2 to 3 minutes longer. Cool and flavor with ½ teaspoon lemon extract. Serves 6.

Variety Adds Spice to Any Summer Meal

A Sparkling Setting Is Advisable, Too; Menus Are Suggested

VARIETY adds stimulus to any appetite. It isn't solely the dishes that make a certain meal stay in the memory, either. Often it is a table setting. Decorative notes are so simple to have these spring days, with the profusion of flowers. After you have achieved the sparkle for your table setting, look to the appeal of the food.

Dinner Menu

Fruit cup with apricot ice
Chicken and Swiss cheese souffle
Peas Tomato salad
Coffee

Chicken and Swiss Cheese Souffle—Melt 4 tablespoons butter in a double boiler, add 5 tablespoons flour and mix well. Add 1¼ cups milk gradually and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add ¾ teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper to the mixture and stir into 4 slightly beaten egg yolks, gradually. Cool slightly and fold in 1 cup grated Swiss cheese, 1½ cups finely chopped cooked chicken and 4 stiffy beaten egg whites. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake in moderate oven, at 325 degrees for about 50 minutes. Serves 6.

Peach Cream Tarts make an attractive and delicious dessert service. The following is a recipe for making them.

Peach Cream Tarts—Drain 1 No. 2½ can peach halves and cut in quarters. Boil down juice to about ½ cup. Mix 4 tablespoons sugar with 3 tablespoons flour and ¼ teaspoon salt in a double boiler and add 1 cup milk gradually. Cook, stirring constantly for 3 to 5 minutes or until thickened. Cover and cook for 10 minutes longer. Add peach juice. Add a little of the mixture to slightly beaten egg, mix well and return to double boiler. Cook for a minute longer, stirring constantly. Fold in peaches, allow to cool and put into tart shells.

Farewell Reception to Speed Club Women on 'Good Neighbor' Voyage

Mrs. Saidie Dunbar To Head Federation Trip to S. America

The Post Club Editor

At 10:30 this morning, a reception will be given aboard the Santa Clara of the Grace Line in New York Harbor as a farewell to Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and 24 other federation members who sail today for South America. They are making a 52-day "good neighbor" tour under the leadership of Mrs. Frederic Beggs, of New Jersey, chairman of international relations.

The reception has been arranged by the United Women of the Americas, the Pan-American Women's Association and the Club Service of the Herald-Tribune and will be attended by club members and women leaders of the various South American countries who are now residents of New York.

2,000 Delegates At Milwaukee

Mrs. Dunbar left Washington at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after a brief four days at General Federation headquarters, 1734 N street, following the council meeting in Milwaukee—one of the largest in years, with 2,000 registrations.

In addition to spending time at her desk, getting the organization's business in shape to leave, she had her packing to do, preparing for the three seasons the party will encounter. They will arrive in Santiago, Chile, in the midst of South America's winter.

Others from Washington who will be in the party include Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, Mrs. Frank Nichols and Mrs. Lawrence Shields.

Not as Tourists But as Friends

"Did the world situation dampen the enthusiasm of those expecting to make the trip?" I asked Mrs. Dunbar as I said good-by yesterday.

"Indeed it didn't," she replied. "Now is the time, if ever, to make the tour and help establish confidence. We are going not as tourists, but as friends. We wish to meet both the Latin-American women and members of our own American women's clubs there. Anyone in the party having special interests in the fields of health, social welfare or education will arrange for contacts with leading women in those fields in the different countries. On the way home, aboard the ship, the results of these conferences will be shared with other members of the group.

There are four American women's clubs in the Canal Zone, affiliated with the General Federation. Others are located in Lima, Peru; Santiago, Chile; Buenas Aires, Argentina; Montevideo, Uruguay, and Rio de Janiero, Brazil, and all will be visited by the federation members, Mrs. Dunbar said.

A. A. U. W. Calls Anti-Alien Bill 'Dangerous'

Letters to House Members Protest Senate Amendments

The American Association of University Women yesterday protested the anti-alien provisions of the civil liberties bill as passed by the Senate Monday, in a letter sent to all members of the House.

The association, which at its last biennial convention voted support for "such measures as may be necessary to protect civil rights in the United States," saw "serious dangers implicit" in "enacting legislation branding as a potential menace any class of American residents."

The association urged instead that Congress "give to the Department of Justice adequate funds for an expert staff to enforce with vigor, in cooperation with State and local authorities, and with observance of sound procedures, laws against those who menace the safety of the State."

"The American Association of University Women recognizes the importance of protection against espionage and the threat of subversive activities," said the letter, signed by Dr. Caroline F. Ware, chairman of the association's social studies committee. "But it cannot be reasonably or safely assumed that because a person has not taken out citizenship papers he is a potential menace, or that because he has taken out citizenship papers he is a loyal American."

Spring Luncheon Planned Monday By Delphians

Wilber La Roe, jr., member of the District Parole Board, chairman on Civic Affairs of the Washington Federation of Churches and author of the recently published book "Parole With Honor," will address the group on "Cause and Cure of Crime."

Girl Reserve Mothers' Council To Picnic Today

The Girl Reserve Mothers' Council will have a picnic at Mrs. Maxwell Winter's summer home in Washington Grove, Md., today at 11 a. m.

It is an informal occasion, and the lunch will be cooked at an open fireplace. The group will enjoy tennis, croquet, badminton and other games, and songs will be sung around the fire.

This is the first time the Girl Reserve Mothers' Council and their daughters have planned a party together. The hostesses will be Mrs. Winter and Mrs. Nathan Gammon, assisted by the other members of the Mothers' Council.

Madame Chairman

Newspaper Women's Club to Give Tea Monday Honoring Australian Minister and Wife

THE NEWSPAPER WOMEN'S CLUB will entertain the Minister of Astralia and Mrs. Casey Monday afternoon at tea at 5 o'clock in the Raleigh Hotel, its headquarters.

Katharine Brooks, of the Star, has been reelected president of the club for the coming year and all of the past year's officers serve again with her. They are: Katherine McKiever, of the National Catholic Welfare Council news service, first vice president; Helene Livingston Kravadze, of the Star, second vice president; Harriet Ventress Heald, newspaper information service, corresponding secretary; Sophia Pool Kepner, Haskin Syndicate, recording secretary; Margaret Germond, the Star, treasurer; Alice Hutchins Drake, historian; Marie Manning Gasch, International News Service; Helen Fetter Cook, musical leader, and Anna Youngman, The Post, board of governors.

ELECTION COMING UP—The Women's National Press Club will have its annual election Tuesday night at the Willard Hotel. This has been a real "election year," with campaign literature, pledges, promises, allegations and denials, and all the trimmings. Heading the opposing tickets are Esther Van Wagoner Tufty, of the Tufty News Bureau, and Helen Essary, columnist of the Times-Herald.

An inauguration dinner has been announced for Monday, June 10, in the small ballroom of the Willard, when club members and their escorts will turn out to welcome the new officers.

Ruby Black, of the United Press, is the retiring president.

BENEFIT BRIDGE—Mrs. J. J. Mack, 4355 Forest Lane, Wesley Heights, is opening her home Wednesday, June 5, for a benefit bridge party, to be sponsored by the Washington Branch of the Russian Children's Society. Proceeds will go to aid Russian children now in France. Mrs. W. L. Joukowsky is in charge of reservations.

HORTETTES ELECT—Mrs. J. R. Magness has been elected president of the Hortettes—wives of employes of the Department of Agriculture at the Beltsville Field Station. Other new officers are Mrs. J. B. Demaree, vice president; Mrs. C. F. Rinman, secretary; Mrs. Stuart, treasurer.

ANNUAL BREAKFAST—A discussion of "Vocational Opportunities" will feature the annual breakfast of the Chi Omega Fraternity, honoring seniors at George Washington University, June 9, at the Congressional Country Club. Bettie Burch and Margaret Hoyt will be the honor guests.

Members of the society scheduled to speak include: Miss Estelle Phillips, assistant principal of Woodrow Wilson High School; Miss Katherine Veaux, attorney; Miss Geraldine Stowell, of the District Training School; Dr. Margaret Sickler and Miss Norma Bose, artist and instructor.

Miss Lela Hatchett, 4903 V street, is chairman of arrangements and Miss Barbara Watson, of reservations.

D. A. R. to Hold Spring Luncheon

Flowers in a Colonial garden will come to life at Roxey Mansion Inn, Country Club Hills, Va., Saturday, at the spring luncheon of the State Officers Club of the District Daughters of the American Revolution, when Ivy Randall will present her pupils in a dance arrangement of "A Colonial Garden," to follow the luncheon.

Mrs. David L. Caldwell is president of the club. Those assisting in receiving will be Mrs. Harry C. Oberholser, State regent of the District; Mrs. Charles C. Haig, vice president general, and the club's officers. These are Mrs. Catherine Strong, first vice president; Mrs. Donald M. Earll, second vice president; Mrs. William H. Wagner, chaplain; Mrs. Roy C. Bowker, recording secretary; Mrs. Clyde B. Hamblin, corresponding secretary; Mrs. William H. Harper, treasurer, and Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, historian and founder of the club. Assisting hostesses will be the board of directors: Mrs. William B. Sinnott, Miss Margaret E. Naylor Mrs. Thomas H. Seay, Miss Mary J. Edmonds and Mrs. W. W. Lemmond.

The Federal Diary:

Sasscer Plans Fight To Ease Hatch Act

Maryland Democrat Will Seek to Restore Right to Hold Nearby Town Offices Paying Less Than $600 to U. S. Workers

By Edward Ryan

Representative Lansdale Sasscer (Democrat), of Maryland, yesterday said he would press for opening local municipal jobs in towns near Washington to Government employes, regardless of what is done with the Hatch Act.

Sasscer is author of an amendment to the present Hatch "clean politics" law which would permit Federal employes to hold and campaign for offices paying $600 or less a year, in towns within 50 miles of the District line.

At present most of the town offices in the Washington area have been emptied of Government employes by local elections early this month. Under rulings of the Civil Service Commission and the Justice Department they were permitted to hold on to the jobs they already occupied until their terms ended, but forbidden to campaign for reelection.

Sasscer said he had planned his amendment as a substitute for a clause in the new Hatch legislation.

Among the amendments to the Hatch Act, now out of the House Judiciary Committee and awaiting action early next week of the House Rules Committee, is one giving the Civil Service Commission authority for permitting Federal employes living in Maryland and Virginia to enter local politics and hold office. The commission could take this action in "special and unusual circumstances."

Plan May Miss Fire

Sasscer said he feared this plan would miss fire in either of two ways. It might go down in the House with other more controversial amendments. The Civil Service Commission, working in the tradition of no politics for Federal jobholders, might set too strict limits in defining the "special and unusual circumstances" which would let Government workers hold local Maryland and Virginia political jobs.

It was pointed out, however, that before the Hatch law, the commission had permitted Federal employes to take part in nearby local politics for more than 25 years.

An official of the commission said yesterday that no estimates had yet been made about how many more employes or how large an extra appropriation would be needed to administer the Hatch law with its proposed amendments.

In its present form, the Hatch law has not greatly increased the commission's work, it was said. Some 600,000 employes in the classified civil service were already barred from political activity by the Civil Service rules, dating from the time the commission started. From this group 161 political activity complaints went to the commission in 1939. For 69 persons, the commission recommended only a warning, and charges against 58 others were dropped. Of the others, the commission advised that 12 persons be discharged, 8 be suspended or reduced in pay and 14 be ordered to stop political activity.

With proposed amendments, commission officials said they would expect a big boost in their work load since the Hatch law would be extended to State jobs where the no-politics ban has not been tested, in contrast with the Federal Government where the bars against politics have been up for years in the classified service.

Deadlines Dropped

Normal deadlines have been dropped for two classes of skilled jobs in the Washington Navy Yard in line with speedier defense recruiting.

The Civil Service Commission announced yesterday that applications for examinations would be kept open "until further notice" for machinists and for precision lens, prism and test plate makers.

The machinist jobs, open to persons between 20 and 48, pay from $7.48 to $8.44 a day. Age limits are the same for lens, prism and teneplate makers, and the pay runs from $7.87 to $8.83 a day.

Also opened yesterday were examinations for helpers in making navigation instruments at the Washington Naval Observatory. Deadline on exam applications is June 26, the pay, $4.70 to $5.66 a day.

Paralysis Cases Increase 400% In the Last Year

Infantile paralysis cases in the United States last year increased more than 400 per cent over 1938, according to a report to the United States Public Health Service yesterday by C. C. Dauer, District Health Department epidemiologist.

Conducting a special study for the Federal bureau, Dr. Dauer found a total of 7,272 cases in 1939 (5.6 per 100,000 population), compared with 1,705 (1.3 per 100,000) in the previous year. Outbreaks were widespread, the highest rates being in New Mexico, South Carolina, Arizona, Minnesota, Michigan, Utah and California, in that order.

"Although experimental evidence has, according to several investigators, tended to question the validity of the most commonly accepted belief that the virus gains entrance into the human body through the nasal passages, none of the recent studies has been inconsistent with the theory of transmission of infection by direct contact with cases and carriers," Dr. Dauer asserted.

Kin of Goering Assails Blitzkrieg As 'Unchivalrous'

Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm, May 30.—Germany's blitzkrieg methods of attacking other countries without warning were roundly condemned today by Count Eric von Rosen, brother-in-law of Field Marshal Hermann Goering, noted explorer and until recently regarded as one of the chief leaders of Swedish national socialism. At the same time Count von Rosen extolled Marshal Goering as a "fighter for peace," who with the help of Adolf Hitler has done much for Sweden, but averred that a National Socialist "fifth column" does not exist in Sweden.

These sentiments were expressed by the count in the Vecko-Journalen, a weekly magazine. Though they sound contradictory, the Swedes are inclined to accept them.

"The blitzkrieg is an unchivalrous business," Count von Rosen writes. "I cannot reconcile myself to the thought that one nation should assault another with a declaration of war—preferably at night and perhaps shortly after a previous solemn declaration of peace in the form of a nonaggression pact."

Housewarming Fete Given Mrs. Caldwell

Buffet Supper and Reception Forced Indoors By Weatherman's Tricks; Large Throng Includes Many Capital Notables

By Hope Ridings Miller

LIFE FOR MRS. IRENE CALDWELL these days is just one housewarming fete after another. A couple of weeks ago, shortly after she moved into her new home at 3023 Forty-fourth place, several of her friends got together and arranged a surprise party for her in her very own garden.

Last night a hundred friends combined forces to give a housewarming buffet supper and reception for her. Under the aegis of Mrs. Burks Summers and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, plans were made and carried out with expert precision so that around 7:30 p. m., when the company began to collect, the dining room table fairly groaned beneath a lavish spread and small tables were set up to accommodate the guests.

Original arrangements had called for tables on the terrace, but with the weatherman still playing tricks and giving the town February breezes at the end of May, the party turned out to be definitely an indoor affair. Most of the large company came in time for supper.

Others who had early engagements drifted in for the informal reception that followed. Louis Brown, pianist, held forth as the entertainer of the evening, but he had plenty of help from talented guests who joined in an informal songfest and helped to make the housewarming-Decoration Day celebration a gay event from first to last.

Among the guests were the Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Ertegun, Justice and Mrs. William O. Douglas, Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, Senator and Mrs. Scott Lucas, Senator Tom Connally, Representative and Mrs. Luther Johnson, Representative and Mrs. Ralph Church, Representative and Mrs. Ralph Brewster, Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Richberg, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Albert Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Manly, Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacCracken, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Seal.

Many Notables Among Guests

Others there were Mr. and Mrs. Harllee Branch, Col. and Mrs. O. R. McGuire, William Lipscomb, Mr. and Mrs. Royal McKenna, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Hartson, Justice and Mrs. Justin Miller, Dr. and Mrs. John J. Shugrue, Mr. and Mrs. James Moran, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Distler, Mr. and Mrs. Lucy Reynolds, Judge and Mrs. Oscar Bland, Mr. and Mrs. Walker Buel, Mrs. George Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Thad Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Davis, Col. and Mrs. J. Clinton Tribby, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Waldrop, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Montfort. Still others there included Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Green, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Irish, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wilber, Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Thurston, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Hayden, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. James Haley, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Lee Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Bulkley Griffin, Dr. and Mrs. Robert E. Moran, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Mulligan, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gableman and many, many others.

Bride Wears Molyneux Model

Meanwhile, down at Rehoboth Beach, another party got under way last evening. Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Fleming opened their cottage there yesterday for the season and had an informal housewarming as a prelude for a series of fetes. They will have as their guests over the week-end Mr. and Mrs. Thilman Hendrick, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Bowie and Frank P. Morse.

Mr. and Mrs. Fleming will return to Washington on Monday and will be joined here by their daughter, Mrs. William S. Renchard, of New York, who will go with them to Hot Springs, Va., for the annual District of Columbia Bankers meeting.

To get back to Rehoboth—Other Capitalites enjoying the holiday week-end there are Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis Smith, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Parker and Judge and Mrs. Oscar Leuhring, who have opened their cottages for the summer. The swanky Indian Beach Club at the resort will give its first dinner dance of the season tomorrow evening.

Miss Leer Wed To Dr. Conlon

The wedding of Miss Regina Leer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leer, of Washington, to Dr. Joseph Francis Conlon, took place yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Joseph's Church. The Rev. Patrick McAdams officiated.

The bride wore a gown of white satin made with a long train, lace trimmed, a sweetheart neck and long, tight-fitting sleeves. Her lace-trimmed veil fell from a pearl tiara and she carried a cascade of orchids.

Her attendants were Mrs. Edward Kelly, matron of honor, who wore yellow mousseline with a matching hat; Miss Anne Ferguson, Mrs. Bernadette Wales, Mrs. Phillip Degman and Mrs. John Clifford, bridesmaids, and Miss Mary Virginia Newmeyer, junior bridesmaid. The bridesmaids wore blue, with maline hats of the same shade. Miss Newmeyer was in pink silk mousseline with a matching tulle poke bonnet. All carried nosegays of spring flowers.

Thomas Conlon was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Dr. Edward Kelly, Dr. Phillip Degman, James Hane and John Clifford.

Mrs. Fay Riley Speeds To Father's Bedside

Mrs. Garner, Mrs. Brennan Are Honored

Shoreham Luncheon Fete Is Given by Mrs. Schwellenbach

Mrs. John Nance Garner, wife of the Vice President, and Mrs. Robert Brennan, wife of the Irish Minister, shared honors at the luncheon which Mrs. Lewis B. Schwellenbach, wife of the Senator from Washington, gave yesterday in the Louis Seize Room of the Shoreham.

The hostess, who was born in Ireland, wore a simply tailored navy sheer dress and a large bright red hat. Because it was Memorial Day the long table was decorated with three long bowls of red peonies, white larkspur and blue iris.

In the company were Mrs. Alben Barkley, Mrs. Hugo Black, Mrs. Robert Jackson, Mrs. George Norris, Mrs. Morris Sheppard, Mrs. James F. Byrnes, Mrs. Elbert Thomas, Mrs. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Mrs. Sherman Minton, Mrs. Edward Burke, Mrs. H. H. Schwartz, Miss Ida Guffey, Miss Paulette Guffey, Mrs. Allen Ellender, Mrs. Dennis Chavez, Mrs. Lister Hill, Mrs. James H. Hughes and Mrs. Guy M. Gillette.

Also Mrs. Mon Wallgren, Mrs. Martin Smith, Mrs. Anthony J. Diamond, Mrs. John M. Coffee, Mrs. Charles Leavy, Mrs. Aaron L. Ford, Mrs. Sam B. Hill, Mrs. Edward Moran, jr., Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. Glenn J. Gifford, Mrs. John Carson, Mrs. Leslie Biffle, Mrs. Paul F. Dickens, Mrs. Walter A. Bloedorn and Miss Hazel Reavis.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

MRS. CHAUNCEY G. PARKER is expecting her granddaughter, Dora Redway, for a visit this week-end. The visit is a momentous one for Dora, as she will be accompanied by her fiance, Charles Eliot Peirce, and will introduce him to her numerous Parker relatives. It will be remembered that pretty Dora Redway made her bow to the Washington younger set at a dinner given by her grandmother preceding a White House dance for the young Roosevelts last year.

Mr. Peirce, who is a grandson of former President Eliot of Harvard, will be entertained, with his fiancee, over the week-end while he is being admitted to the Parker clan. A large Sunday luncheon given for the family by Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Parker, sr., and a cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Cortlandt Parker are on the calendar for them.

Mrs. Lydia Archbold Strauss is in Washington visiting her mother, Mrs. Anne Archbold. Mrs. Strauss, who lives in Newport, has recently been in Florida with her brother, John Archbold.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Harrower will come down from New York to be week-end guests of Mr. and Ms. Edward Weld. During their visit Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Woods will entertain for the Harrowers.

ONE OF THF PRETTIEST ladies at Arthur Bradley Campbell's dance the other night was Mrs. Hallett Johnson, who was wearing filmy black lace with a beautiful collar of diamonds and turquoises as her chief ornament. Mrs. Johnson had given a dinner before the dance for her two daughters, Katherine and Priscilla, and her guests had accompanied her to Grasslands. Among them were Prince and Princess Hohenlohe, the latter wearing white with silver sequins, Angelica Lloyd, Emily Davis, Eleanor Flood, Alice Barry, Dorris Becker, Winthrop Crane, Randall Hagner, Charles McKenney, Canfield Himes, Sam Biddle and Barry Woods.

Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss also at the Campbell dance, was very chic in simple, white crepe accented with pockets of black jet sequins. She was being congratulated on all sides on the success of her recent Leap Year dance. One lady told Mrs. Auchincloss that she had never had a better time in her life but that also she had never been more exhausted after a night of dancing. Mrs. Emmons Smith, who had been listening pensively, said, "Could it be that we girls dance more and oftener when we do the cutting in?"

Mrs. George Howe reports that her two young daughters, Linda and Lisa, with some of their schoolmates, are working hard on a children's carnival which they will give in her garden on June 8 for the benefit of the Red Cross. They hope by this means to bring some small assistance to the unfortunate children in Europe. The price of admission will be 5 cents for grown-ups and 1 penny for children, and everyone is welcome. The youngsters will sell lemonade, candy and cake, everything to be made by themselves, and little Bessie Wyatt will tell fortunes. Linda and Lisa Howe are painting posters which they will display in convenient places, and other children helping are Judy Gill, Marguerite Kilpatrick, Patsy Henderson and Prudence Smith.

Dance Follows Dinner Party Of Mrs. Doeg

Mrs. Scudder Doeg entertained at a gay dinner party last night in the garden of her home on McGill terrace. Later the guests went to Chevy Chase Club to dance.

Peggy Tuckerman Debut Party Scheduled Today

Many from out of town will attend the debut party this afternoon of Miss Peggy Tuckerman, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, of Tuxeden, Bethesda, Md.

Coming from Philadelphia will be Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Page, Mrs. Clement Biddle, Mrs. Caleb Cresson and Miss Eleanor Cresson. Others include Mrs. Dorsey Cullen, of New York, and Mrs. Bruce Cotten, Mrs. Edward Simpson and Mrs. Tunstall Smith, of Baltimore. Coming from Virginia to assist Mrs. Tuckerman at the tea are Mrs. Huntington Williams, Mrs. William Bell Watkins and Mrs. Karl Boy-Ed.

Following the tea, which, if weather permits, will take place on the lawn, Miss Tuckerman will be honored at dinner for 60 young people. At the same time her parents will entertain the out-of-town guests and several other friends.

Notables Attend Cocktail Party Of Col. Peyser

The Federal Security Administrator, Paul V. McNutt, and Joseph Bentonelli, Metropolitan star, shared honors at the cocktail party given yesterday afternoon by Col. Julius I. Peyser at the Carlton Hotel.

Other guests included Maj. Gen. Peter C. Harris, Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, Gen. Albert L. Cox, Gen. Nathaniel F. McClure, Col. B. K. Cash, Representative Ross A. Collins, Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, Darrell Lane, Gen. Frank T. Hines, Thomas Owen, national historian of the American Legion;

Miss Kraemer Becomes Bride Of Mr. Avery

Mrs. A. W. Stone, of D. C., Is Matron of Honor At Norfolk Nuptial

Of interest here was the wedding last night in Norfolk, Va., of Miss Hester Vail Kraemer, formerly of Washington, to James Thomas Avery, jr., of Richmond, son of Mrs. Daisy Lester Avery, of that city, and the late Mr. Avery. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Thomas M. Vorbrinck, of Norfolk.

The ceremony took place at 8 o'clock at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Meadowbrook, the Rev. George P. Gunn, the rector, officiating. Palms and baskets of white snapdragons massed the altar.

The bride was given in marriage by Dr. Vorbrinck. She wore a Molyneux model of ivory embroidered marquisette over taffeta, with a sweetheart neckline, long sleeves and a full skirt which formed a circular train. Her veil of ivory illusion fell from a halo of appliqued marquisette and orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Allen Weston Stone, of Washington, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore daffodil yellow marquisette with lace insets, a basque waist and tiny puffed sleeves. Her flowers were an arm bouquet of pink snapdragons and blue lupin.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Warren Samuel Burnett, of Richmond, Mr. Avery's sister; Mrs. Benjamin Herbert Cooper, jr., of Washington; Miss Letitia Rider, of Herndon, and Miss Dorothea Freeman, of Norfolk. Their frocks of tulip pink and forget-me-not blue were made like that of the matron of honor, and they wore coronets of blossoms in their hair. Mixed spring flowers formed their bouquets.

Roy S. Duhart, of Port Allegany, Pa., was best man, and the groomsmen were Joseph Milnor Johnson, of Chicago, the bride's cousin; Emmett M. Avery, jr., of Richmond, cousin of Mr. Avery; Benjamin Herbert Cooper, jr., of Washington and William G. Wells, of Newport News.

Miss Friedman, Dr. Woolf Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Brode announce the marriage of the latter's sister, Miss Dorothy Friedman, and Dr. Louis B. Woolf yesterday at 9:30 a. m. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Kate Woolf.

The Rev. Norman N. Gerstenfeld officiated at his home, in the presence of a few friends and relatives. Following the ceremony, there was a wedding breakfast at the Shoreham Hotel.

There were no attendants. The former Miss Friedman wore a frock of aquamarine crepe, with a fitted coat and a wide-brimmed white picture hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of white orchids.

After the breakfast, Dr. Woolf and his bride left for a wedding trip to Biloxi, Miss.; Memphis, Tenn., and New Orleans. Upon their return they will make their home at the Hightower Apartments on Sixteenth street.

Mrs. Woolf is a graduate of George Washington University. Dr. Woolf is a graduate of the University of North Carolina and Georgetown University Medical School.

About the Town with DUDLEY HARMON

THE AUSTRALIAN MINISTER, Richard Casey, cut short his first "friendly air raid" to the Middle West and has returned here because of pressing demands at the legation.

The weather's been so bad that Mr. Casey had to leave his own brand-new cabin plane behind and make the trip on commercial lines. He was accompanied by Mrs. Casey and P. R. Heydon and Miss Pat Jarrett, of the legation staff.

Former Gov. Phil La Follette gave a luncheon for the Minister at Madison, Wis., and in Chicago he conferred with Mayor Kelley, Gen. Charles G. Dawes, former Ambassador to Great Britain; Col. Frank Knox and Col. Robert McCormick. He hopes to make some more tours just as soon as "duties permit."

HERE AND THERE at Arthur Bradley Campbell's big dance at Grasslands the other evening: Fire engines arriving to put out a blaze in the back of somebody's car. One of the young ladies had tossed her cigarette butt out the window and it landed in the back seat. Several hours later the car burst suddenly into flames.

A group of bridge players bidding at the top of their voices while strolling musicians wandered in their midst . . . Mrs. Sidney Lee, who entertained at a small dinner before the dance, wearing pale blue crepe, accordion pleated, with a silver belt. Mrs. Lee is writing a book about her tour of Africa last year but says Washington is a hard place to get any work done.

JUSTICE FRANK MURPHY whirling about in a dignified way . . . Nathan Bartlett with Capt. John Hasey, of the American Volunteer Ambulance Corps, who at the last minute has canceled plans to return to the front . . . Eleanor Flood and Peggy Townsend doing expert rhumbas.

The Moran McConihes, the latter in a gay spring print with a big diamond pin . . . Attractive Fontaine Fahnestock, who says she plans to spend ten days here with her father, Snowden Fahnestock . . . Mrs. Alexander Phillips, a bride of several weeks, waltzing with her husband. The former Elise Hill, who now lives in New York, wore black lace.

ELLEN HEWES FLOWERREE, in white tulle, with a brace of gardenias around her wrist. Ellen says she is seriously contemplating returning to her New Orleans home and learning to cook and sew.

Mrs. James Clement Dunn, Miss Zeva Fish, in sapphire blue, and dozens of others, officials, diplomats and residents, many lingering on until dawn. Incidentally, Mrs. Dunn's son-in-law, Count Guy de Baillet-Latour, is in London instead of at the front as has been reported.

THE BRITISH EMBASSY staff here, which gets bigger and bigger, is expecting another addition. He is the Hon. Julian Chetwynd, son of the Eighth Viscount Chetwynd, and will arrive about the first of next month as temporary secretary, his first diplomatic post. His wife, who is a niece of Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax, is remaining in England.

William L. White, Son of Editor, Tells Club of Over There

New York, May 30.

THE OVERSEAS Press Club, which is my only club, had a great luncheon on Wednesday, because the speaker of the day was William L. White, son of the noted William Allen White, of Emporia, Kansas, and just returned from the death bed of the Old World.

ALICE HUGHES

Bill is an interesting young fellow. For years he was only the son of a famous father, and probably felt that blight. But when he was turned loose in the cockpit of Europe as a correspondent, he became a really first-run newspaperman in his own right, and has written brilliantly of the tragedies of Finland, Norway and Germany. He spoke to us without swank, but with simple charm and complete authority. He knew what went on over there, and he told us calmly. His talk had a lot of good phrases, too. For instance, he said that the London Times, late in reaching other European capitals, was probably carried by special turtle courier, which in newspaper minds is a honey.

A lot of girls turned up for this one, both members and guests. Among them were Billie Lyons, wife of Gene Lyons, who reigned in Moscow for the United Press when I was covering the Capital in my small way. And another was Grace Davidson, of Boston, whom I also met while trying to break into the Kremlin. There were Fay Gillis Wells, wife of Linton, and a treasured friend; Peggy McAvoy, blonde wife of J. P., the writer; Amy Vanderbilt, publicist; Mary Knight, Gerry Morris and Kate Sproehnle.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Drunken Father Reviles Daughters, 18 and 20, For Leading Normal Social Life; Yet They Support Family of 9 That He Neglects; Mother Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have a problem that is torturing me. I am 39, have been married 22 years, and have seven children, ranging in ages from 3 to 20 years. Until five years ago, I was fairly happy. I loved my husband dearly, although he drank and had an uncontrollable temper.

Five years ago, he got drunk, wrecked the company's truck, lost his job and had to pay over $100 in fines, etc. I was away at a relative's funeral, and returned to find him in jail. Although I was then expecting my seventh child, I went to work to help as I could.

Three months later, our eldest daughter, then 15, graduated from high school with highest honors, winning a scholarship to a small college. With that scholarship, will power and hard work, she completed a college business course, making all A's, while working as office manager for the college president.

In the meantime I was working, with his mother to care for, in addition to the children. (Later she left us, saying she couldn't bear her son's drunken brawls.) He went here and there doing odd jobs, drinking up most of his pay. I worked up until the week before the baby was born. My daughter left college, although her great ambition was to study law. From then until now she has held a stenographic position in a local store, spending all her salary on the family needs.

The second daughter (now 18) graduated from high school at 16, got an office job immediately and also gives her earnings to help me. When the baby was three months old, I went back to work in a factory. My husband got his old job back but drank so much he was fired again. Since then, our life has been hell. I have had him sent to an institution three times, trying to help him.

He gets violently drunk, blacks my eyes, knocks me around and calls the girls and me unspeakable names. He claims now that he gets drunk because the girls go out a lot of evenings. They are pretty, intelligent and very popular. All their friends are nice college students or college graduates from nice homes—much nicer than we are able to maintain on our combined incomes, with nine persons to feed and clothe, rent and fuel to pay, etc.

Last week, he was drinking when I got home from work—where I am on my feet eight hours continuously. He began abusing the girls, calling them names, saying they were cheap, accusing them of petting with every man that comes along, etc. When I tried to hush him, he wanted to slap me. A few weeks earlier, I had carried a black eye for days. So I called the officers and they took him to jail. He was sentenced to 90 days and there is nothing I can do.

My folks came and they want me to get a legal separation, which I am thinking of doing as soon as I can get the money. But this morning, Miss Haworth, I had a letter from him, enclosing a clipping from your column of May 24, in which 11 p. m. is called "a reasonable curfew" for a 15-year-old girl. But I can't see where this article has any application to my daughters.

Please advise me what to do. Since he reads your column, perhaps you can reach him. I will thank you for an immediate reply.

MRS. V. M. H.

No Reason or Justice In Man's Attitude

DEAR MRS. V. M. H.: Your husband has sunk so low that he cannot be "reached" by any agency save the hand of God. If he has any vestiges of self-respect left, and any desire for rehabilitation, there is an altruistic group known as Alcoholics Anonymous which could throw him a lifeline that has led to enduring sobriety for hundreds of other comparable derelicts.

But this group will not attempt to "sell" him salvation; nor would it encourage any member of his family to get behind him and push him in that direction. Only if he comes of his own burningly sincere volition, is there any hope of his being helped. Alcoholics Anonymous can be located through the Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene, at 1464 Columbia road northwest, Washington, D. C., telephone ADams 1033.

It is almost intolerably painful to consider the picture you paint—of this alcoholically debased wastrel viciously affronting the sensibilities of his heroically blameless daughters with "unspeakably" coarse language and lascivious accusations, when they are but gallantly engaged in trying to lead a normal social life while carrying so heartbreaking, and so unjust, a burden that is entirely of his making.

I agree with you that would be neither reason nor justice in your trying to "lay down the law" to them about when to come home. In the first place, were they not of the most responsible and cooperative disposition, they would not have taken up his castoff load so promptly and bravely. In the second place, since they make an adult's contribution, they are entitled to an adult's compensations and privileges.

And in the third place, the hours they keep are practically identical with those kept by most socially active members of the Girl Reserves' group of the local Y. W. C. A.—an essentially conservative and indisputably "high minded" group of senior high school-age girls. (The slogan of this group, incidentally, is "To face life squarely," and its purpose, "To find and give the best"—which approximates the ideals you have held up to your daughters).

Since your husband has willfully failed to give his daughters the advantages, safeguards or decent example that he might have given, that would have enriched their lives, and since he seeks actually to deprive them of such wholesome experiences as they are able to wrest for themselves—it becomes very clear that he has forfeited all right to share their home: the home which they maintain. Therefore, I think you should by all means petition the court for legal separation from him. If you lack funds to proceed, write the Legal Aid Bureau, at 1400 L street northwest, Washington, D. C., for information as to whether (and how) you can get free legal counsel and representation in your community.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Movie Heroes Lose Hair Fast, Actress Notes

Toupes Must Abound Among Stars, if you Believe Gladys George

By Ida Jean Kain

NEXT time you start brooding about the way your husband is losing his hair, be blad you're not married to your favorite screen hero—who is probably losing his much more rapidly! After an interview with Gladys George, Sparkling comedienne or superb dramatic actress as the role requires, we gloomily suspect every handsome masculine thatch in pictures. More than likely, it's only a toupee.

From what we gather, the more popular the star, the less his chances are of calling his hair his own. The trouble may be the long hours under the Klieg lights which, we are reminded, don't do anybody any good! Or it may be the hectic space. But it seems that a very high percentage of the movie idols resort to the hairdresser's artistry and glue while picture making. No wonder it's hard to recognize the newspaper photographs of some of the stellar heads!

Advises Brushing

Miss George and Leonard Penn, her good-looking actor husband, have been thankful so far that Mr. Penn's hair is flourishing. But they have given the matter considerable thought. The day may come . . . and the way to ward it off, they believe, is by brushing, brushing, brushing. Their conclusion coincides perfectly with that of our won favorite dermatologist who says that a man—or woman—can't do better than brush vigorously for several minutes a day. His stock case is that of a young nurse who cut her hair very short and abandoned her hairbrush. First thing she knew, her hair was falling out by the handful. She went back to brushing, and her hair gradually thickened again.

That's all there is on the subject of hair this time!

As a matter of fact, this talk with Miss George was supposed to revolve about her weight control. She is only 5 feet 3 inches tall and her weight never goes beyond 115 pounds. Because her mother, who had been beautiful, allowed herself to become stout in later years, Miss George has always been weight conscious. At first, in fact, often went without meals.

Watches Diet

"I did everything the wrong way," she says.

But some years ago when she was a struggling actress and had to live on 35 cents a day, she discovered that by eating the right foods you do not need or want nearly as much.

She likes foods that are broiled, baked or roasted and never touches fried foods. She prefers salad without dressing—her idea of a delicious salad is crisp head lettuce with celery salt and lemon. She doesn't eat sweets. Weight is no problem to anyone with those food habits!

For exercise, she dances. She loves to dance and would ask nothing better than to dance for hours each night after the show! That is marvelous exercise for the figure, and her measurements are: Bust, 34 inches; waist, 24½ inches; hips, 35 inches.

Her figure today is the envy of many an actress on stage and screen. And, when you see her in one of those "mother parts," credit her good acting! She doesn't look a day over 24½!

Beauty Secrets

By CAROLYN ABBOTT

Summer Care of Skin

IN THEIR efforts to acquire a beautiful bronze glow, sun-tan enthusiasts often neglect the fundamental care of the skin. Frequently in summer, women douse their faces and bodies with suntanning lotions and junk their routines that they adhere to so closely in winter. Consequently, the pores and texture of the skin becomes coarser and thicker.

While a sun-tan is both fashionable and beneficial, it is not a cover-all for skin defects or neglect. In fact, the more the skin is exposed to the rays of old Sol, the stricter the beauty regime should be to keep the complexion radiant and free from blemishes.

In hot weather the skin should be thoroughly cleansed several times a day to remove all dirt and grime. The pores should be guarded with pore cream to prevent clogging and future blackheads. Lubricating cream should be applied often to counteract the drying effect of the sun. And now is a good time to stock up on beauty supplies, for many of the stores have their best preparations on sale at reduced prices. One local firm, in conjunction with the creator of a famous line of cosmetics, is offering a fine quality of French preparations at special prices from June 1 to June 8. You can get a cleansing cream and night cream for the price you usually pay for one separate item. Pore creams, make-up remover, hand lotions and other creams are paired together on this sale. Not only can you obtain the products at a low cost, but there is a special representative on hand for consultation on skin problems.

Spring Emergency

I have reached the stage where I do not care
What crises may threaten anywhere,
Work may be piling upon my desk,
My personal problems growing gigantesque
The house may be burning, bombs dropping galore,
Hitler and Goering may be at my back door,
But everything else must definitely wait,
Until my dresser drawers are straight.

Today's Social Notes

(From the Truthtown Torch)

Mrs. Bartholomew Beetle, whose unpredictable antics keep Truthtown society in hot water, is causing considerable concern among members of her set over her plans for disposing of her family mansion in the aristocratic Belfry Heights section.

Mrs. Beetle, who has long been trying to get rid of her town house, and who recently was prevented from turning it into a home for wayward girls, is now said to be planning the establishment of a Divorcees' Refuge to help women recently returned from Reno in making their social adjustments. Dowagers of the neighborhood are said to be up in arms over the matter.

The Dash of Lavender

The wedding Wednesday of Miss Natalie (Jinks) Rhumba and Mr. Eustace (Sonny) Dudd was almost disrupted for a moment by the "whispering gallery" when the bride appeared carrying one of the new wedding bouquets with a dash of color. Centered in the white blossoms was a single large calla lily tinted a deep lavender.

Parachute Patrol

The Ladies' Volunteer Drill Team has reorganized as the Ladies' Parachute Patrol, Mrs. Badgerton Wellwether, colonel of the organization, has announced. Mrs. Ethelbert Vanderpuffer, who has been raised to the rank of major, will be in charge of the section for parachute defense while Mrs. Wimplegate Waddly (also a major) will be in charge of the parachute offense section, whose members will be trained for active service in parachutes.

Like the drill team, the patrol will hold biweekly meetings on the lawn back of the Plush Sofa Club until the members leave for their summer homes. Preceding the Tuesday drill, a tea will be held at the club honoring the patrons of the patrol. The following patrol captains will pour: Mrs. Axminster Oxley, Mrs. Rufus Portleigh, Mrs. Mortimer Silo and Mrs. Sylvester Sailem.

Statistical Glimpses

Seen at the Whiffington cocktail party: The Nicholas Flitterjigs, who expect the stork in December; J. Hollingsworth Dripp, who can make the most divine souffles and who has just returned from the Mayo Clinic; Mrs. Artemus Bingle, telling friends about her Pekinese Mitzi being in an "interesting" condition; Sadie Simperson, hatless, whose name is being linked romantically with that of Philander Plunkette, whose wife, the former Maisie Mooch, is now in Reno; Mrs. Cartwright Van Husk, whose second husband was J. Adelbert Pinch; the Osborne Kettledrums, who are expecting the stork for a second visit October 17; Mr. and Mrs. Caesar DeBilk, who have patched up their recent difference over the seasoning in the capon stuffing; Marcia Van Tinsel (without Otis); Mrs. Mike McPace, who has a new masseur named Zinchberg; Mrs. Wynkoop Bigger, whose dress shop has gone into bankruptcy, and many others.

Hail and Farewell

A farewell cocktail party for Mrs. Thornberry Flitt, who is leaving tonight for the West, was given yesterday by Mrs. John Smith 3d. Mrs. Flitt will visit friends in Pittsburgh, Pa., Cleveland, Ohio, and possibly Chicago before returning about June 1.

Suburban Notes

Mrs. Roscoe Juniper won first prize for the most original backyard costume last week at the fashion show presented by the Merry Matrons Club of Spirea Village before the Rosebud Heights Civic Association. Her outfit included a pair of 1933 slacks which had shrunk noticeably, a discarded Tuxedo of her husband's and a floppy garden hat trimmed with a single red poppy.

Mrs. William Walrus won second prize for her outfit of shorts, an abbreviated beach robe and a Boy Scout hat. Mrs. Lester Skipmunk won third prize with an old sweater worn over a pair of seersucker pajamas.

Glamorous Glass Recalls Drinking Containers of Old

Glamorous glass . . . it's one of the most taken-for-granted things in everyday life yet one of the most amazing materials that man has developed. For it, too, is a man-made substance, though it has been in our bag of tricks so long that we're apt to forget that it really belongs in the same laboratory category as such things as lucite, plexiglad, tenite and other more modern compounded materials.

Glass has a monopoly on the drinking business to the point the material "glass" has given the name to the object "glass." Actually, drinking containers have, through the ages, been made of many other shapes and materials—gourds, calabashes, coconut shells, sea shells, cows horns, rhinoceros tusks even human skulls. Gold, silver and most of the metals have been used for drinking containers.

The ancient Saxons preferred drinking from horns, for they were great hunters, and once their horn had been lifted for a drink it could not be set down till emptied.

But the more man through the ages has experimented with different materials for drinking containers, the more he likes glass. Not only because he can see what he is drinking, but because it's the one type of vessel the cleanliness of which is obvious at a glance.

Average Half Price!

And this is always one of the most popular half-price days of the year! Things seem to accumulate both in our own stocks and with manufacturers who dispose of their surpluses here at this time of year, so that today we are able to present nearly one-hundred thousand dollars' worth of wearables and accessories for you to choose from at an average of half the original prices! Small wonder that these days tax our facilities! Of course this does not mean our entire stock—only those things listed with half-price tags!

Now Please Read Conditions of Sale! Every now and then a customer is aggrieved because we will not accept return of half-price merchandise, but that is a condition of sale!

No returns, please, for any reason!—No. C. O. D.'s—no mail orders, no deliveries promised for day of sale. Pinfittings 25c—a charge for gift boxes. Store opens as usual at 9:30 o'clock. All items below and many, many others go on sale at this time.

U. S. Worker Dies, 15 Hurt In Crashes

Treasury Clerk Fatally Injured As Car Skids Off Rain-Swept Road

A Government worker was killed and at least 15 persons were injured, two seriously, in traffic accidents in Washington and Virginia yesterday on pavements made slippery by Memorial Day drizzles.

J. B. Schommer, Treasury Department clerk, who lived at 3332 Quesada street northwest, was fatally hurt. J. Carlton Haltermann, of Broadway, Va., who also works in Washington, was critically injured.

Schommer and three other Washington residents were taken to Memorial Hospital, Lynchburg, Va., after their car skidded off the road two miles east of Concord and plunged down a steep embankment.

Driver Injured

Schommer, driver of the car, died at 10:15 p. m. His wife and Miss Georgianna B. Moncure and her niece, Miss Elsie Moncure, both f 1311 Wyoming avenue northwest, were not seriously hurt.

Halterman, en route to Washington, and seven others were injured in a collision 2 miles north of Woodstock, Va. He received a crushed pelvis, fractured hip and other injuries and was described as being in critical condition.

The Halterman car skidded into a bridge abutment before the cars collided on the rain-soaked Lee-Jackson highway. His mother, Mrs. Milton Halterman of Broadway, and Arnold Clements, of Colonial Village, Va., occupants, received cuts and bruises.

In the other car, Mrs. Roland Stoneburner, of Toms Brook, Va., suffered a probable fracture of the jaw and other facial injuries; her husband and two children, Judy, 4, and Marie, 3, and Miss Edna Stine, a nurse at Oteen, N. C., were not seriously hurt.

Messenger Hurt

In the District, William J. Kirk, 17-year-old Western Union messenger, was hurt when he was knocked from his bicycle at Louisiana avenue and North Capitol street northwest by an automobile driven by Robert F. Decker, 20, of 3011 Seventh street northeast. He was admitted to Casualty Hospital with a possible skull fracture and injuries to both knees.

Also treated at Casualty were two 7-year-old girls who were slightly injured when struck by an automobile as they crossed the street at Delaware and Constitution avenues northeast. They are Jane Ayers, of 13 Sixth street northeast, and Helen Morgan, of 9 Sixth street northeast. Benton J. Groves, 24, of Suitland, Md., was driver of the car.

Paul Bennett, 26, of 1471 Florida avenue was charged with reckless driving at the Seventh Precinct after he was treated at Georgetown Hospital for a shoulder fracture received when his truck went out of control and struck an electric pole in the 2900 block Foxhall road.

Traffic Squad Formed

Formation of a new traffic squad which will make scientific investigations of all accidents in the District beginning next week was announced yesterday by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police.

Headed by Arthur E. Miller, Northwestern University traffic institute graduate who will be made a police inspector tomorrow, the squad will do work now divided among the traffic division, the precincts and the homicide squad.

Free to pick his men, Miller will start organizing the squad as soon as he is sworn in at 10 a. m. tomorrow to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Inspector Benjamin A. Lamb, Maj. Brown said.

Already selected as one of Miller's investigators is Detective Sergt. William J. Liverman, whose six years as a member of the homicide squad have been spent almost exclusively on investigation of traffic fatalities. Previously, Liverman was assigned to the traffic division.

Miller just returned from nine months at Northwestern, where he was a Kemper fellow studying traffic safety.

While its main task will be determining and recording all facts about accidents, the squad also will do its part in promoting the three "e's" in traffic safety — enforcement, education and engineering.

Maj. Brown said the unit would be held responsible particularly for strict enforcement of violations involving moving traffic. Members will lecture to citizens associations and school assemblies, he said. The squad will study such engineering problems as "bottle necks and street obstructions" in cooperation with the Traffic Department and the Highway Engineer, said Brown.

In addition, he said, Inspector Miller will act as "traffic coordinator" between the Police Department and other District governmental agencies.

Roosevelt Spurs U. S. Into War, Browder Charges

New York, May 30 (AP).—Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist Party in the United States, opened the party's 4-day national nominating convention today by declaring that President Roosevelt, "backed by the economic royalists, is taking the United States into war with a speed worthy of Hitler."

He said Premier Mussolini of Italy is waiting for the "best opportunity" to enter while the United States "is sliding" into the conflict.

Approximately 2,000 delegates and 2,000 guests—party officials set the figures—crowded the hall for the opening session, which began with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" and the "Internationale."

Germany Losing Her Soul While Winning Battles, Webster Commencement Speaker Says

While Germany seems to be winning in the early stages of the war, it will take the long toll of the years" to show how much she is losing, Dr. William S. Abernethy, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, said in his address on spiritual versus material things, at the Marjorie Webster School's commencement last night.

Germany is losing her soul, while she is winning battles, he said. He urged the 56 graduates to reach out into the realm of spiritual things in these days when materialism is rampant.

Three girls were announced as winners of $200 scholarships. They are Edith Wyman, Annapolis; Vivian Frey, Williamsport, Pa., and Blanche Chittum, Charleston, W. Va. Two Washington girls, Charlotte Davis and Ruth Carl, received $100 scholarships.

On the list of others mentioned for high scholastic records were Jane Leicht, Wisconsin; Mena Branch Fleming, Wilson, N. C.; Lois Ann Johnson, Wisconsin; Blanche Mitchell, Weldon, N. C.; Orra Thomas, Silver Spring, Md., and Lucille O'Neil, Washington.

Edith Wyman received a silver cup, as the outstanding athlete. Cronin Marks, of Apalachicola, Fla., was an honor graduate in business, receiving a degree awarded by the National Association of Accredited Commercial Schools.

No U.S. Vote Asked Of Leopold's Act

The Belgian Embassy stated yesterday that it is conducting no vote among nationals in the United States to determine whether they support King Leopold's action in surrendering to Germany, or that of the cabinet in holding out.

The Embassy's announcement came after an Associated Press dispatch revealed that Belgian residents of Mexico City were summoned yesterday to vote on the question.

"We have not heard of that development," an attache declared. "We have received no orders to conduct such a ballot here."

Memorial Designer Here With Petition

Trygve A. Rovelstad, of Elgin, Ill., designer of the Pioneer Memorial, tribute to the pioneers of Illinois, was in Washington yesterday with a scroll bearing signatures of persons advocating erection of the memorial in Illinois, as contemplated in the Lucas bill.

The scroll bore names of Cabinet members, Vice President Garner and a large number of Congressmen. The Lucas bill calls for creation of a commission to provide for completion of the memorial and would appropriate $50,000. A similar sum has been promised by the State of Illinois to help pay for the monument.

News Story of Rare Headache Leads D. C. Printer to Cure

Histamine Relieves Chronic Pains Of Vascular Disorder; Victim Had Been Driven to Drink Half Pint a Day

The case of a 30-year-old printer whose reading of a certain newspaper story led indirectly to his being cured of a rare, painful form of chronic headache was reported yesterday by a Washington physician.

Dr. Wallace M. Yater, professor of medicine at George Washington University School of Medicine, described the case in the latest issue of the District Medical Society's Annals.

Thirteen months ago three Mayo Clinic doctors reported on their studies of 84 patients suffering from "vascular headache," in which they recognized the affliction to be a distinct clinical entity, quite different from migraine. Attacks ocurred from two to 20 times weekly, day or night, lasting 15 minutes to several hours.

Pain was limited to one side of the head. It involved the eye, neck, temple and sometimes the face. Apparently the condition was due to abnormal dilation of blood vessels in the head. Successful results, including some cures, were obtained by injection of the chemical histamine.

Ever since the first comprehensive description of the disease at the Mayo Clinic, Dr. Yater has been on the lookout for a Washingtonian with vascular headache symptoms. Fellow physicians were unable to help him.

Then, one day, "Mr. H. H. B." presented himself to Dr. Yater. A 10-year headache sufferer, he had diagnosed his own case from a newspaper account of the newly recognized disease.

For the first eight years the pain had occurred on the right side of the head. A six-month remission followed, then the pain returned on the left side. It was so great that the young monotype operator was driven to drink, consuming a half pint daily.

Histamine treatment was started, the patient being instructed how to give himself the injections. From the very first day the attacks ceased, but the therapy was continued for nearly two months.

"The patient states that since the completion of therapy on March 9 there have been no headaches," Dr. Yater reported.

Capital News in Brief

Purse Snatched

Maude B. Stomstreet, 65, of 40 I street northwest, had her pocketbook containing $8 and minor valuables snatched from her hand at Fourth and H streets northwest, last night by two colored boys who fled up an alley.

Fire Comes to Firemen

Firemen of No. 3 Engine Co. had a fire brought to their door last night when Kenneth H. Jury, a cab driver, of Rockville, Md., rushed into the engine house and cried, "My cab's on fire." An extinguisher quickly put out the blaze in the front seat of the taxi.

False Alarm at Yard

A false alarm of fire in the Navy Yard yesterday brought into action Yard and District apparatus, the Marine Guard and the Metropolitan Police Department.

The alarm originated near a Navy garage, sounded over the yard alarm system and was relayed over the municipal system by sentries ordered to call for District aid in case of fire. Officials last night were investigating the source.

Plan to End No Man's Land Offered

Delano's Proposal Sent to Bankhead, Who Refers It To D. C. Committee

By James D. Secrest
Post Staff Writer

A new proposal to solve the 94-year-old dispute over the District-Virginia boundary was offered to Congress yesterday by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission as another District day in the House was indicated to clear up last-minute legislation.

Frederic A. Delano chairman of the commission, submitted a draft of a bill to Speaker Bankhead and urged Congress to define the boundary that has been in dispute since the Federal Government returned Arlington County and Alxandria to the State of Virginia in 1846. The letter was referred to the House District Committee.

The effect of the new plan would be to eliminate the "no man's land," where police jurisdiction has been confused, by giving to Virginia jurisdiction over virtually all of the dry land south of the highwater mark along the south side of the Potomac River.

Delano pointed out that the present disputed boundary runs roughly along the highwater mark on the Virginia shore as it existed January 24, 1791, when George Washington by proclamation fixed the boundaries of the District of Columbia.

Exact Line Undefined

Although the Supreme Court has three times rendered decisions on boundary disputes and a commission reached a decision six years ago, the exact line has never been defined.

A few years ago, however, after Congress failed to ratify the verdict of the District-Virginia Boundary Commission, interested Federal agencies agreed on the marking of the line. Moreover, the Federal Government has in recent years acquired title to most of the land in dispute and much additional along the Mount Vernon Memorial Boulevard.

Many fills and dredges along the south side of the Potomac River, particularly in connection with construction of the National Airport at Gravelly Point, have made the boundary line more confusing, Delano said.

"The altered boundary line has led to considerable confusion and definitely retarded the administration of justice along the Virginia shore," he informed Congress.

Enactment of the bill into law, he added, "will greatly aid in proper policing and administering justice throughout this area." The Federal Government will lose none of its holdings and will retain title to all land found to lie between the boundary as of 1791 and what may be fixed by Congress.

Meeting Called for Monday

The Coast and Geodetic Survey would mark the boundary under the terms of the bill. The line in general would follow the highwater line to the present pierhead line before the port of Alexandria.

Because of the change in plans for adjournment of Congress, it appeared probable that House leaders would give the District another day to present uncontroversial legislation to the House.

As a consequence, Chairman Randolph yesterday called a meeting of the House District Committee for Monday.

Among the bills which will be considered are several minor measures passed by the Senate, the Commissioners' amendments to the women's eight-hour law, the compromise plan for recording motor vehicle liens and an amendment to a bill on the House calendar prohibiting the sale of convict-made goods in Washington.

Representative Eberharter (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, expects to be prepared to present a report on his liquor inquiry. Another meeting of his subcommittee was held yesterday, and all but a few questions, including a government dispensary recommendation, were decided.

Dramatic Society Honors Members For Notable Service; Seven District Undergraduates Are Among Recipients

Golden keys for notable service in the Harlequins, undergraduate dramatic society of Catholic University, were presented to 14 members of the society at its first annual key dance last night at the University dining rooms. The Rev. Gilbert F. Hartke, O. P., head of the department of drama and speech, presented the keys.

Recipients were Leo A. Dunn, John F. Ertter, George J. Hayes, Joseph C. Michalowicz, Charles B. Ramsdell, Anthony J. Scullen, jr., and Joseph A. Rattigan, all of Washington; and John J. McKenna, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Anthony C. Messuri, City Island, N. Y.; Carmon F. Pirro, Solvay, N. Y.; Joseph A. Roth, Rochester, N. Y.; Arthur L. Sabo, Phillipsburg, N. J.; George H. Tsurouka, Lyndhurst, N. J., and John M. White, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Rev. Gerald F. Dillon, dean of men; the Rev. Joseph N. La Rue, procurator, the Rev. Lawrence J. Cavanaugh, Walter Kerr, Harlequin director, and Dr. Josephine Kallan, of the speech and drama faculty, were guests of honor.

Joseph C. Michalowicz, of Washington, and Francis A. Spitzig, of Lakewood, Ohio, were co-chairmen of the dance.

Estimates Ordered for New Roofs on Capitol Wings

The Seventy-seventh Congress in all probability will convene under new roofs, it appeared yesterday, although the change will not be apparent to members in the Senate or House.

David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, disclosed that he is preparing estimates aggregating $500,000 for submission to the House Appropriations Committee for inclusion in the last deficiency bill.

Lynn was directed to prepare the estimates by Vice President Garner and Speaker Bankhead after a special joint Congressional committee on Monday recommended that roofs over the east and west wings be replaced.

Little or no opposition is expected now although the House Appropriations Committee a year ago refused to make the funds available until a more thorough examination could be made of the 86-year-old superstructures. This survey confirmed the preliminary report of the Capitol architect.

Lynn said that the glass skylight ceilings over the Senate and House chambers would not be changed; neither would the exterior outlines of the roof be altered. The cast iron trusses that hold up the roofs, however, would be replaced with steel, and the whole construction will be insulated against fire and weather.

Arnold to Quit Lawyers' Guild

Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold said yesterday that he was "going to resign" from the National Lawyers Guild, "liberal" group formed in 1937 and recently criticized as radical.

Arnold's statement, issued through his secretary, Walter H. Moore, followed the resignation from the same group Wednesday of Attorney General Robert H. Jackson. Neither Jackson nor Arnold was available for comment.

V.F.W. Plans 6th Column In Maryland

Prince Georges Group Plans To Watch for Subversive Activity

Members of a Prince Georges County, Md., post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars have "joined" to form a "Sixth Column" to search out "Fifth Column" activities, it was learned last night.

CURTIS

The vigilante group was decided upon by the Thomas N. Fenwick Post No. 749, of Hyattsville, as a result of information received by it of suspected subversive activities in Prince Georges County.

Post Commander Guy Curtis, of Riverdale, cited two matters which had come to his notice.

Of one of them he said, "There is a naturalized citizen living in this county, holding an important Government position, who is continually running down Governmental procedures. He is always telling how much better Hitler would handle things if he were here."

The other concerns the residence in the county of an admitted former German spy, who is said to have boasted that he would perform the same service again in the event of war between Germany and the United States.

Curtis asserted the purpose of the movement is not to harrass or annoy peaceful aliens or naturalized citizens of whom there is no suspicion of unpatriotic feeling. The "Sixth Column" intends only to investigate such un-American activities as are brought to its attention.

Private citizens, as well as members of the veterans' organization, will compose the committee whose identity will not be made public. They will, however, carry identification cards by which they can make themselves known in case of an emergency.

All information of sufficient importance will be given the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

5 Ministers Back Orme in Arrests Of Beer Dealers

Five Montgomery County, Md., ministers yesterday issued a statement defending Chief of Police Charles M. Orme and the arrests by county police of beer dealers for sale of beer across the counter on Sunday. The ministers contended that whether the law is good or bad is not the question.

"Chief Orme is a sworn officer of the law and he should be encouraged and upheld by all good citizens when he does his duty. We submit that there is a very large element in Montgomery County that still remains unbought, unbossed and uncontrolled," the statement said.

The statement was signed by the Revs. G. G. Kundahl, of Neelsvile Presbyterian Church;; W. J. Elliott, of Grace Methodist Church, Gaithersburg; W. B. Waters, Faith Chapel, Derwood; Mary Margaret Sowers, of the Church of God at Montrose, and C. A. Brubaker, of Mount Zion Baptist Church, near Bethesda.

No F Street "Blackout" Is Summer Promise

Loew Houses Announce Notable Bookings; Miss Landis Decides to Go Back on Her Legs; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

SCREEN ENTERTAINMENT will suffer no blackout on F street during the summer months, according to the line-up of bookings announced yesterday by Eastern Division Manager Carter Barron, of Loew's, Inc. The opening guns in this impending barrage of ostensible hits will be fired a week from today when Spencer Tracy, in "Edison, the Man," will open on the screen at Loew's Capitol and Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Edward Arnold, Henry Fonda and Warren William will break out "Lillian Russell," at the Palace.

BELL

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will carry on during the next few months with Joan Crawford and Fredric March in "Susan and God;" Jimmy Stewart and Margaret Sullavan in "Mortal Storm," a sensational story of Nazi Germany; Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy in "New Moon," and Mickey Rooney and the rest of the "Hardy family" in "Andy Meets a Debutante."

From Twentieth Century-Fox will come "Four Sons," with Don Ameche heading the cast; the Technicolor production of "Maryland," and "The Return of Frank James," with Henry Fonda, Andrea Leeds and Jackie Cooper.

United Artists' contributions will include "Our Town," already cited in these dispatches, and "Turnabout," from the late Thorne Smith's story of scrambled sexes and personalities, with Carole Landis and Adolphe Menjou at the top of the cast. This is the piece that once was made into a stage play by Benn W. Levy as a vehicle for Constance Cummings (Mrs. Levy) and presented first in the National Theater in this city.

At the time of the recent M.-G.-M.-Loew regional convention at the Shoreham, it was reported here that those affiliated companies, at least, would not "hold back the good ones until fall," as was the habitual custom of all producers back in the old days before the installation of theater cooling systems that really cool. This completely sane policy seems to have spread throughout the industry. Of late years the motion picture houses have been ideal refuges in which to cool off during the so-called "heated term." If this cockeyed weather keeps up, the public will be flocking in in equal numbers to get warm!

And that reminds me—or something up there does. Carole Landis confides to the editor, from her home in West Los Angeles, Calif., under date of May 25, that her spirit is being torn and her ambition shattered by a blitzkrieg engineered by her studio's publicity department. Miss Landis, it seems—or does it?—is a "fugitive from a leg-art career," who wishes to be recognized as an actress rather than as a "curvaceous cutie." Her bosses—that would be Hal Roach and his crew—feel differently about it and wish to proclaim her in "Turnabout" as "The Ping Girl—Because She Makes You Purr!" It is a further part of their nasty plot to dig into the files and illustrate their blurbs with devastating "still" photographs of Miss Landis' more provocative physical allurements.

"I would be most grateful to you," says Carole, "if you wouldn't ever stamp me editorially as 'The Ping Girl.' I would appreciate just as much your refusal to publish any of the so-called leg-art and bathing suit pictures of me. If I can't establish myself on my acting, I am perfectly willing to pay the penalty."

While Miss Landis' legs haven't happened across this desk for some time now, a dim memory seems to recall that she has two of them molded—or were they retouched?—to the better contours. However, ever sensitive to the cries of a damsel in distress, we shall make no mention of Miss Landis here as "The Ping Girl"—at any rate, not until we find out what a "Ping Girl" that "makes you purr" may be and something of the technique that causes such catty consequences. It is all, of course, the "Turnabout" influence. Miss Landis obviously has changed places with her press agent. I hope she keeps her files more carefully than the publicity department of another studio once did. "Personal" letters came along to this desk from Ann Sheridan and John Garfield once upon a time and, a little later, the same letters, verbatim, arrived again. Careful, Ping Girl, or pong my word you'll get yourself in Dutch, but plenty!

That "sing-a-song-with-Mike" community warblefest, introduced last week at the Earle, will be continued as a regular feature of the living portion of the weekly bills, with Eileen Ritter roaming around with her traveling microphone. Hereafter, though, it will be carried into all parts of the house so that everybody can get a crack at it. And speaking of such, Dixie Dunbar, Georgia's contribution to Hollywood's ranks of dancing starlets, will headline the stage bill at the Capitol, beginning next Friday.

In Hollywood

Hollywood, May 30.

Francis Lederer, on the set for "I Married a Nazi," with Joan Bennett, when asked if he loved the stage more than pictures, said, "That's like asking a man whether he prefers blondes to brunettes. They're both necessary." Francis just finished a year's tour with Katharine Cornell in "No Time for Comedy." He says main reason we don't see Katharine in pictures or hear her on the radio is that she is never offered a specific role exciting enough. She has plenty of offers, but they always want her under long term contract—and Kit wouldn't be content languishing on a large salary, doing nothing.

Eddie Albert, in his quiet way, has gone about perfecting a deep sea diving helmet, which is made of lucite and is transparent. He's been testing it over at Catalina, and wears it without a diving suit. He's also discussing plans with Jack Warner to open a studio in South America. Eddie speaks Spanish fluently, and we all know how crazy they are about our stars down there.

They practically got out the army to protect Tyrone Power, Clark Gable, Jimmy Cagney and Lew Ayres. Eddie not only wants to go as our ambassador of goodwill, but he'd like to make our first South American motion picture down there . . . Couple of students, who are working their way through the University of Arizona, got an idea and put it through.

They asked Director Wes Ruggles, who is on location at Tucson for the picture, "Arizona," if they could have the night touring guide business for his set, which is 25 miles from the city. He said yes. They've made enough money to finish their education and take a trip to the coast this summer, when Jean Arthur will give them a dinner.

Mary Martin and Richard Halliday send notes to each other on the set.

Louella O. Parsons

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

(While Louella O. Parsons is on her Honolulu vacation, this column is being written by her daughter, Harriett Parsons, producer of "Screen Snapshots.")

Hollywood, May 30 (INS).—Edward G. Robinson has received the good news that his next starring vehicle for Warners will be "The Sea Wolf." Oldtimers still talk about Hobart Bosworth's masterly portrayal of Wolf Larsen, the brilliant but brutal skipper in Jack London's powerful story, and it should be especially interesting to see Robinson bring the character to life again. Supporting Eddie will be Olivia de Havilland and Jeffrey Lynn as the young lovers who find themselves virtual prisoners on the cruel sea captain's ship in midocean. Lloyd Bacon will direct.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Whatever the outcome of the war, Charlie Chaplin will not withhold release of "The Dictator." He has wired Murray Silverstone, president of United Artists, to count on a September release at the latest. Charlie has been worried for fear his humorous treatment of Hitler would not sit well with an embittered world. Now he has decided to solve the problem by appearing as himself at the beginning of the picture and explaining that it is intended as pure entertainment, not propaganda. He's home working on the speech.

"The Warring Forties," an original based on the life of the late Texas Guinan, has just been purchasd by Republic. It should be both colorful and authentic, since it was authorized by John J. Stein, Tex's press agent for years, and Grace Hayward. Stein, who was devoted to the "hello, sucker" gal, refused to sell unless he was included in the deal as technical adviser because he wanted to be on hand to make sure Tex was portrayed sympathetically. And by the way, it occurs to me that Ona Munson has two more pictures to do for Republic. Wouldn't she be a natural as La Guinan?

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Several members of Hollywood's British colony have had word from abroad that actors Frank Lawton and Griffith Jones were both killed in action. Afraid we'll hear many such tragic reports from now on; Rudy Vallee spent a lot of time with Lupe Velez at Catalina last week-end—and isn't that a combination? The Leigh Jasons—she was Ruth Harriet Louise, ace still photographer—are expecting a baby in December.

Mary Martin made her ma a birthday present of the deed to a six-room house in Westwood; Bill Powell and the bride, Diane Lewis, to Arrowhead Springs for a week. Bill just finished "I Love You Again," with Myrna Loy; Mrs. Willie Wyler (Margaret Tallichet) recuperating from injuries sustained when she fell off a horse at the Bel Air stables; Barbara Hutton was at the Victor Hugo with Ricardo Cortez dancing and listening to Dwight Fiske. She and Cary Grant insist they've known each other ages and there's no new development in their friendship. Mebbe; Gene Tierney lunching with Barron Polan at the TCF commissary; Philip Merivale and Gladys Cooper have bought a home out here; Charles Boyer and Ronald Colman with their heads together at the Hollywood Tropics. Business or the war?

That's all today. I'm off to the races.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, May 30.

LUIS QUINTANILLA, Spain's famous artist, is one of the ten painters who were brought to Hollywood by Walter Wanger, to do portraits of the characters in Eugene O'Neill's "Long Voyage Home." At the Wanger studios last week-end, Reeves Lowenthal, director of the Association of American Artists, who is supervising this work, went through the ten studios in which the artists were working, and found that nine of them already had completed their canvases—all except Quintanilla . . . "When," asked Reves, "do you think you'll be finished?" . . . "With the true artist, it isn't a question of finishing it," Luis replied. "The question is—when will I abandon it?

THE PLANS of Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., to enter the aviation business in South America have been cancelled, because of new developments. When he is admitted to the bar, he will work with the Wall Street law firm of Garey & Garey . . . Congressman Bland, Chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, will introduce a bill to regulate the operations of alien seamen employed in the American merchant marine. . . . The producers of the Red Cross benefit broadcast Sunday night were surprised when three of the best-known radio entertainers said they were unable to participate. Then came a phone call from two people, asking if they could be of assistance—although they never had made any broadcasts before this. They were Lunt —and Fontanne, stars of "There Shall Be No Night."

Mischa Auer attended the opening of a new night club last week, and was surprised to see a corps of news photographers encircling him to take his picture . . . "Gentlemen," Auer assured them, "I am the kind of actor who gets close-ups in cafes, but long shots in movies."

JIM FERGUSON, whose wife, Ma Ferguson, again is a candidate for Governor of Texas, is the possessor of the best mailing list owned by an American politician, and will use that list as his first weapon against Gov. O'Daniel's homey radio-campaigning . . . When the Fergusons occupied the State Mansion, Pa Ferguson kept every letter he received from his constituents—letters to which he replied, personally, in longhand. To cement this relationship, he employed a staff to check with the obituary columns, to avoid the embarrassment of addressing political pleas to citizens who have died, and also to send, in longhand, letters of consolation to the bereaved families—families which, in the new campaign, will not forget such touching thoughtfulness.

WASHINGTON is sure that Col. Lindbergh was aided in his speech by William Castle, formerly of the State Department, and Fulton Lewis, the commentator. . . . Bob Hope, the next headliner at Loew's State, and Tony Martin, his competitor across the street at the Paramount, in New York, both employ the same publicist, Mack Millar. They'll both crack records for the engagement. . . . Cecil B. DeMille's assistant, Bill Pine, is in New York on a secret mission—to get material for a Fifth Column movie DeMille will make, called "The Invisible Column." That title will be used, to avoid purchasing the title to Ernest Hemingway's "The Fifth Column."

JIMMY DURANTE, now starring in "Keep Off the Grass," reminisced backstage with some of the cast. He told of the early success of Clayton, Jackson & Durante, and of the first touch of fame which came to him, when a night club was named in his honor—The Club Durant . . . Edward Duryea Dowling, the director, assured Jimmy that he had patronized that cafe, and asked: "But why was it called the Durant—instead of the Durante?" . . . "Funny, but nobody ever asked me that before," Jimmy confessed. "It was called the Durant, because when he had that sign put up we couldn't add the final 'e'—just then, we ran out of money."

WILLIAM HARMON BLACK, the former Supreme Court Justice, is leading the fight against those members of the National Lawyers Guild who refuse to indorse a resolution condemning naziism and communism. United States Supreme Court Justice Douglas, scheduled to address the national convention of the guild, has changed his mind and won't do it . . . The civil liability in the Annenberg tax case was settled quietly in Washington a few days ago.

"Irene" Enters Second Week At Keith's

Anna Neagle Stars In Screen Version Of Musical Comedy

Perpetuating the success that always has attached to its title, "Irene," Herbert Wilcox' picturization for RKO-Radio of the famous musical comedy sails into its second week at RKO-Keith's Theater on a characteristic wave of popular approval.

By no means a literal transcription of the original stage work of James Montgomery, Harry Tierney and Joseph McCarthy, Alice Duer Miller's film adaptation emphasizes the romantic plot and minimizes spectacular use of the score. The famous "Alice Blue Gown" number is made the musical piece de resistance of the picture, with much of the remainder of the score cleverly utilized as background accompaniment by an unseen orchestra. The "Alice Blue Gown" song, however, is given unique treatment, based on its world-wide popularity, and is climaxed by a Harlem swing version that is a honey.

A New Anna Neagle.

Anna Neagle, in the title role, discloses talents that were not revealed in either "Victoria the Great" or "Nurse Cavell," both screen dramas of serious import and heavy demands for painstaking and authentic characterization. Miss Neagle's Irene O'Dare is no less authentic, but it is infinitely gayer and more amusing. The star proves herself a gifted comedienne, singer and dancer, as well as dramatic actress of the first water. She is supported in the costellar role by Ray Milland and by Alan Marshal, Arthur Treacher, Roland Young, May Robson, Billie Burke, Marsha Hunt and Isabel Jewell in assignments only a little less important.

Palace

That her universaliy approved Scarlett O'Hara was no fortunate result of type-casting, Vivien Leigh proves beyond all doubt in "Waterloo Bridge," entering its second week at Loew's Palace this morning. To this heartrending story of another war with pointed allusions to the tragic present, the resourceful English actress brings a character of glowing luminosity.

Robert E. Sherwood has given us over a decade of playwriting since he completed this story of a wartime romance, but "Waterloo Bridge" is of one piece with "Idiot's Delight" and "There Shall Be No Night." His hero, Capt. Cronin, stands on Waterloo Bridge before he leaves for the France of 1940. On that landmark of his life he recalls that this is where he met the gentle Myra, that this is where Myra died. Both sentimental and realistic, Sherwood's drama goes on to tell the struggles the girl endured when her fiance of a few hours was called back to the front.

Taylor Also Measures Up.

With telling restraint, Miss Leigh draws a young dancer of high nobility, whose inner self remains untouched by the bitter world into which misfortune tosses her. Robert Taylor, as the officer, reveals himself a far finer actor than his previous roles have shown. In the more serious episodes of the film he rises impressively to the effective mood of his costar. Virginia Field as Miss Leigh's faithful friend, too, brings a consuming spirit to her part. Lucille Watson is excellent as the captain's understanding mother and C. Aubrey Smith is as telling as usual as the aging army man whose lusty youth is by no means forgotten.

"The Hidden Master," telling of unearthly coincidences; a "trailer," elegantly dubbed "Hollywood, Style Center of the World," and the "News of the Day" are the short subjects supporting this highly recommended feature.

Columbia

"Buck Benny Rides Again" is a fair approximation of a visualized Jack Benny broadcast. It enlists the services of Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, Andy Devine, Phil Harris, Dennis Day and, of course, the star himself, from the familiar Benny radio hour and utilizes the voices of the unseen Mary Livingstone and the rival Fred Allen in their characteristic "ribbing" of Mr. Benny. It even goes so far as to give Carmichael, the polar bear, a stellar role in the action. Incidentally, it opens a repeat F street engagement at Loew's Columbia Theater this morning.

The story flits all over the place from Park avenue in New York to the "dude" and bona fide ranches of the wild and woolly West and, dramatically speaking, is a lot of the old malarkey. Nevertheless, the business has been tricked out and highly simonized in a manner that gives it an artificial gloss that adds to its hair-brained fun.

To fill in the chinks left vacant by a sketchy plot, there are songs, dances, ensembles and a little of everything else you wouldn't expect in a "Western." Benny has never had a picture more shrewdly gaited to his talents.

Actor's Gold Mill Menaced by Flood

Word has ben received by Charles Bickford that the Bistwico Gold Extract Mill, of which he is one of four owners, has been seriously damaged by northern California flood waters.

Situated on the swollen Trinity River, near Weaverville, Calif., the mill narrowly escaped complete destruction, according to the report received by the actor, who is currently at work in "South to Karanga."

Bickford, who spends all of his spare time at Weaverville supervising operation of the plant, immediately dispatched orders to employ special work crews to repair the damage. He will speed to the mill just as soon as he completes his current film assignment.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

MARY LA MARR, the Nightingale's new singer

"NATIONAL HOTEL WEEK." All hotel lobbies around town are going to be decorated, beflowered and gengerally fussed up next week. For it'll be "National Hotel Week" and the luxury hostelries justifiably plan to blow their own horns in celebration. A letter from Osgood Roberts, Mayflower's director of advertising and sales, comes right out and shouts the American Hotel Association's slogan, "Hotels Are an Asset to the Community and a Service to the Nation." That's telling 'em. 'Ray!

J. W. McDonald, the Shoreham's new magico, has the most cunning assistant ever. She's 11-year-old Alice Kleberg, daughter of Representative Richard M. Kleberg, who lives at the Shoreham. Alice can already do that trick of fanning a piece of tissue paper into a real egg.

"BIG NAME" TRIPLE-BAGGER. Three "big name" bands, those of Duke Ellington, Gene Krupa and Eddie Duchin, will blow into the Capital this week-end. It's a record. Krupa and Duchin will play on the S. S. Potomac on Saturday and Sunday respectively. Ellington will stage two concerts at the Howard Theater on Sunday. Bill Gottlieb (Post "Swing Sessions") will act as stage commentator at the Ellington concerts, interview Krupa via WRC on Saturday between 7:30 and 8 p. m.

Rollin Webber, new leader at Del Rio, and Dardanella Breckinridge, the attractive and equally new vibraphonist-singer, have evoked so much customer enthusiasm that their engagement has already been extended.

COMPOSERS A-BOILING! More excitement is being stirred up about the Neptune Room's "Composers' Nights" starting next Tuesday. Music critics have been invited. Evelyn Tyner is virtually buried under manuscripts. Sam Jack Kaufman, the maestro-dynamo of the Capitol Theater, will make and play a special arrangement of one of the numbers. "Telltale Tears," the product of The Post's Gerry Gross and the Shoreham's Milton Strauss, is already being played both at Neptune and on the Shoreham Terrace.

No wonder "Buff" Amorosi, Flagship's maestro, has versatility plus. He was playing road shows at 17, was with Art Hicks in the neolithic jazz era, has trouped with bands from coast to coast. Right now he sings, leads from the drums and does all of the Flagship arrangements. And he's the president of Washington's "Swing Club."

TONIGHT'S STAR EVENT is the opening of the Roger Smith's new Starlight Roof with the sleek and polished rhythms of Arthur Herbert's Manhattan Orchestra. Bert Stevens will do extraordinary things at the piano. The Starlight Roof is a completely charming spot, breeze swept and glittery, always attracts quantities of the "best people." Also the cover charge has been abolished this season. P. S.: Bert Stevens will piano in the hotel's Cafe Caprice regularly for the afternoon cocktail hour.

Clowning honors of the season should go to Skeets and Patsy Cameron, of the Casino Royal. Their act combines bingo, football, pretzel bending and wrestling a la Arnica Hall. They dance, too.

TOP TUNEAGE. There are no Hawaiians in Reggie Child's orchestra in the Metronome Room. But when they go into the "Hawaiian War Chant" you'll think you're on the beach at Waikiki. Special credit to the handsome drummer boy . . . Hi Hat's Angie Rodante is warbling "I Hear Bluebirds" with an expression just like Shirley Temple's. Verra intriguing . . . Any, myomy! you must hear the choral effects injected into the Woodpecker Song" by Lyle Smith's Trio at the Mayfair

. . . And there's no one around town who can sing "Sylvia" with the wonderful lift given to it by the Rainbow Room's Russ Cullen . . . Ditto for Peggy Wood's (King Cole Room) version of "Ol' Rockin' Chair Has Got Me." She fades it off to the tiniest croon.

Maestro Pete Macias, of the Lounge Riviera, tells us that "When You Wish Upon a Star" is just the old "Glow Worm" plus a few rhythmic ruffles.

GLEN ECHO'S HOBBY LOBBY. Paul Kain's bandsmen occupy their spare hours with the quaintest hobbies. Gary Stevens builds model planes. Dick Leith collects phonograph records. Key Foy collects cigarette coupons. Lonny Wilfong goes for French cookery and the Russian ballet. Big Jim Fitzpatrick's hobby is rooting for Boston. Tsk! Tsk!

The customers' eyes pop and their ears stand out when the Anchor Room's Matt Windsor starts his new diller, "Harry's in the Doghouse." It's one of those times when the Anchor's air-cooling is especially handy.

QUARTET OF NIGHTINGALES. No less than four lovely singers were in the Mayflower Lounge the other eve. They included the lounge's present Joan Whitney, Anne Kiess and Ann Beasley who've just finished at New York's Stork and Penthouse Clubs, respectively, and Linda Carroll, Joan's predecessor in the Mayflower.

The stately old gent who presides at the Carlton bar is Louis Meyers, who was chief mixer at the old Shoreham when it used to stand at Fifteenth and H streets.

LOTUS CROWDS. Just stand around the Lotus and eventually you'll see everyone in town and out of town. The other day we saw Architect Billy Barrington (he did the Madrillon), who's now a New Jerseyite; Maestro Morgan Baer and Leon Brusiloff, scores of Easter Star ladies and a big crew of high school boys and girls from Belmont, Pa.

Tomorrow night is the last session this summer for the Pall Mall Room. But you'll be seeing most of the orchestra in other spots around town.

HANDSOME INTERIORS. O'Donnell's Harbor Room inspires loads of people to say they wish they could take it home and put it in their own houses . . . Bark covered logs and rustic lighting fixtures give a real countryside atmosphere to River Bend . . . You'll find no more restful and dignified interior than the red leather doors and deep divans that keynote the Harrington Tavern. Saucy circus murals lend the lighter note.

Contract Bridge

The correct handling of a king is the feature of the play of today's hand. It is not an easy contract of three no trump that South sets out to make, but he manages it by skillfully cutting the communications between his opponents' hands and frustrating their attempts to knockout a vital honor.

He plans his campaign so that he may choose his own time for entering the dummy, and thereby prevents an end play which would force him to lead to the enemy's strength.

Here is the way I. N., the contributor, describes the play. You might try to work it out yourself first.

Today's Hand

Both Sides Vulnerable
SOUTH DEALER

	♠ Q 7 4 ♡ 7 5 ◇ Q J 10 9 8 ♣ A 9 2
♠ 8 3 ♡ A K 6 4 ◇ K 6 4 2 ♣ Q 8 6	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ K J 10 9 ♡ 8 3 2 ◇ 7 5 3 ♣ 7 4 3
	♠ A 6 5 2 ♡ Q J 10 9 ◇ A ♣ K J 10 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
1 ♡	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 NT.	Pass	3 NT.	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: 8 ♠.

"West's lead appeared to be a short suit lead, so North played small, and South let East's nine hold. East now played a club, trying to take North's ace out as an entry. South, however, blocked that plan by going right up with the king. South now took the ace of diamonds and played the queen of hearts. West took with the king and played his second spade. South's ace won and South played another heart, taken by West's ace. West returned a heart and South made two heart tricks. South now played the jack of clubs (if the five is played, West will play the queen). West played small, and the next trick was taken by North's ace of clubs. North now had to make two more diamond tricks. South made one spade, two heart, three diamond and three club tricks for three no trump."

No F Street "Blackout" Is Summer Promise

SCREEN ENTERTAINMENT will suffer no blackout on F street during the summer months, according to the line-up of bookings announced yesterday by Eastern Division Manager Carter Barron, of Loew's, Inc. The opening guns in this impending barrage of ostensible hits will be fired a week from today when Spencer Tracy, in "Edison, the Man," will open on the screen at Loew's Capitol and Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Edward Arnold, Henry Fonda and Warren William will break out "Lillian Russell," at the Palace.

BELL

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will carry on during the next few months with Joan Crawford and Fredric March in "Susan and God;" Jimmy Stewart and Margaret Sullavan in "Mortal Storm," a sensational story of Nazi Germany; Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy in "New Moon," and Mickey Rooney and the rest of the "Hardy family" in "Andy Meets a Debutante."

From Twentieth Century-Fox will come "Four Sons," with Don Ameche heading the cast; the Technicolor production of "Maryland," and "The Return of Frank James," with Henry Fonda, Andrea Leeds and Jackie Cooper.

United Artists' contributions will include "Our Town," already cited in these dispatches, and "Turnabout," from the late Thorne Smith's story of scrambled sexes and personalities, with Carole Landis and Adolphe Menjou at the top of the cast. This is the piece that once was made into a stage play by Benn W. Levy as a vehicle for Constance Cummings (Mrs. Levy) and presented first in the National Theater in this city.

At the time of the recent M.-G.-M.-Loew regional convention at the Shoreham, it was reported here that those affiliated companies, at least, would not "hold back the good ones until fall," as was the habitual custom of all producers back in the old days before the installation of theater cooling systems that really cool. This completely sane policy seems to have spread throughout the industry. Of late years the motion picture houses have been ideal refuges in which to cool off during the so-called "heated term." If this cockeyed weather keeps up, the public will be flocking in in equal numbers to get warm!

And that reminds me—or something up there does. Carole Landis confides to the editor, from her home in West Los Angeles, Calif., under date of May 25, that her spirit is being torn and her ambition shattered by a blitzkrieg engineered by her studio's publicity department. Miss Landis, it seems—or does it?—is a "fugitive from a leg-art career," who wishes to be recognized as an actress rather than as a "curvaceous cutie." Her bosses—that would be Hal Roach and his crew—feel differently about it and wish to proclaim her in "Turnabout" as "The Ping Girl—Because She Makes You Purr!" It is a further part of their nasty plot to dig into the files and illustrate their blurbs with devastating "still" photographs of Miss Landis' more provocative physical allurements.

"I would be most grateful to you," says Carole, "if you wouldn't ever stamp me editorially as 'The Ping Girl.' I would appreciate just as much your refusal to publish any of the so-called leg-art and bathing suit pictures of me. If I can't establish myself on my acting, I am perfectly willing to pay the penalty."

While Miss Landis' legs haven't happened across this desk for some time now, a dim memory seems to recall that she has two of them molded—or were they retouched?—to the better contours. However, ever sensitive to the cries of a damsel in distress, we shall make no mention of Miss Landis here as "The Ping Girl"—at any rate, not until we find out what a "Ping Girl" that "makes you purr" may be and something of the technique that causes such catty consequences. It is all, of course, the "Turnabout" influence. Miss Landis obviously has changed places with her press agent. I hope she keeps her files more carefully than the publicity department of another studio once did. "Personal" letters came along to this desk from Ann Sheridan and John Garfield once upon a time and, a little later, the same letters, verbatim, arrived again. Careful, Ping Girl, or pong my word you'll get yourself in Dutch, but plenty!

That "sing-a-song-with-Mike" community warblefest, introduced last week at the Earle, will be continued as a regular feature of the living portion of the weekly bills, with Eileen Ritter roaming around with her traveling microphone. Hereafter, though, it will be carried into all parts of the house so that everybody can get a crack at it. And speaking of such, Dixie Dunbar, Georgia's contribution to Hollywood's ranks of dancing starlets, will headline the stage bill at the Capitol, beginning next Friday.

In Hollywood

Hollywood, May 30.

Francis Lederer, on the set for "I Married a Nazi," with Joan Bennett, when asked if he loved the stage more than pictures, said, "That's like asking a man whether he prefers blondes to brunettes. They're both necessary." Francis just finished a year's tour with Katharine Cornell in "No Time for Comedy." He says main reason we don't see Katharine in pictures or hear her on the radio is that she is never offered a specific role exciting enough. She has plenty of offers, but they always want her under long term contract—and Kit wouldn't be content languishing on a large salary, doing nothing.

Eddie Albert, in his quiet way, has gone about perfecting a deep sea diving helmet, which is made of lucite and is transparent. He's been testing it over at Catalina, and wears it without a diving suit. He's also discussing plans with Jack Warner to open a studio in South America. Eddie speaks Spanish fluently, and we all know how crazy they are about our stars down there.

They practically got out the army to protect Tyrone Power, Clark Gable, Jimmy Cagney and Lew Ayres. Eddie not only wants to go as our ambassador of goodwill, but he'd like to make our first South American motion picture down there . . . Couple of students, who are working their way through the University of Arizona, got an idea and put it through.

They asked Director Wes Ruggles, who is on location at Tucson for the picture, "Arizona," if they could have the night touring guide business for his set, which is 25 miles from the city. He said yes. They've made enough money to finish their education and take a trip to the coast this summer, when Jean Arthur will give them a dinner.

⁂

Patricia Morison's and William Holden's respective mothers are home from the hospital and on the mend.

⁂

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, May 30 (INS).—Edward G. Robinson has received the good news that his next starring vehicle for Warners will be "The Sea Wolf." Oldtimers still talk about Hobart Bosworth's masterly portrayal of Wolf Larsen, the brilliant but brutal skipper in Jack London's powerful story, and it should be especially interesting to see Robinson bring the character to life again. Supporting Eddie will be Olivia de Havilland and Jeffrey Lynn as the young lovers who find themselves virtual prisoners on the cruel sea captain's ship in midocean. Lloyd Bacon will direct.

Whatever the outcome of the war, Charlie Chaplin will not withhold release of "The Dictator." He has wired Murray Silverstone, president of United Artists, to count on a September release at the latest. Charlie has been worried for fear his humorous treatment of Hitler would not sit well with an embittered world. Now he has decided to solve the problem by appearing as himself at the beginning of the picture and explaining that it is intended as pure entertainment, not propaganda. He's home working on the speech.

"The Warring Forties," an original based on the life of the late Texas Guinan, has just been purchasd by Republic. It should be both colorful and authentic, since it was authorized by John J. Stein, Tex's press agent for years, and Grace Hayward. Stein, who was devoted to the "hello, sucker" gal, refused to sell unless he was included in the deal as technical adviser because he wanted to be on hand to make sure Tex was portrayed sympathetically. And by the way, it occurs to me that Ona Munson has two more pictures to do for Republic. Wouldn't she be a natural as La Guinan?

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Several members of Hollywood's British colony have had word from abroad that actors Frank Lawton and Griffith Jones were both killed in action. Afraid we'll hear many such tragic reports from now on; Rudy Vallee spent a lot of time with Lupe Velez at Catalina last week-end—and isn't that a combination? The Leigh Jasons—she was Ruth Harriet Louise, ace still photographer—are expecting a baby in December.

Mary Martin made her ma a birthday present of the deed to a six-room house in Westwood; Bill Powell and the bride, Diane Lewis, to Arrowhead Springs for a week. Bill just finished "I Love You Again," with Myrna Loy; Mrs. Willie Wyler (Margaret Tallichet) recuperating from injuries sustained when she fell off a horse at the Bel Air stables; Barbara Hutton was at the Victor Hugo with Ricardo Cortez dancing and listening to Dwight Fiske. She and Cary Grant insist they've known each other ages and there's no new development in their friendship. Mebbe; Gene Tierney lunching with Barron Polan at the TCF commissary; Philip Merivale and Gladys Cooper have bought a home out here; Charles Boyer and Ronald Colman with their heads together at the Hollywood Tropics. Business or the war?

That's all today. I'm off to the races.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, May 30.

LUIS QUINTANILLA, Spain's famous artist, is one of the ten painters who were brought to Hollywood by Walter Wanger, to do portraits of the characters in Eugene O'Neill's "Long Voyage Home." At the Wanger studios last week-end, Reeves Lowenthal, director of the Association of American Artists, who is supervising this work, went through the ten studios in which the artists were working, and found that nine of them already had completed their canvases—all except Quintanilla . . . "When," asked Reves, "do you think you'll be finished?" . . . "With the true artist, it isn't a question of finishing it," Luis replied. "The question is—when will I abandon it?

THE PLANS of Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., to enter the aviation business in South America have been cancelled, because of new developments. When he is admitted to the bar, he will work with the Wall Street law firm of Garey & Garey . . . Congressman Bland, Chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, will introduce a bill to regulate the operations of alien seamen employed in the American merchant marine. . . . The producers of the Red Cross benefit broadcast Sunday night were surprised when three of the best-known radio entertainers said they were unable to participate. Then came a phone call from two people, asking if they could be of assistance—although they never had made any broadcasts before this. They were Lunt —and Fontanne, stars of "There Shall Be No Night."

Mischa Auer attended the opening of a new night club last week, and was surprised to see a corps of news photographers encircling him to take his picture . . . "Gentlemen," Auer assured them, "I am the kind of actor who gets close-ups in cafes, but long shots in movies."

JIM FERGUSON, whose wife, Ma Ferguson, again is a candidate for Governor of Texas, is the possessor of the best mailing list owned by an American politician, and will use that list as his first weapon against Gov. O'Daniel's homey radio-campaigning . . . When the Fergusons occupied the State Mansion, Pa Ferguson kept every letter he received from his constituents—letters to which he replied, personally, in longhand. To cement this relationship, he employed a staff to check with the obituary columns, to avoid the embarrassment of addressing political pleas to citizens who have died, and also to send, in longhand, letters of consolation to the bereaved families—families which, in the new campaign, will not forget such touching thoughtfulness.

WASHINGTON is sure that Col. Lindbergh was aided in his speech by William Castle, formerly of the State Department, and Fulton Lewis, the commentator. . . . Bob Hope, the next headliner at Loew's State, and Tony Martin, his competitor across the street at the Paramount, in New York, both employ the same publicist, Mack Millar. They'll both crack records for the engagement. . . . Cecil B. DeMille's assistant, Bill Pine, is in New York on a secret mission—to get material for a Fifth Column movie DeMille will make, called "The Invisible Column." That title will be used, to avoid purchasing the title to Ernest Hemingway's "The Fifth Column."

JIMMY DURANTE, now starring in "Keep Off the Grass," reminisced backstage with some of the cast. He told of the early success of Clayton, Jackson & Durante, and of the first touch of fame which came to him, when a night club was named in his honor—The Club Durant . . . Edward Duryea Dowling, the director, assured Jimmy that he had patronized that cafe, and asked: "But why was it called the Durant—instead of the Durante?" . . . "Funny, but nobody ever asked me that before," Jimmy confessed. "It was called the Durant, because when he had that sign put up we couldn't add the final 'e'—just then, we ran out of money."

WILLIAM HARMON BLACK, the former Supreme Court Justice, is leading the fight against those members of the National Lawyers Guild who refuse to indorse a resolution condemning nazism and communism. United States Supreme Court Justice Douglas, scheduled to address the national convention of the guild, has changed his mind and won't do it . . . The civil liability in the Annenberg tax case was settled quietly in Washington a few days ago.

"Irene" Enters Second Week At Keith's

Anna Neagle Stars In Screen Version Of Musical Comedy

Perpetuating the success that always has attached to its title, "Irene," Herbert Wilcox' picturization for RKO-Radio of the famous musical comedy sails into its second week at RKO-Keith's Theater on a characteristic wave of popular approval.

By no means a literal transcription of the original stage work of James Montgomery, Harry Tierney and Joseph McCarthy, Alice Duer Miller's film adaptation emphasizes the romantic plot and minimizes spectacular use of the score. The famous "Alice Blue Gown" number is made the musical piece de resistance of the picture, with much of the remainder of the score cleverly utilized as background accompaniment by an unseen orchestra. The "Alice Blue Gown" song, however, is given unique treatment, based on its world-wide popularity, and is climaxed by a Harlem swing version that is a honey.

A New Anna Neagle.

Anna Neagle, in the title role, discloses talents that were not revealed in either "Victoria the Great" or "Nurse Cavell," both screen dramas of serious import and heavy demands for painstaking and authentic characterization. Miss Neagle's Irene O'Dare is no less authentic, but it is infinitely gayer and more amusing. The star proves herself a gifted comedienne, singer and dancer, as well as dramatic actress of the first water. She is supported in the costellar role by Ray Milland and by Alan Marshal, Arthur Treacher, Roland Young, May Robson, Billie Burke, Marsha Hunt and Isabel Jewell in assignments only a little less important.

Palace

That her universaliy approved Scarlett O'Hara was no fortunate result of type-casting, Vivien Leigh proves beyond all doubt in "Waterloo Bridge," entering its second week at Loew's Palace this morning. To this heartrending story of another war with pointed allusions to the tragic present, the resourceful English actress brings a character of glowing luminosity.

Robert E. Sherwood has given us over a decade of playwriting since he completed this story of a wartime romance, but "Waterloo Bridge" is of one piece with "Idiot's Delight" and "There Shall Be No Night." His hero, Capt. Cronin, stands on Waterloo Bridge before he leaves for the France of 1940. On that landmark of his life he recalls that this is where he met the gentle Myra, that this is where Myra died. Both sentimental and realistic, Sherwood's drama goes on to tell the struggles the girl endured when her fiance of a few hours was called back to the front.

Taylor Also Measures Up.

With telling restraint, Miss Leigh draws a young dancer of high nobility, whose inner self remains untouched by the bitter world into which misfortune tosses her. Robert Taylor, as the officer, reveals himself a far finer actor than his previous roles have shown. In the more serious episodes of the film he rises impressively to the effective mood of his costar. Virginia Field as Miss Leigh's faithful friend, too, brings a consuming spirit to her part. Lucille Watson is excellent as the captain's understanding mother and C. Aubrey Smith is as telling as usual as the aging army man whose lusty youth is by no means forgotten.

"The Hidden Master," telling of unearthly coincidences; a "trailer," elegantly dubbed "Hollywood, Style Center of the World," and the "News of the Day" are the short subjects supporting this highly recommended feature.

Columbia

"Buck Benny Rides Again" is a fair approximation of a visualized Jack Benny broadcast. It enlists the services of Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, Andy Devine, Phil Harris, Dennis Day and, of course, the star himself, from the familiar Benny radio hour and utilizes the voices of the unseen Mary Livingstone and the rival Fred Allen in their characteristic "ribbing" of Mr. Benny. It even goes so far as to give Carmichael, the polar bear, a stellar role in the action. Incidentally, it opens a repeat F street engagement at Loew's Columbia Theater this morning.

The story flits all over the place from Park avenue in New York to the "dude" and bona fide ranches of the wild and woolly West and, dramatically speaking, is a lot of the old malarkey. Nevertheless, the business has been tricked out and highly simonized in a manner that gives it an artificial gloss that adds to its hair-brained fun.

To fill in the chinks left vacant by a sketchy plot, there are songs, dances, ensembles and a little of everything else you wouldn't expect in a "Western." Benny has never had a picture more shrewdly gaited to his talents.

Actor's Gold Mill Menaced by Flood

Word has ben received by Charles Bickford that the Bistwico Gold Extract Mill, of which he is one of four owners, has been seriously damaged by northern California flood waters.

Situated on the swollen Trinity River, near Weaverville, Calif., the mill narrowly escaped complete destruction, according to the report received by the actor, who is currently at work in "South to Karanga."

Bickford, who spends all of his spare time at Weaverville supervising operation of the plant, immediately dispatched orders to employ special work crews to repair the damage. He will speed to the mill just as soon as he completes his current film assignment.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

"NATIONAL HOTEL WEEK." All hotel lobbies around town are going to be decorated, beflowered and generally fussed up next week. For it'll be "National Hotel Week" and the luxury hostelries justifiably plan to blow their own horns in celebration. A letter from Osgood Roberts, Mayflower's director of advertising and sales, comes right out and shouts the American Hotel Association's slogan, "Hotels Are an Asset to the Community and a Service to the Nation." That's telling 'em. 'Ray!

J. W. McDonald, the Shoreham's new magico, has the most cunning assistant ever. She's 11-year-old Alice Kleberg, daughter of Representative Richard M. Kleberg, who lives at the Shoreham. Alice can already do that trick of fanning a piece of tissue paper into a real egg.

"BIG NAME" TRIPLE-BAGGER. Three "big name" bands, those of Duke Ellington, Gene Krupa and Eddie Duchin, will blow into the Capital this week-end. It's a record. Krupa and Duchin will play on the S. S. Potomac on Saturday and Sunday respectively. Ellington will stage two concerts at the Howard Theater on Sunday. Bill Gottlieb (Post "Swing Sessions") will act as stage commentator at the Ellington concerts, interview Krupa via WRC on Saturday between 7:30 and 8 p. m.

Rollin Webber, new leader at Del Rio, and Dardanella Breckinridge, the attractive and equally new vibraphonist-singer, have evoked so much customer enthusiasm that their engagement has already been extended.

COMPOSERS A-BOILING! More excitement is being stirred up about the Neptune Room's "Composers' Nights" starting next Tuesday. Music critics have been invited. Evelyn Tyner is virtually buried under manuscripts. Sam Jack Kaufman, the maestro-dynamo of the Capitol Theater, will make and play a special arrangement of one of the numbers. "Telltale Tears," the product of The Post's Gerry Gross and the Shoreham's Milton Strauss, is already being played both at Neptune and on the Shoreham Terrace.

No wonder "Buff" Amorosi, Flagship's maestro, has versatility plus. He was playing road shows at 17, was with Art Hicks in the neolithic jazz era, has trouped with bands from coast to coast. Right now he sings, leads from the drums and does all of the Flagship arrangements. And he's the president of Washington's "Swing Club."

TONIGHT'S STAR EVENT is the opening of the Roger Smith's new Starlight Roof with the sleek and polished rhythms of Arthur Herbert's Manhattan Orchestra. Bert Stevens will do extraordinary things at the piano. The Starlight Roof is a completely charming spot, breeze swept and glittery, always attracts quantities of the "best people." Also the cover charge has been abolished this season. P. S.: Bert Stevens will piano in the hotel's Cafe Caprice regularly for the afternoon cocktail hour.

Clowning honors of the season should go to Skeets and Patsy Cameron, of the Casino Royal. Their act combines bingo, football, pretzel bending and wrestling a la Arnica Hall. They dance, too.

TOP TUNEAGE. There are no Hawaiians in Reggie Child's orchestra in the Metronome Room. But when they go into the "Hawaiian War Chant" you'll think you're on the beach at Waikiki. Special credit to the handsome drummer boy . . . Hi Hat's Angie Rodante is warbling "I Hear Bluebirds" with an expression just like Shirley Temple's. Verra intriguing . . . Any, myomy! you must hear the choral effects injected into the "Woodpecker Song" by Lyle Smith's Trio at the Mayfair

MARY LA MARR, the Nightingale's new singer

. . . And there's no one around town who can sing "Sylvia" with the wonderful lift given to it by the Rainbow Room's Russ Cullen . . . Ditto for Peggy Wood's (King Cole Room) version of "Ol' Rockin' Chair Has Got Me." She fades it off to the tiniest croon.

Maestro Pete Macias, of the Lounge Riviera, tells us that "When You Wish Upon a Star" is just the old "Glow Worm" plus a few rhythmic ruffles.

GLEN ECHO'S HOBBY LOBBY. Paul Kain's bandsmen occupy their spare hours with the quaintest hobbies. Gary Stevens builds model planes. Dick Leith collects phonograph records. Key Foy collects cigarette coupons. Lonny Wilfong goes for French cookery and the Russian ballet. Big Jim Fitzpatrick's hobby is rooting for Boston. Tsk! Tsk!

The customers' eyes pop and their ears stand out when the Anchor Room's Matt Windsor starts his new diller, "Harry's in the Doghouse." It's one of those times when the Anchor's air-cooling is especially handy.

QUARTET OF NIGHTINGALES. No less than four lovely singers were in the Mayflower Lounge the other eve. They included the lounge's present Joan Whitney, Anne Kiess and Ann Beasley who've just finished at New York's Stork and Penthouse Clubs, respectively, and Linda Carroll, Joan's predecessor in the Mayflower.

The stately old gent who presides at the Carlton bar is Louis Meyers, who was chief mixer at the old Shoreham when it used to stand at Fifteenth and H streets.

LOTUS CROWDS. Just stand around the Lotus and eventually you'll see everyone in town and out of town. The other day we saw Architect Billy Barrington (he did the Madrillon), who's now a New Jerseyite; Maestro Morgan Baer and Leon Brusiloff, scores of Easter Star ladies and a big crew of high school boys and girls from Belmont, Pa.

Tomorrow night is the last session this summer for the Pall Mall Room. But you'll be seeing most of the orchestra in other spots around town.

HANDSOME INTERIORS. O'Donnell's Harbor Room inspires loads of people to say they wish they could take it home and put it in their own houses . . . Bark covered logs and rustic lighting fixtures give a real countryside atmosphere to River Bend . . . You'll find no more restful and dignified interior than the red leather doors and deep divans that keynote the Harrington Tavern. Saucy circus murals lend the lighter note.

Contract Bridge

The correct handling of a king is the feature of the play of today's hand. It is not an easy contract of three no trump that South sets out to make, but he manages it by skillfully cutting the communications between his opponents' hands and frustrating their attempts to knockout a vital honor.

He plans his campaign so that he may choose his own time for entering the dummy, and thereby prevents an end play which would force him to lead to the enemy's strength.

Here is the way I. N., the contributor, describes the play. You might try to work it out yourself first.

"West's lead appeared to be a short suit lead, so North played small, and South let East's nine hold. East now played a club, trying to take North's ace out as an entry. South, however, blocked that plan by going right up with the king. South now took the ace of diamonds and played the queen of hearts. West took with the king and played his second spade. South's ace won and South played another heart, taken by West's ace. West returned a heart and South made two heart tricks. South now played the jack of clubs (if the five is played, West will play the queen). West played small, and the next trick was taken by North's ace of clubs. North now had to make two more diamond tricks. South made one spade, two heart, three diamond and three club tricks for three no trump."

Rain Hampers Indianapolis Auto Race

Home Town Driver Averages 114 M.P.H., Sets Two Records; Rex Mays Second

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis, May 30.—Dapper Wilbur Shaw, of Indianapolis, drove today to his third triumph in the Indianapolis "500," beating out Rex Mays, of Glendale, Calif., by 2½ miles in the twenty-eighth annual motor speedway race, the pace of which was slowed by sprinkles of rain.

Shaw became the second driver in the history of the speedway classic to win the event three times and the first ever to win twice in succession. Louis Meyer, of Huntington Park, Calif., who retired after last year's race, is the only other previous three-time winner.

The 37-year-old Shaw, who first triumphed in 1937 and repeated in 1939, piloted his sharknosed eight-cylinder, Italian-made car to victory today in 4:22:31.16, to average 114.277 miles an hour, far below the record of 117,200 miles established by the late Floyd Roberts in 1938. Driving the entire 500 miles without relief and making only two quick stops for gasoline and tire changes, Shaw possibly could have shattered all records for the distance if it had not rained. He had cracked the records at 300 and 350 miles.

Caution Flag Waves

After Shaw whizzed past the finishing line on his 375th mile, a yellow flag of caution was waved in the face of the drivers because of a sprinkling rain. The drivers were forced to reduce their speed for the last 125 miles because officials regarded slippery spots on the track as too dangerous.

After Shaw rode across the finish line in triumph officials hung out the red flag calling the drivers off the track.

Mauri Rose, of Columbus, Ohio, won third place behind Mays and Ted Horn, of Hawthorne, N. J., fourth. Joel Thorne, of Tucson, Ariz., was fifth; Bob Swanson, of Los Angeles, sixth; Frank Wearne, of Pasadena, Calif., seventh; Mel Hansen, of Los Angeles, eighth; Frank Brisko, of Chicago, ninth, and Harry McQuinn, of Indianapolis, tenth.

19 Starters Survive

The first crackup injured Paul Riganti, of Buenos Aires, South American driving champion. The Argentine crashed into an inner guard rail on the southeast turn as he was tearing along on his sixtieth mile. He was about 12½ miles behind Mays, leading at the time, when his car went into a spin, skidded across the track and hit the fence.

Riganti was thrown clear of his wrecked car, landing on the grass in the infield. He was rushed to a hospital where it was said he suffered a wrenched back and cuts on the nose.

Shaw Gets $30,000

A few seconds later Tommy Hennershitz, of Reading, Pa., came roaring down the straightaway. Suddenly the brakes of his car locked and he swerved into a retaining wall. Although he suffered a broken right arm, he brought his car to a stop on the opposite side of the track.

The veteran, Ralph Hepburn, of Los Angeles, went into a similar spin a few minutes later, but he brought the car to a stop.

Duke Nalon, of Chicago, suffered only a severe shaking up when his crankshaft broke and sent his car spinning off the track after it had covered 292 miles.

Shaw won more than $30,000. He grabbed the $20,000 first prize and won $5,100 in lap awards. He also will receive other cash awards from automobile concerns.

The flying Hoosier overhauled Mays, who set the early pace, on the eighty-fifth mile and lost it only once thereafter. He regained the lead at 260 miles when the four drivers ahead of him were forced to make pit stops, and never was headed again.

Hubbell Near Perfect As Giants Take Two

One Man Reaches First as Carl Wins, 7-0; Dodgers Drop Second, 12-5, in 12th, Lose First Place

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, May 30.—Giving a capacity crowd of 34,548 rabid Dodger fans a turbulent afternoon, the New York Giants swept both halves of a double-header today, 7 to 0, and 12 to 5, and knocked Brooklyn out of the National League lead.

In the first game old Carl (Meal Ticket) Hubbell came within one single of pitching a perfect game. He was rapped for a single by Johnny Hudson in the second inning, but a double-play erased him and the southpaw screwballer faced only 27 battters. He gave no walks and no Dodger except Hudson reached first.

That was how close Hubbell came to equalling or bettering his no-hitter against Pittsburgh in 1929.

But the nightcap was a riotous 12-inning engagement in which the Doggers used 20 players and went down battling even after the Giants bombarded eight runs across in the twelfth.

New York got away to a quick start in each game. In the opener they made three runs off Luke Hamlin in the first inning on the combination of a hit batsman, a single, a double, a walk and an error and kept piling up the damage against Van Mungo and Hugh Casey.

In the second game they got three runs off Vito Tamulis in the first inning by just about the same tactics and then were held scoreless until the tenth. Brooklyn kept pecking

Eight Thirty Wins $20,000 Belmont Race

Can't Wait Second In Suburban; 41,859 Turf Fans See Feature

By the Associated Press

New York, May 30.—Eight Thirty turned an about face in his plan of campaign today and it worked.

Before what was believed an all-time record New York crowd of 41,859 fans, George D. Widener's big colt, beaten in the Metropolitan Mile a week ago because he tried to make the pace, took his time until the final furlong and won the historic Suburban Handicap by a length at Belmont Park.

He let Myron Selznick's Can't Wait and Donald P. Ross' Masked General set the fastest 6-furlong pace Belmont has ever seen, and then came around both of them to win. Can't Wait chased him home, and was three lengths in front of Mrs. Payne Whitney's favored Third Degree, who headed Masked General for the show spot. Third Degree won the Metropolitan last Saturday.

It was a different race horse Widener had running for him than in his last touting. Even Jockey Harry Richards, part of the top-weight load of 127 pounds the son of Pilate—Dinner Time packed, realized it. "We weren't crowded in the early running," he pointed out, "and he was rarin' to go."

He was that, all right, but Richards wouldn't let him. The colt broke on top in the field of ten, but was taken right back as Masked General and Can't Wait sprinted heads apart down the backstretch. So fast were they moving that they whistled past the 6-furlong mark in 1:09 4-5, one-fifth faster than the track record for the distance.

They hit the mile in 1:35 1-5, just a fifth of a second off the mile mark. Eight Thirty, who had been placed fourth there, started to move at that point. He was third turning for home and then let 'er rip all the way down the straight run.

Olympic Trials Canceled by U.S. Committee

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 30.—The American Olympic Committee's plans for giving Uncle Sam's track and field stars a consolation meet in lieu of the international games abandoned by Finland were canceled today.

The meet had been scheduled for Los Angeles, July 12-13, as "final Olympic trials," to give American youngsters who had aimed at places on the 1940 team a chance to display their prowess. William Garland, California member of the American Olympic committee, said cancelation was due to unsettled international conditions.

Avery Brundage, president of the A. O. C., and Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, Northwester University athletic director and chairman of the A. O. C. track and field committee, said lack of certainty that a representative field could be obtained for

Einno Pentti Wins National A. A. U. Marathon Race

By the Associated Press

Norwich, Conn., May 30.—The favored Einno Pentti, unattached Brooklyn, N. Y., marathoner, won the National A. A. U. 15-kilometer run here today in the fast time of 50 minutes 48.1 seconds, only about a minute off the record for the annual Memorial Day event.

Of the field of 61 starters, James Rafferty, of the New York A. C., finished less than a minute behind him in second place. Francis Darrah, of the Norfolk Young Men's Association, Roxbury, Mass., was a close third. Rafferty's time was 51:21.3, and Darrah's, 51:25.8.

Vic Drygall, of the Millrose A. C., New York City, set the record for the event two years ago—49:43.

Ellison (Tarzan) Brown, of Westerly, R. I., last year's winner, failed to enter, but went instead to Lawrence, Mass., where he won the annual Lawrence-to-the-Sea Marathon.

Reds Regain First Place, Capture Two

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 30.—Cincinnati's Reds came through under pressure today like the champions they are, regaining first place in the National League by taking two games from the Chicago Cubs as Brooklyn lost twice to the New York Giants.

The Reds whipped the Cubs, 4 to 2, in the first game and then increased their first place lead to two full games by winning the nightcap, 9 to 8 in 12 innings, as Johnny Rizzo singled home Frank McCormick with the deciding run.

Chicago's largest baseball crowd of the season, 30,828, saw the Cubs slump extend to six defeats in seven games.

Harry Craft, Reds' centerfielder, did the decisive hitting in the opener, driving home three runs. He doubled with the sacks loaded to knock out Bill Lee in the second

Red Ruffing Gives 2 Hits In Opener

Yankees Win, 2-0; Boston Pounds Four Pitchers for 11-4 Victory in Second

By the Associated Press

New York, May 30.—In a stirring show for 82,437 fans, the third largest crowd in baseball history, the world champion Yankees and the Boston Red Sox divided a double-header today, New York winning the first 4-0 and dropping the second 11-4.

Red Ruffing pitched magnificent two-hit ball in the opener, the champions' sixth straight triumph, and had a no-hit game in his grasp until Joe Cronin singled in the eighth inning.

It was the big red-headed right-hander's second shutout and third victory. The only other hit he allowed was a single by Lou Finney in the ninth, when a walk also put a Boston runner on second for the only time in the game.

The Yankees went to work on Lefty Grove in the second with three runs, including Bill Dickey's third homer, and added another in the fourth. It was the season's first defeat for Grove, who gave way to a pinch hitter in the fifth.

Rookie Herb Hash pitched the Red Sox to their victory in the nightcap with the help of a 14-hit offensive by his teammates. Boston scored a run off Monte Pearson in the first and he was removed, complaining of a kink in his arm. The official scorer charged Steve Sundra with the subsequent loss.

Joe Gordon homered with two on in the third, and Joe DiMaggio hit for the circuit with one on for the Yanks in the fourth. It ceased to be a contest, however, in the sixth when Boston scored 2 runs on a single, a double and a single, and exploded 5 more tallies in the seventh.

Hash held the Yanks to six, but two of them with three walks gave New York 2 more runs in the ninth.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Philadelphia, May 30.—Ninty-nine miles north by east in his hotel apartment off Broadway, a gray-haired, sharp-eyed old gentleman was complaining about business. "These are dull times in my line," said Jack Doyle, Manhattan's No. 1 betting commissioner. "I haven't had an election bet in three weeks."

POVICH

The war in Europe has knocked the spots off the political betting market, moans Mr. Doyle. "At this time in former years of Presidential nominations I've been a pretty busy man," he was saying, "but the fuss in Europe has killed the preelection betting business. There's only one horse in the Democratic race, and that's Mr. Roosevelt.

A few weeks ago I was getting a few nibbles from people who wanted to bet on the Presidential nominees. I was laying two against one that Roosevelt would be the Democratic choice and I was getting plenty of takers. Now nobody wants to bet against him. In my book he's 1 to 10 to be the nominee.

"I'm basing my odds, of course, on the trends. Until big bets make me change them, my odds will prohibit a bet against Roosevelt. I feel that whatever compunctions he might have had against a third term have disappeared in the emergency of these critical times. He is a man of considerable natural ego and doubtless he is viewing a third term as a duty to the Nation. James Farley, of course is only a stalking horse for Mr. Roosevelt and there is no other Democratic candidate who seems like a worthy election risk."

Jack Doyle is better than a green-hand at political betting. He has been laying the odds on Presidential elections since 1896, and only in 1916 when Wilson nosed out Hughes did he ever make a bad bet on an election. He says: "The odds he quotes are essentially his own. Not until the betting public shows a concerted rush for some candidate does he revise them.

In Doyle's book, the man likeliest to win the Republican nomination is not District Attorney Dewey, of New York, but Senator Robert Taft, of Ohio. "That's what the few wagers I've covered would indicate," he said. "Old Line Republicans will have the upper hand in the nominating convention and Ohio is a solid State to string along with. Wendell Willkie, of course, would be the No. 1 compromise candidate.

"That would make the best election betting—Roosevelt vs. Willkie. It would be the best test of the popularity of the New Deal. Mr. Willkie has made it plain where he stands and would make continuation of the New Deal in office the chief issue. The subject of national defense has given the Republicans new ammunition, but the New Deal still shapes up as the Democrats' most vulnerable point."

Swinging blithely from politics to baseball, Mr. Doyle announced that he had revised his odds on the pennant races in deference to the Yankees' sudden spurt from last place to the first division.

"The Red Sox are no longer the favorites in my book," he says. "They're up to 7 to 5, and the Yanks are down to even money. Even when the Yanks were in last place, nine games behind the league, I never quoted them at worse than 7 to 5. The Yanks have the weapons to win their fifth straight pennant.

"Speaking as a fan, not as a betting man, it's too bad about Boston. If they had as much as one more good pitcher you'd have to make them favorites. When those double-headers roll around, the Red Sox will be in a tough way for pitchers. That's when the Yanks will catch 'em. Even without Lefty Gomez, the Yanks have the best pitching staff in the league.

"Later in the season when Joe Cronin won't know where his next nine-inning pitcher is coming from, Joe McCarthy will have no worries. Good pitching will take a club farther than heavy hitting. The Red Sox may be Murder, Inc., when they go to bat, but pitching decides pennant races.

"The best bet in baseball, though, isn't the Yankees. It's the Cincinnati Reds. They stand out like a cinch to win the National League pennant. I'm quoting the Yanks at even money, but I've got the Reds at 7 to 2. There isn't a team in the National League that figures to give the Reds any sort of fight for the pennant. They're the only solid club in the circuit."

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, May 30.—Imbedded deep in the story about the 100-odd pros and amateurs who qualified for the National Open this week was a single line to the effect that John Montague won one of the three places open in the Los Angeles district. He shot a 77-73, to finish eight strokes back of Willie Goggin and five ahead of Ellsworth Vines, who failed to make the grade.

CONSIDINE

Two years ago that would have been headline sports news. For Montague was a great name in sport, a name full of mystery and hocus pocus. The tales of his prowess had grown full of fabulous distortions. Today, his qualification makes only a line.

No guy ever fell out of the sports page quite as quickly as Montague. One day, the stories of his par-smashing shooting came out of the West. The next day, seemingly, he was on trial for an old stickup charge. The next day the jury went out and some of us wrote that he would make a million if acquitted, then the old judge flayed the jury for returning an acquittal verdict, Montague (out of shape) was tossed into an exhibition match at Fresh Meadow which peeled much of the glamour off him, then he was seen around the fashionable bars in the East, and finally, he went back to Hollywood.

Before going he had turned in a couple of performances that made his friends doubt if he could ever come back and play good golf. At Philadelphia last summer, during the open, he and Walter Hagen set a breakneck race that killed off companions by the scores. The climax of one night came when Montague—irked because a pianist in a pub wouldn't bring the piano over closer to his table—walked over, picked it up and carried it back to the table. Actually.

In the past few months he has begun to take the game seriously again. He seemed to lose for a time the magic play of his thick but supple wrists, but Willie Hunter, the old pro, has been working with him and friends say he has shown traces of the Montague who five years ago was doing such tricks as knocking birds off telephone wires.

If his confidence has returned and he has boiled enough easy living out of his system, he should provide a firework or two at the Open in Cleveland next week-end.

Minus practice, using borrowed clubs and playing the tough North Hempstead (Long Island) course a few days before he went on trial, Montague shot a 65 despite five putts from less than 6 feet. Atop all that, his audience consisted wholly of the case-hardened New York golf experts who had pooh-poohed the Bunyonesque stories about him.

Alex Morrison, who played against him that day and who was two down to him, though out in 34, says that when he had it Montague's confidence in himself was such that he could have walked on air if it had ever entered his mind to do that.

On the golf course he could see no traps, bunkers or the other obstacles that make a golfer's life hell. All he could see was the pin, and he'd go for it. He bet Georg Olsen, a former General Motors official, that he would birdie the first hole at Lakeview, then, after doing it, bet him double that he could birdie the next. He birdied the first five in a row before Olsen stopped doubling in self-defense.

But Grantland Rice, who uncovered the roly-poly, be-dimpled and enormously strong man, said that the strength of his game—when he was hot—lay in his putting and his approach shots. Rice still says Montague had the greatest wrists he ever saw in golf. He could take an 18-iron, place two balls side by side, and send them both up on the green with one swat, a feat that calls for supernatural touch. He was delicacy itself in a bunker. Yet he was also strong enough to bury a ball in a sandtrap until it was out of sight, then blast it out and far away with (of all things) a brassie.

What's left of him remains to be seen. He is beyond his prime. He is 38 and he has lived a full-blown life that would appal the young 10 p. m. pros who train so religiously for such tournaments as the Open. No one expects him to win the tournament or come anywhere near winning it. But those who saw him when he had it—and who knew and were amazed by the strange powers of this curious man—are content that some time during his first Open, John Montague is going to do some things that no golfer ever could do. If he has not lost the stout self-reliance which, plus great physical gifts, made him for a time the country's best golfer, he will at least show that he might well have been the Open champion during the days when all he wanted was a haven and blessed anonymity.

Nats Split Doubleheader With A's, Lose, 7-6, Win, 14-2

Macks Win Opener In 9th; Three-Hit Pitching, Bonura's Homer Top Nightcap

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Philadelphia, May 30.—In what amounted to an exchange of courtesies, the Nats and Athletics broke each other's losing streaks this afternoon in an uproarious Decoration Day double-header.

In the first game, the Nats obligingly put an end to a six-game chain of defeats for the A's by tossing off a 7-6 contest with a sour assortment of late inning pitching. In the second game, the Athletics put a stop to a five-game Washington losing streak by getting themselves licked, 14 to 2.

There was no complaint from the holiday crowd of 23,600 when the umpires called the second game at the end of seven innings on account of darkness. They had just seen their A's mauled for nine runs by the Nats in a big seventh inning.

Zeke Bonura hit a home run with the bases full in that startling display of Washington power, but he wasn't the hero of the game. The hero was young Walter Masterson who started the game by walking five batters in the first inning and ended it with a three-hit performance against the A's.

The Nats snatched the lead at the outset of the second game when Case, Lewis and Walker rapped out hits against George Caster to produce two runs.

Run Scores on Infield Out

Masterson promptly gave the two runs back to the A's after walking the first three men to face him. A run scored on an infield out, and then Masterson walked a fourth batter to force over a run. He walked a fifth batter before he retired the side.

Masterson steadied remarkably thereafter. He did not allow another run and the only hits he allowed were a single by Brucker in the third, a single by Pinch Hitter Gantenbein in the fifth and a single by Siebert in the sixth.

The Nats had a 5-2 lead by the time the seventh rolled around. And then they staged the big doings as follows:

Masterson beat out a bunt. Case singled to left. Lewis beat out a bunt to fill the bases. Welaj drove in a run with a fly to left. Caster went out and Beckman came in. Walker walked, filling the bases. Bonura hit a four-run homer far into the leftfield upper deck. Early flied out. Bloodworth singled to right. Pofahl doubled to center. Masterson doubled to center. Case hit a home run to left, scoring behind Masterson with the ninth run of the inning.

The first game was a messy affair for the Nats. The A's presented them with most of a 5-1 lead in the first three innings. Into a third inning in which they packed four hits, the Nats also got the benefit of two wild throws by the A's and a muff by Bob Johnson.

Dean Lasts to Third

Chubby Dean lasted no longer than that third inning, but Ken Chase was going very well for the Nats until the sixth. The only run he permitted to that point spawned from Wally Moses' first inning triple.

In the sixth Chase started to pitch the ball game away. He gave the A's a run by walking Pitcher Ross and then throwing a single to McCoy. Rick Ferrell's double in the seventh got that run back for Chase and established him in a 6-to-2 lead, but he was prodigal with it.

He permitted the A's to take a two-run chunk out of his lead in the seventh when he pitched a triple to Moses, walked Hayes and threw Siebert a single.

Buck Ross held the Nats scoreless in the eighth and then Chase put a Philadelphia run on base when he walked Pinch Hitter Brucker. When he pitched two wide balls to Pinch Hitter Al Simmons, Bucky Harris got him out of there and gave Hudson the job. Hudson threw a single to Simmons, which moved Brancato, running for Brucker to third.

Then the A's scored a freak run. On McCoy's short fly to Case, Brancato held third, but not for long. Case's routine throw to the plate skipped through Bonura to the backstop and Brancato moved home on Bonura's error, with Simmons going to second. Hudson halted the A's at that point, retaining a 6-5 lead for the Nats.

But in the ninth his first act was to tie the score for the A's by pitching Hayes a home run ball which was promptly slammed into the centerfield bleachers. He then pitched a single to Siebert and when Chapman sacrificed the winning run to second, Harris got Hudson out of there in favor of Joe Haynes. Haynes succeeded only in working the count to 3 and 2 against Al Rubeling, the first man he faced. Rubeling belted the next pitch to center for a game winning double.

Bonura Springs the Trap on a Mack Runner

The Nats' Zeke Bonura (center) tags Dick Siebert, Athletics' first baseman, after catching Siebert in a trap between first and second yesterday in the seventh inning of the first game at Philadelphia. No. 9 is Jimmy Bloodworth, Washington second baseman. A's won in the ninth, 7-6; lost the nightcap, 14-2

Course Record Broken By Five Minutes; Johnny Kelley Second

By the United Press

Salisbury, Mass., May 30.—Ellison (Tarzan) Brown, of Westerly, R. I., lopped more than 5 minutes from the course record today to defeat 69 plodders in the fourth annual Lawrence-to-the-Sea marathon.

The fleet-footed Indian took an early lead and never was headed, covering the 26 miles in 2:27.29 3-5. The course this year was about one-quarter of a mile shorter than in previous years.

Johnny Kelley, of Arlington, was second, finishing about 200 yards behind Brown in 2:28.18. In third place was Don Heinicke, of Baltimore, Md., a protege of the late Pat Dengis to whom today's race was dedicated.

Other finishers were Leslie Pawson, Pawtucket, R. I., fourth; Gerard Cote, St. Hyacinthe, Que., winner of this year's Boston A. A. marathon in record time; Fred Bristow, Toronto, Ont.; Italo Amicangioli, Boston; George Durgin, Boston; Louis Young, Medford and Eddie Sienkiewiz, Amesbury.

Clarence De Mar, of Keene, N. H., seven-time winner of the Boston A. A. event, finished fourteenth.

Man of the Month

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

The Angel Conquers Martinelli

Under the approving eyes of his Boswell, otherwise identified as Jack Pfeffer, the Irish Angel tossed Referee Benny Brotnick to the patrons, rested until Benny regained consciousness and then flipped Gino Martinelli on his neck to win the nod in 38 minutes of the cofeature wrestling act last night at Turners Arena.

The Angel was having a hard time when he decided Bortnick was in the way. The fans were bombarding him with peanuts and Gino was kicking him in various parts of the anatomy. In fact, Gino fell on him and sat on him patiently while ringside fans helped Bortnick back in the ring. Then The Angel tossed Gino on the mat and fell on him. Bortnick counted out Gino and, along with The Angel, became the brunt of an attack from 900 irate customers.

In the other half, Karol Krauser, Polish glamour boy, downed Pat Corrigan and 23¾ minutes of Grade B groan routines. In the preliminaries, Zim Zam Zum, another of Pfeffer's wrestling freaks, defeated Luigi Bacigaluni in 16¼ minutes.

Blensign Wins Dover Stakes At Delaware

Misty Isle Runs Second; Sun By Third in Feature

By the Associated Press

Delaware Park, Del., May 30.—Guy Bedwell's speedy and undefeated colt Blensign, galloped to his third straight victory here today when he was a handy winner of the $4,000 added Dover Stakes, feature of the Delaware Steeplechase and Race Association's Decoration Day program.

Backed into odds-on favoritism by the overflow crowd of 20,000, Blensign was faced with the task of turning back seven highly regarded 2-year-old opponents, but the son of Blenheim and Design was equal to the occasion and at the end held a length and a half margin of victory over Joseph E. Widener's Misty Isle. It was a photo for the place, and the picture disclosed the Widenerite had earned second money by the short margin of a whisker over W. E. Boeing's Sun By. Fantastical, from the E. K. Bryson Stable, was fourth.

Blensign's next start will be at Belmont Park, where he is scheduled to match strides in a special match race with Milsdale Stable's undefeated colt High Breeze on June 7.

Blensign was the sixth straight favorite of the afternoon to click for the big crowd. He returned $3.20, and his time for the five panels over the fast track was 1.01. Top Money in The Dover was worth $6,575 to Owner Bedwell.

Diffenbaugh Plays Just Ahead of Byron Nelson in the Open

Gene Larkin Draws Herman Keiser And Tony Lyons As Open Partners

George Diffenbaugh, Kenwood professional and one of the three District qualifiers in the National Open championship, will play "before" probably the biggest gallery in the tournament that starts next Thursday in Cleveland, according to pairings released yesterday by the U. S. G. A.

He will play just ahead of a threesome composed of the defending champion, Byron Nelson, Martin Pose, the Argentine, and Horton Smith, that will undoubtedly draw the largest gallery of the day. Thus George and his two partners, Andy Gaspar, of Slippery Rock, Pa., and Amateur Earle Berryhill, of Tulsa, Okla., will be before the big gallery. George and his partners play at 10:42 Thursday and 2:12 on Friday.

Lewis E. Worsham, jr., Burning Tree pro, who led Monday's qualifying rounds at Manor with a subpar 138 total, will play at 12:13 Thursday and 8:43 Friday in company of Jock Hutchison, jr., of Rockford, Ill., and Leland J. Willcox, prominent Midwestern professional from Waterloo, Iowa. Hutchison is the son of the famed Jock Hutchison, Sr.

Threesomes Listed

Gene Larkin, Woodmont mentor, drew 12:55 Thursday and 9:25 Friday starting times with Herman Keiser, the tournament pro from Portage C. C., Akron, Ohio, and Amateur Tony Lyons, of the Riverside Club, Cambridge Springs, Pa.

Bobby Cruickshank, the Middle Atlantic section's only automatic qualifier from the Country Club of Virginia in Richmond, drew prominent company, Jimmy Hines, the former Metropolitan Open champion from Great Neck, Long Island, and Albert "Scotty" Campbell, the ranking amateur from Seattle, Wash. Their respective times are 10 Thursday and 1:30 Friday.

Jack Isaacs, the only Virginian to make the grade at Manor, will leave the tee at 9:53 the first day and 1:23—the second with Frank Commisso, Rochester, N. Y., and Francis X. Coakley, Galloping Hill C. C., Kenilworth, N. J.

Baltimore's Andy Ginson, the fifth entrant from this section, is paired with John Difloure, Los Angeles, and Henry Kaiser, Racine, Wis., at 11:24 Thursday and 2:54 Friday.

Worsham, Bride to Fly

All five of this section's qualifiers have definitely decided to make the trip. Worsham will leave, probably by plane, Monday night after his marriage to Miss Virginia Shoemaker, while Diffenbaugh will leave Monday, with his mode of travel undecided, and Larkin will leave by train Monday night.

The field, 140 professionals, 29 amateurs and Charles Eberhardt, Tampa golfer whose status is undecided, will play in threesomes this year, seven minutes apart instead of the twosomes, six minutes apart.

The big name stars are paired together but the times are varied to split the galleries. Walter Hagen, Jimmy Thomson and Johnny Goodman are partners, while Sam Snead and Harry Cooper will play with host pro Waldo Crowder. Gene Sarazen, Craig Wood and Dick Metz should draw a capacity gallery. Ben Hogan, first alternate in New York, will probably take Frankie Strafaci's place with Paul Runyan and Harold McSpaden.

Preston, Costello Pigeon Wins Race

A pigeon from the lofts of Preston and Costello defeated a William Ruppert entry by four seconds flying time to win the fourth old bird race of the National Capital Racing Pigeon Concourse from Morristown, Tenn., J. S. Turowski, race secretary, announced yesterday.

Special Dispatch to The Post

Leesburg, Va., May 30.—The championship ribbon was pinned on Battle Day, a splendid brown gelding belonging to Frederick Warburg, of Middleburg and New York, as the Loudoun Hunt ended its annual horse show in a driving rain on the beautiful Farm Hill School site. Battle Day captured enough points in the colorful Corinthian Class, which closed the program, to gain a good lead over his nearest rivals, a pair from the Whitney Stables. Thesetwo, Bonnuit and Airy Spirit, tied for reserve champion, and the judges made a final decision in favor of Airy Spirit for second high honors.

Battle Day was ridden by Hunton Atwell, huntsman for the Piedmont Hunt, and captured the middle and heavyweight class, the Loudoun Hunt Trophy and the Corinthian, in addition to second and third ribbons.

Mrs. Elizabeth Whitney's stables dominated the afternoon classes, and with Bonnuit, Airy Spirit, The Bear and David: she won five blue ribbons, with second and third places also.

Nine IC4A Records in Danger Tomorrow at Cambridge Meet

By the Associated Press

Cambridge, Mass., May 30.—Nine I. C. 4-A meet records appeared threatened today as the cream of the East's intercollegiate track and field forces girded themselves to out-do the University of California's handful of specialists tomorrow and Saturday at the stadium.

Although the Golden Bears, the only Western entry in this sixty-fourth annual meet, which has been dominated by Californian powerhouses 26 times in the past 28 years, entered but seven representatives, they were of such high caliber that they were favored to out-score the East's outstanding threats, Pennsylvania State and Pittsburgh, in the 16 competitions.

With Southern California, which piled up the amazing total of 71½ points to sweep last year's meet at Randalls Island, and powerful Stanford out of the action, it appeared likely that Eastern college stars would sparkle the brightest in the individual competitions.

Penn State based its victory hopes on a "triple" by Barney Ewell, its great Negro sophomore, potentially the greatest sprinter since Jesse Owens, the Olympic superstar. Ewell has been entered in both dashes and the broad jump and appeared to have an excellent chance of not only sweeping all three, a feat last performed by Columbia's Ben Johnson three years ago, but also setting up new meet marks in each.

New meet, and possibly, world records were expected from Georgetown's gargantuan Al Blozis in the shot put and discus. Maine's Bob (Biffer) Bennett needed only to retain his recent form to wipe out the seven-year I.C.4-A hammer throw mark of 181 feet 6½ inches made by Fred Tootell, of Bowdoin.

Among the other teams that appear capable of reaching two-figure totals were Yale, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Michigan State, New York University, Georgetown and Maine. Trials will be held tomorrow in all of the 16 events except the mile, 2-mile, the pole vault and high jumps. All finals will be decided Saturday.

Steady Downpour Fails to Dampen Spirits at Norbeck as Dr. Wood's Jumper Beats Out Billy Barton

By Anne Hagner

Two thousand people in various stages of near-drowning survived a steady downpour at Brooke Johns' farm, near Norbeck, Md., yesterday to see Dr. Karl Wood's Shanghai win the featured knockdown-and-out class.

Spectators were noisly jubilant over the 5-foot fencing that marked the jump-off in the event, in which Frank Willson had the mount on Wood's big mare. Willson also placed second on his own Billy Barton, named after the well-known old steeplechase horse.

In the races that were intended to be the feature of the day's doings, Dr. E. E. Huffer's Jock scored easily in the Andrew J. (Cy) Cummings Memorial, which was run over a timber course. Only other rider to finish was Edward Cashell, jr., on his father's Charlie McCarthy.

Yellow Girl Wins

In the Manor Hunt class first place went to Lillian Crowder on her dun mare, Yellow Girl, an oldtimer at the show game. Dr. Joseph Whitebread was second with his Sergt. Murphy, who was a consistent first-flighter in the hunt's meetings during the past winter.

Tahra, June Curran's good-looking gray 4-year-old, had several nice rounds to take the ladies' hunters class, which was judged on performance alone and necessitated three jump-offs. Tahra, also placed third in the event for hunter hacks, which was won by Stanley Jones on Dr. W. D. Monroe's The Sportsman.

Boyd Keyes, master of the host hunt, dominated the races as his Canmass scored easily in the 2-mile brush race, and Locomotive, from the same stable, won the 5½-furlong dash on the flat.

Three Crews Are Rescued In Boat Races

Poco Pronto Wins The Commodore Cup; Frances Disqualified

Skippers and crews of three boats were rescued from the Potomac yesterday afternoon after their sailing vessels capsized during the Potomac River Sailing Association's ninth annual Memorial Day regatta.

All were rescued by the committee boat and their craft towed to shore. The races, run from the Old Dominion Boat Club at Alexandria to Gunston Cove, 11 miles downstream, will continue Saturday and Sunday.

Squally weather and a choppy river caused the capsizing of the Fan Tan, skippered by Leslie Wright, of Alexandria; the Cricket II, with H. C. Bush, of Alexandria, as skipper, and the Black Cat, skippered by Ralph W. Barnhard, of Washington. The Fan Tan was leading the field of the Comet class race when she overturned.

Paul Arlt, of Alexandria, brought the Poco Pronto home first in the Commodore Cup competition for all classes, finishing with a corrected time of one hour 4 minutes and 2 seconds. Don Kanode, sailing Anneke Jan, was awarded second place when H. W. Brent, piloting the Penguin sloop Frances, was disqualified for striking the committee boat at the finish line.

COMMODORE CUP—Poco Pronto (Penguin Class) sailed by Paul Arlt, Alexandria, Va., corrected time, 1:04.2; second (Penguin Class), Anneke Jan, sailed by Don Kanode, corrected time, 1:28.30; third, Gypsy, sailed by S. W. Weiser, Washington, corrected time, 1:20.48.

COMET CLASS—First, Scandal, sailed by R. E. Covert, 1:54.34; second, British, sailed by Col. H. H. Jenkins, 1:58.04; third, Scuttle Butt, sailed by E. L. Cochran, 2:03.35.

20-FOOT CLASS—First, Eight Ball, sailed by C. P. Murphy, and Owen Oakley, 1:44.50; second, Minx, sailed by Barbara Myers, 1:44.57; third, Nolle Prosse, sailed by C. M. Trammel, jr., 1:45.16.

SNIPE CLASS—First, Joy Toy, sailed by S. Lee Harrison; second, Carmen, sailed by J. M. Krafft.

Cunningham Medalist In Hermitage Play; Burnett Qualifies

Special Dispatch to The Post

Richmond, Va., May 30.—Bill Cunningham, lanky amateur representing the host club, today won the qualifying medal with a one-over-par 74 in the Hermitage Country Club's fifth annual invitation golf tournament.

Cunningham shot the rain-drenched front nine in 38, one over, and came back with an even par 36 to set the pace for 90 golfers from Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Russ Hollebaugh, defending champion from Washington, turned in a card of 40-38—78, third low for the day, to lead the Washington contingent of five who qualified for the championship flight. Others making the grade were Earl McAleer with a 41-40—81; Ralph Bogart, 44-38—82; Bill Wenzel, 39-43—82, and Volney Burnett, 41-41—82.

Parker Nolan and Bill Jones barely missed the title bracket, each needing 83 strokes over Hermitage's rugged par 73, which put them one shot outside the select 16. Otto Greiner, former Middle Atlantic amateur champion, and Nathan Kaufman, jr., both of Maryland, also failed to qualify when they shot 84's.

57 Schoolboy Golfers Play Today at Kenwood

East Potomac's Duo Match Halted by Rain

East Potomac's pro-manager duo of Cliff Spencer and Tommy Doerer, jr., was halted by rain at the seventh hole at Annapolis Roads yesterday in their exhibition with Bob Williams, Naval Academy golf instructor and host Pro Jack Pomeroy. They will play a return match later in the season.

ARGYLE

The Argyle Club members will carry the four-day Flag Tournament over the week-end, with the winners to be decided Sunday night.

CONGRESSIONAL

Dr. Rice, Pardoe Win At Washington Club

Advance to Club Championship Semi-Finals; Farrelly and Gott Are Columbia Victors; Woodside Wins Marmion Cup at Beaver Dam

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Dr. Edwin T. Rice and C. H. Pardoe advanced to the semifinal round in the Washington Golf and Country Club club championship yesterday, the latter with a pair of mild upset triumphs.

Pardoe defeated Lieut. H. T Webb, 2 and 1, in the first round and then scored over former Belle Haven titleholder, Turner T. Smith, by the same margin in the quarter-finals. Dr. Rice, who reached the semifinals in the club invitation tournament two years ago, ousted R. T. Harrell and A. G. Dezendorf in suecessive rounds.

Two other matches will be played today to decide the other semi-finalist, with Defending Champion Ralph S. Fowler against Charles Evans and Medalist James B. Powell against Dr. W. R. McLister. The semifinals will be played tomorrow and the 36-hole title round on Sunday.

H. T. Bisselle was low net scorer in yesterday's sweepstakes play with 77—17—60, while R. H. Hankes scored 82—16—66, but had to be content with a second-place tie. Three tied for third, Dr. O. P. Campbell, 81—14—67; F. A. Johnson, 83—16—67, and O. M. Reed, 84—17—67. Dr. C. N. Clay won low gross with a four over par 74.

Quarter-final results in the other flights:

SECOND FLIGHT

Jack Sheridan defeated P. W. Calfee, default; C. M. Reed defeated H. B. Willey, 6 and 5; J. R. Murphy defeated Donald E. Lee, 2 and 1; Lafayette Franklin, jr., defeated C. E. Blandini, 2 and 1.

THIRD FLIGHT

M. R. Palmer defeated F. A. Johnson, 2 and 1; R. B. Munson defeated Kenneth B. Hayes, 3 and 2; Dr. F. R. Shea defeated R. W. Westwood, 2 and 1; E. F. McIntire defeated D. B. Tuxhorn, 1 up.

FOURTH FLIGHT

Paul Campbell defeated Lafayette Franklin, sr., 2 and 1; Dr. W. A. Howard defeated Frank Gatewood, 2 and 1; George H. Bailey, jr., defeated Harry Lawson, 6 and 5.

COLUMBIA

Columbia's holiday best-ball tourney was won by E. J. Farrelly and E. C. Gott, jr., who posted a one-over par best ball 71 and deducted 11 handicap strokes for a net 60. Two teams tied for second, Chris Heurich, jr., and George F. Miller, with 69—8—61, and Earle Skinker and J. H. Flournoy, 70—9—61.

Francis J. Kane and Mark Langford took third place with 79—17—62, a stroke ahead of the other prize-winning team, Stanley Holland and Gale C. Morgan, 82—19—63.

BEAVER DAM

J. A. Woodside is the new Marmion Trophy champion at Beaver Dam, winning the annual 18-hole handicap competition with 79—12—67. J. Conroy was second with 89—19—70, and C. W. Griffin third, 89—18—71. The next two places were ties, Jack Palmer, 80—8—72; Howard Duckett, 90—18—72, and H. Hildebrand, 98—25—73 and William L. O'Brien, 85—12—73.

Eddie Bean and Forest Thompson turned in creditable 77's to tie for low gross.

MANOR

The only player to hand old man par a beating in the Manor Match Play Against Par tournament was T. N. Beavers who finished 1-up to top the field; A. L. Alderman and J. C. Putnam finished all square to split second place while W. J. Peters and S. E. Andrews were next, each 2-down. The driving contest was canceled.

Barbara Simons, the newly crowned Star Cup champion, played exactly to her handicap in winning the Ladies Flag tournament by finishing in the cup on the eighteenth hole.

Mrs. L. G. Pray was second, playing her final shot 3 inches from the cup with Marion Brown third, missing a tie when her final shot stopped a foot away. Miss Brown won the putting contest with 35 strokes, one less than the par of two putts per green, while Mrs. H. A. Neff, Mrs. H. J. Simons and Mrs. T. N. Beavers tied for second with 37 each and Mrs. L. G. Pray completed the prize winners with 38.

BELLE HAVEN

The Alexandria Club golfers competed in the biggest tournament card of the day. The feature afternoon mixed Scotch foursome went to Elsie Cole and James Hawkins, with 90-20, 70, four strokes ahead of the second-place team of Mrs. Edwin Pierce and Goodyear Blimp Commander Capt. Verner Smith, who scored 98-24, 74.

Stanley Teagle and Robert Blickley tied in the pitching contest with 35 points each, Teagle winning the playoff.

In the Belle Haven bowl qualifying, Club Champion Paul Lipps and Frank Wooley tied for medalist honors with four over par 76s, and also tied in the Flag Tournament. Ted Rutley, defending champion in the Bowl competition, qualified easily with a 78.

CAPITAL

District women's champion, Mrs. Leo Walper, and Capital Club amateur, Ken Spencer, won low gross in the mixed Scotch foursome tournament with the remarkably low score of 75, including a one-over par back nine of 36.

Low net went to Mrs. M. Sornear and W. E. Welch, 93-30, 63, with Mrs. H. G. Davies and John Phelan second with 86-18, 68, and Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Lindsay third, 86-17, 69.

M. B. Shaw and F. J. Hanrahan carried their flag tournament battle to the second extra hole with Shaw winning, planting his final shot 3 feet from the cup while Hanrahan played his final shot 6 feet from the hole. Troy Hardman was third, finishing 2 feet from the cup on the nineteenth hole. Ken Spencer and Frank White tied with 77's for low gross.

KENWOOD

J. H. Pumphrey made his strokes last until the twentieth hole to win the Kenwood Club flag tournament, his last shot being his drive down the second extra hole. J. C. Foulis was second, 3 feet from the cup on the nineteenth; A. H. Youngquist third, 15 feet from the pin and Emerson Ross fourth, 40 feet from the hole.

Winners who planted their flags down the nineteenth hole included, in order, E. S. Marlow, W. F. Delaney, Dallas Dort and C. M. Jinkins.

INDIAN SPRING

The only tie of the day in the flag tournaments was at Indian Spring, where Fred Biersdorf, with 85-13—72, and Sam Del Vecchio, 88-16—72, finished in the cup on the eighteenth. John DeFino finished 5 feet 4 inches from the cup to take third place.

WOODMONT

H. E. Strasser's final shot 6 inches from the pin on the nineteenth hole won the Woodmont flag tournament, with Sam Wheeler second, 1 foot from the hole on 18. Ellis Edlowitz finished 60 feet from the final green for third, while the gross prizes went to Cabot Feldman, 82, and Willard Goldheim, 84.

ARMY AND NAVY

The Service Club Flag tourney was canceled due to the inclement weather. The official summer tournament schedule opens Sunday.

VICTOR MOORE, popular Broadway star, recently compared the Seagram's Crowns of today with the Crown Whiskies of '34—both Seagram's 7 Crown and Seagram's 5 Crown—the very whiskies that became America's biggest sellers 90 days after Repeal. Said Mr. Moore, after the comparison was made: "I must admit your Crowns of '34 tasted mighty good to me—but the Crowns you are blending today are definitely smoother and milder.. much finer, in fact."

Indians Vanquish White Sox Twice by Same Score, 3 to 1

Lefthanders Dominate Both Games

Al Smith, Milner Turn in Triumphs For Clevelanders Before 18,162 Fans

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, May 30.—The Cleveland Indians made a twin killing against the Chicago White Sox today, taking both ends of a doubleheader by the same score—3 to 1.

Chicago scored its only tally of the first game on Mike Kreevich's circuit clout in the ninth inning. Hal Trosky, Tribe first baseman, got his eleventh homer of the season in the third inning of the nightcap.

Two pitchers named Smith—Ed of Chicago and Al of Cleveland—battled it out in the first contest, with the White Sox's hurler yielding seven hits to Al's six.

Two more left-handers worked in the second game, with Al Milnar holding the Sox to five hits and Thornton Lee shutting off the Tribe with six.

Cleveland scored in the opener on Rollie Hemsley's double and Ray Mack's single, and tallied two more runs on a walk and three singles. The Tribe uncorked four double plays.

The Indians opened the nightcap scoring with two runs on two walks and as many singles. Chicago's lone tally came on Rosenthal's double, scoring Luke Appling, who had walked.

Bees Divide Double Bill With Phillies

By the Associated Press

Boston, May 30.—Eddie Miller's grand-slam homer with one out in the eleventh inning of the nightcap gave the Bees a 5-1 victory and an even split of today's double-header with the Phillies. The visitors took the opener by that same margin behind the five-hit pitching of Kirby Higbe.

Miller's circuit smash over the leftfield wall, his fourth of the season, was made when Syl Johnson relieved Si Johnson. The latter had filled the bases by walking Maxie West, Tony Cuccinello and Al Lopez, before and after Chet Ross sacrificed.

Lefty Joe Sullivan went the distance for the Bees and they gave him his first run in the sixth, when Isaac Pearson, who started for the Phillies, passed Ross and then gave Cuccinello a two-bagger.

Conducted Mail Vote

"The date was so late in the season," Brundage said, "that it appeared unlikely that we would have our best talent entered. It has been agreed by the committee that the meet should be held only if Olympic standards of competition could be met. When it appeared this was not likely, the meet was called off."

Wilson said his 13-man committee had conducted a mail vote on the advisability of holding the event, and that there was "only a slight majority" in favor—not enough to go ahead with plans.

1940 Olympic Games originally were awarded to Japan, which yielded the big show because of its military activities in China.

The first Dodger run came in the fourth on two singles and a force out. They got another in the sixth on a single, a passed ball and a wild pitch and the tying run in the seventh on two singles and a fly.

This was the way they went into the tenth—three all. Two singles and a fly gave the Giants a run, but a single, an error and a single again tied the count for Brooklyn.

Izzy Jannazzo Aids Phil Furr In Training

Special Dispatch to The Post

Summit, N. J., May 30.—A classroom atmosphere prevailed at Phil Furr's training quarters in Mme. Bey's camp here today as Izzy Jannazzo, fifth ranking welterweight, conducted a lecture course on the subject of Furr's 12-round battle with Steve Mamakos, ranked tenth among the welters, Monday night in Washington, D. C.'s Griffith Stadium.

Furr, who came up from the Capital to get in shape for his "grudge" fight with Mamakos, worked six rounds this morning with Jannazzo, Tony Cisco and Frankie Cavanna under the watchful eye of his manager, Chris Dundee.

The Washington welterweight who's going to try to lift the mythical District middleweight championship from the brow of Mamakos Monday is going to be in the best shape of his lengthy career for his date with the tireless Greek puncher, Dundee insisted.

Furr broke camp yesterday for a jaunt to New York and a physical checkup. Dr. Alexander Schiff pronounced him in perfect shape. Furr underwent a brief workout in Stillman's gym and then returned to Mme. Bey's.

Georgie Abrams, Washington middleweight, and Furr's stablemate, will join Furr tomorrow. The Washington welter will conclude his rough work tomorrow and then taper off over the week-end with light drills.

Chicago Derby Team Beats Washington

Some of the wildest action of the current Roller Derby series resulted at Riverside Stadium last night as the Chicago Aztecs turned back the Washington Pawnees, 13-10, before a crowd of 2,600 spectators.

Last night's victory represented Chicago's fourth in ten Roller Derby games. Half mile speed trials for girls will be featured in conjunction with the continuation of the Roller Derby series at Riverside tonight at 8:15 o'clock.

Little Tavern Beats Briggs

Little Tavern trounced Briggs A. C., 14 to 3, on the Roosevelt diamond yesterday. Jack Emmams limited the losers to eight hits while striking out ten. Don Passero contributed a triple with two on in the second inning for the winners.

Tigers Take Doubleheader From Browns

Win First, 2 to 1, Then Bat Selves To 15-6 Triumph

By the Associated Press

Detroit, May 30.—The Detroit Tigers swept a double-header with the St. Louis Browns today, outslugging their foes to win the nightcap, 15 to 6, after taking the first game, 2 to 1. Lynwood Rowe allowed the Browns eight hits in the finale. Rudy York, of the Tigers, and Johnny Berardino, of the Browns, hit homers.

inning and tripled with one on off Relief Hurler Vance Page in the fourth. The kayo was the sixth in 10 starts this season for Lee. Paul Derringer minimized 10 Cub hits for his fifth win of the campaign. Bill Nicholson homered with one aboard for the Cubs' runs.

The Cubs spotted the Reds a 5-2 lead in the second game, then tied the count with three runs in the fifth. With Jim Gleeson doubling in two runs, the Cubs went ahead on a three-run burst in the seventh off Milburn Shoffner, only to see the Reds knock out Charley Root, Chicago starter, with three markers in the eighth.

Joe Beggs and Claude Passeau hooked up in a scoreless relief pitching duel until Ival Goodman walked to open the twelfth. McCormick forced Goodman but advanced on a single by Willard Hershberger and trotted home on Rizzo's safety.

Royal Business Wins Decoration Day 'Cap at Charles Town

12,000 See Choice Score By 3 Lengths

West Sea Second, Giggle Lee Third; Sammy Palumbo Rides Winner

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., May 30.—With the wind and the rain in her hair, Royal Business regained her rating at "queen of the smaller tracks" by winning today's $1,000 Decoration Day Handicap. Carrying the hopes of the favorite players and Jockey Sammy Palumbo, the 5-year-old daughter of Sun Meadow bounded to the finish line three lengths in front of Mrs. Cy Butler's West Sea. Third in the field of eight was G. G. Waugh, jr.'s Giggle Lee.

Charles Town was host today to one of the largest crowds in years. Upward of 12,000 fans crowded into this racing plant and a majority placed their hopes and their money on Royal Business. She did not throw them down. With Palumbo clucking to her, she went to the front and was running easy at the end of the mile and eighth contest.

Royal Business paid a $4.40 mutuel and was clocked in 1:55 1-5, three and a fifth seconds off the track record held by Easter Holiday. However, the winning mare handled her 118-pound assignment in good fashion.

Capstick Opens Lead

Palumbo broke Royal Business well, but immediately took her under wraps. Capstick and Dulie, among the several sprinters in the field, went out to vie for the lead. Capstick opened a length and a half of daylight on Dulie going by the stands the first time.

Royal Business was hard held until the field was on the backstretch. Capstick and Dulie were still battling it out in front when Palumbo gave Royal Business her head. The mare responded with a burst of speed that carried her into the lead she never was to lose. Capstick tried to keep up, but soon faded. Schley Buck then moved up only to fade.

From far back in the field, came West Sea. The gray gelding turned on some heat to gain but Royal Business had the situation well in hand and was fairly coasting at the end.

Double Pays $191

A select few in the big crowd took down a pay-off of $191 in the daily double when Autumn Echo and Vendor's Lien won the key races. Autumn Echo, beaten off on a muddy track last out, was a fast horse today and won with ease to pay an individual mutuel of $34.60.

Vendor's Lien, well handled by Jockey Danny West, took the lead early and held on gamely to defeat, among others, Margie Wrack and Salian. Vendor's Lien paid a $12 mutuel in his own right.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—AUTUMN ECHO, $34.60, $11.40, $6.00; AMERLEE, $4.80, $3.60; WHITTLE PETE, $5.60.

AUTUMN ECHO took command at once, withstood challenge of AMERLEE, opened clear lead and was running easily at close. AMERLEE was taken wide at first turn, moved up menacingly and held on gamely, but was no match for winner. WHITTLE PETE came up on inside entering stretch and tired gradually thereafter. STONE HAVEN closed gamely after a rough early trip. LYDE was hard ridden.

WEATHER, RAINING. TRACK, FAST.

THIRD RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:56½. Off 3:57. Winner, J. Waugh's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GROUCHER'S BOY, $5.20, $3.60, $2.80; FRANK H., $18.20, $7.00; JINNEAL, $4.40.

GROUCHER'S BOY, steadied along while well placed early, moved up to force FRANK H.'S pace, took command when latter bore out approaching stretch and closed gamely under strong handling. FRANK H. disposed of DEPINARD to get to front, ran wide into stretch and was bearing out in final three-eighths while under pressure. JINNEAL lacked early speed and came with bold rush through stretch. DEPINARD forced early pace and weakened gradually. KISSIN BUG held forward position for half and weakened. SIR ISAAC stumbled leaving gate.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 5:15½. Off 5:17½. Winner, O. S. Jennings' b. m. (5), by Sun Meadow—Pretty Business. Trained by C. Reilly. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $75; fourth, $50. Time, 1:55⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL BUSINESS, $4.40, $3.60, $3.00; WEST SEA, $18.00, $8.20; GIGGLE LEE, $8.00.

ROYAL BUSINESS, rated while close to pace, forged to front when asked on backstretch, drew clear gradually to open lead and was going easily at end. WEST SEA dropped back in opening furlong, responded when shaken up approaching stretch and closed full of run. GIGGLE LEE was forward factor from start and closed with good energy. BRUSH HOOK was slow to get under way and rallied mildly. DULIE was used up setting and pressing pace.

SIXTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:48½. Off 5:49. Winner, Mrs. H. Horst's b. m. (6), by Ariel—Pretty Mally. Trained by E. Brining. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:18⅕.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CONSISTENT, $7.20, $3.20, $2.80; DIN, $3.20, $2.80; KITTY'S RIVAL, $4.20.

CONSISTENT, within striking distance from start, came with bold rush when shaken up and was drawing away at end. DIN was keen forward factor after opening furlong, forced pace of KITTY'S RIVAL and held on gamely. KITTY'S RIVAL came up with rush to get to front, but weakened in final stages. BRAIN CHILD was messed about going to first turn and closed a gap.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 6:26½. Off 6:27½. Winner, Mrs. L. Seay's b. m. (8), by Sea Rip—Daisy Finnegan. Trained by M. Johnson. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:52.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SEA FINN, $4.60, $3.20, $2.40; HASTINGS VIEW, $10.80, $5.00; GOLDUN, $3.40.

SEA FINN, off alertly and steadied along to backstretch, was taken out for racing room, responded when placed to drive and wore down HASTINGS VIEW while under intermittent punishment. HASTINGS VIEW went to front boldly, continued gamely, but could not resist winner. GOLDUN, slow to begin, closed full of run. ABBOTT'S LARK was hustled to get to front and tired gradually. BELL THORN had early speed and tired.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 6:55. Off 6:56. Winner, Mrs. M. Reis' b. f. (4), by Sun Edwin—Brown Rose. Trained by W. L. Brock. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:51.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUNNY ROSE, $7.00, $4.40, $3.20; DOHOEV, $12.20, $5.20; COUNTER PASS, $2.80.

SUNNY ROSE took command immediately, was steadied while setting pace, drew out when urged and won with ease. DOHOEV was hard ridden while closest to pace after first quarter and was held safe. COUNTER PASS, sluggish in early running, was taken wide and put to drive in late stages to close full of run. BRIGHT LIGHT, forwardly placed from start, hung in final test.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

The 3-year-old filly, Miss Warning, seems to have the number of the four and a half furlong course here. She now has won three times over it and may be moved into handicap company next out. She was running for $1,050 yesterday. Just where the wedding of Jockey Willie Dufford and Maxine Machado will take place is not known. They had planned to stage it at the West End of the Shenandoah River Bridge, where the majority of the jockeys here make their homes. However, the word got out, and so they may try to dodge the crowd. Ralph Wilhelm and his wife will be best man and bridesmaid at the ceremony, believed to have been set for Saturday. Horsemen, as well as racing fans, were sorry to hear of the death at his Baltimore home of Sammy Stein. He is the fellow who used to give those long speeches aboard the race train and was universally known as "Steiny." He wasn't much on the English language, but he was a good fellow. He was part of the racing color hereabouts and we will miss him. His kind, who bellow their line and then try to sell their tips, are becoming fewer and fewer, but longshot Reilly continues to carry on. Art Brown had to stay home to pump the organ at the Capitol Theater, but he was not without representation. He sent Earl Merriman, of "Happy Birthday" fame to the track with his bankroll and a lot of bad tips. Sammy Palumbo continues to lead the jockeys hereabouts. He had 15 winners going into yesterday's program. Trout Stream has been taken out of training by F. C. Williams. Levene, the fast horse owned by H. R. Dulany, of Washington, is the eleventh foal of the mare Much Ado. Chief Evergreen goes again today and may he have a speedy journey. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—He Rolls stumbled all over the course last out and finished second. Appears best of this field. May Fern has plenty of speed and is dangerous. The Johnston entry of Clayhill and Delhi Dan should find a place in the money circle.

Second race—Lady Buck's last was far from her best. She was pinched off along the rail in the early running. Should have better racing luck today. Stubbs demonstrated ability last out and is the horse to beat. Never Home for the minor award.

Third race—Walli is the speed of this party, I do believe. Promises to do a lot of running if taken off the reverse list. Adhelmar will go well if the track is not too slow. Col. Hatfield and Can Bloom are possibilities.

Fourth race—Chief Hollis is in good shape now and will like this distance. Looks like the best bet of the day. Nanci's Best and Remolee to battle it out for second money.

Fifth race—Likely Lad showed plenty of foot on the big time and is likely to turn on the heat here. I'm going to string along. Lickety Split has worked well and can better that last. Intelligentsia had speed last year and is dangerous.

Sixth race—Schley Goree is dropping down and this looks like the spot for some serious running. I see no reason for mistakes. Sea Boy has been closing well and could be a surprise. Best Policy is in light and should go well.

Seventh race—This is the toughest race of the day. Seven of those named have won here. I'm going right back to the Bennings Stable's Chief Evergreen. He breaks off the rail and I know he will be in there knocking. Quill and Yankee Lad for the place and show. Wahcoo could awaken, but his last was miserable.

Eighth race—Millray finished full of run with his rider unable to get his feet in the stirrups. Better racing luck would do it for this one. Channing ran an improved race last out and is a threat. Ace of Trumps was a recent winner.

Substitute races—If No. 1 is used I'll take Dear Gracie, Dabs and Barraca.

11 From D. C. Plan to Attend A. I. B. Parley

Investment Bankers To Meet Week of June 3 in Boston

Eleven delegates from the Washington chapter will attend the annual convention of the American Institute of Banking in Boston during the week of June 3. They are:

Edward M. Blaiklock, chapter president, Washington Loan and Trust Co.; John M. Christie, first vice president of the chapter, Riggs National Bank; Kenneth Birgfeld, second vice president of the chapter, American Security and Trust Co.; Robert Christie, National Savings and Trust Co.; Fred Daum, Security Savings and Commercial Bank; G. Elmer Flather, Union Trust Co.; George A. Galleher, Lincoln National Bank; A. E. Henze, W. B. Hibbs & Co.; I. J. Robert, Riggs National Bank; George Rowzee, jr., Lincoln National Bank, and Walton L. Sanderson, Hamilton National Bank.

17 to Attend School

Meanwhile, it was announced yesterday that 17 Washington bank officers will leave in June for Rutgers University at New Brunswick, N. J., where they will attend the Graduate School of Banking, conducted by the American Bankers Association, to engage in advanced study of recent developments in banking. They are:

Paul J. Seltzer, of the American Security and Trust Co.; John Edward Monk and Francis E. Robey, of the Bank of Commerce & Savings; Samuel R. Carpenter, John Frederick English, John Edward Horbett and Frederic Solomon, of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve system; Kenneth O. Hulse, of the Hamilton National Bank; John M. Christie, Henry K. Dierkoph, Charles R. Fadeley, Corcoran Thom, jr., and Robert Van Order Mellefont, of the Riggs National Bank; Joseph R. Fitzpatrick, of the Second National Bank; Willard G. McGraw, Bernard L. Amiss and O. Schweinhaut, of the Washington Loan & Trust Co.

The work of the school covers a broad range of practical subjects in commercial banking, investments, economics, business law, trusts, savings and related fields. The faculty consists of university professors, practical bank operating officers and Government officials.

Holiday Cuts Auto Output

Automotive News in its weekly survey of production activity in the Nation's automobile plants places output for the current holiday-shortened week at 64,277 cars and trucks. Most of the motor plants were on a three-day schedule this week because of the Memorial Day shut-downs. Assemblies last week numbered 98,115. For the week last year they totaled 32,806.

U. S. Income Increases

American wages and other income were $1,147,000,000 higher in the first four months of 1940 than in the same period of 1939, the Commerce Department estimated yesterday. A department statement noted, however, that the rate of increase over last year had been declining since the first of the year. In January and February, for instance, income was about 6 per cent higher than in the same 1939 months, while March and April income was about 4 per cent higher than the corresponding months last year.

Safety Experts to Talk

Speakers at the three-day convention of the safety section of the Association of American Railroads will include two Washingtonians. They are C. H. Buford, vice president of the association's operations and maintenance department, and D. H. Beatty, superintendent of safety of the Southern Railway System. The sessions will open Tuesday in St. Paul, Minn.

Auto Sales Increase

A favorable picture of April business conditions in the Fifth Federal Reserve District, which includes the District of Columbia, was painted yesterday in the monthly report of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

April auto registrations exceeded the same month last year by 32 per cent and were the highest for any month in three years.

Department store sales were up 3 per cent over the previous April "even though the occurrence of Easter in April last year swelled sales of wearing apparel," the bank stated, reporting that business in the district—embracing Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, North and South Carolina, and most of West Virginia—"continued on a level of activity substantially above the level a year ago."

Construction permits were up 28 per cent, but contracts awarded declined 25 per cent.

Foreign Markets

London, May 30 (AP).—The stock market declined sharply today under impact of a doubly dealt blow, combining increased taxation and grave news from the Flanders battlefront.

All groups fell off sharply under the leadership of brewery, tobacco and store shares. The industrial section sagged when support was withdrawn, following the statement, Wednesday night, by the Chancellor of the Exchequer that the 100 per cent excess profits tax will apply to all trades and businesses from April 1 last, instead of only to undertakings principally engaged in war production, and which were controlled by the government.

Paris Bourse Listless

Paris, May 30 (AP).—The predominant factor in listless trading in the bourse today was the renewed expectations of active Italian hostilities.

Egyptian and Mediterranean stocks generally were weak. Unified Egyptians lost more than 5 per cent, which brought prices 30 per cent below the levies of May 9, at the time of the invasion of the Lowlands. Credit Foncier Egyptians lost 6 per cent and Ottoman Bank 6 per cent. Suez Canal was off 3 per cent.

Montreal Irregular

Montreal, May 30 (AP).—The stock market turned irregular in dull early trade today. Price changes were confined to fractions.

Winnipeg Wheat Dips

Winnipeg, May 30 (AP).—Small losses were recorded by wheat futures prices at the end of a dull session on Winnipeg grain exchange today. With offerings light and buyers hesitant, only minor transactions were required to cause price fluctuations and quotations closed ⅜-½ cent lower: May wheat at 74⅛; July, 75⅝, and October, 78 cents.

London—Bar silver, 21⅞d. off ⅛. (Equivalent 39.67 cents, based on the dollar at $4.03.) Bar gold, 168s, unchanged. (Equivalent $33.85.) Money, 1 per cent. Discount rates: Short bills, 1⅛ per cent; 3-month bills, 1⅛@1⅛.

Naval Stores

Savannah, May 30 (AP).—Turpentine firm, 27; offerings, 32, all sold; receipts, 119; shipments, 586; stock, 7,580. Rosin firm; offerings, 513, all sold; receipts, 781; shipments, 4,433; stock, 161,443. Anne Farrell, Who Designs Playthings For Children, Gives Stores Lowdown On What'll Be in Christmas Stockings

Miss Farrell is 26. She was born in a little town near Detroit, enjoyed mechanical toys more than dolls when she was a little girl and grew up to be a designer of wooden playthings children can dismantle and restore again, the kind she wanted so much when she was a child but which weren't on the market.

Today, as representative of a large manufacturing company, she is in Washington to give department store buyers a preview of what Santa will be toting in his bag next December.

"War toys?" Miss Farrell repeated the question. "No, I am not opposed to them. The child hears the war being discussed by his parents and on the radio. Under these circumstances it is anything but realistic to deny him war toys.

"See to it that they are correct in detail and, of course, safe to play with. Don't worry about the effect on the child's mind. A realistic approach encourages the development of an intelligent attitude about war or anything else."

Miss Farrell spent eight months in Sweden, leaving there last October, studying their toy designing and manufacturing methods and passing on some of her own tips. Previously, in preparation for her career, she studied child psychology at Columbia University, made it a point to watch youngsters at play (she still does) and sold toys over the counter.

She believes men can please children's tastes better than women when it comes to buying toys, and has little patience with people who give youngsters playthings that are too old or too young for them.

Washington is the first stop in a "goodwill trip," as she calls it, that will last six weeks and take Santa's assistant as far west as Kansas City.

6 D.C. Chain-Store Managers Named On '40 Honor Roll

Six Washington chain store managers have won places on the 1940 Roll of Honor of Community Builders, annual listing by the publication Chain Store Age. The roll cites those chain store managers throughout the country who take part in community affairs.

They are E. R. Burns, Sanitary Grocery Co., 332 Eastern avenue northeast, proposed by Mayor C. M. Mace of Seat Pleasant, Md., where Burns lives. George Geiger, Peoples Drug Co., for his activity in Northeast Businessmen's Association. Charles G. McCall, Sanitary Grocery Co., 1631 Kenilworth avenue northeast, for his activity in Kenilworth Citizens Association.

B. W. Seaton, Peoples Drug Co., Fourteenth street and Park road northwest, active in the Red Cross Roll Call and the Metropolitan Police Boys Club. Henry W. Stoehr, Sanitary Grocery Co., 3317 Connecticut avenue northwest, indorsed by Washington I. Cleveland, president of the Greater Kensington Civic League, Kensington, Md. W. F. Strong, Sanitary Grocery Co., 4853 Massachusetts avenue northwest, active in the American University Park Citizens Association.

Housing Bill's Opponents Cool To Compromise

Administration proposals for compromise on the projected housing bill drew little enthusiasm yesterday from opposition Democrats and Republicans at a meeting of the House Banking and Currency Committee.

Upshot of the committee session appeared to be that members were "as far apart as ever" in the ong drawn out fight to extend the loan authorization of the United States Housing Authority. Chances for passage of a housing bill at this session of Congress are, accordingly, steadily growing slimmer.

Chairman Stegall of the committee yesterday offered the compromise proposals, which include lowering of the original request for $800,000,000 of additional lending authority, reducing the interest rate of USHA oans to localities, and demanding increased local contributions.

The Administration is also willing to lower from 60 to 45 years the period over which Federal subsidies would be paid to communities to help support housing projects.

30 Hawaiian Ships To Join U. S. Fleet

Honolulu, May 30 (AP).—An order incorporating the Hawaiian detachment of approximately 30 warships into the United States Fleet was issued today. It was interpreted immediately in Navy circles as indicating the fleet would not return to California bases in the near future.

The Hawaiian detachment had operated as a unit.

The Hawaiian detachment arrived last October and has been under command of Admiral Adolphus Andrews, who will resume his normal post as commander of the scouting force.

Mrs. Mary F. Craig Dies at Her Home; Active in Church

Mrs. Mary Fields Craig, for many years an active church woman and patriotic organization leader, died yesterday at her home, 21 Seventh street southeast, after an illness of several months.

She was the mother of Mrs. B. Franklin Marsh, superintendent of the Children's Health Camp at Bald Eagle, and the late Donald A. Craig, sr., Washington newspaperman.

Mrs. Craig and her husband, the late William Franklin Craig, were active workers in the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church and Mrs. Craig was prominent in the Marcia Burns Chapter, District of Columbia Daughters of the American Revolution. She was a native of McKeesport, Pa.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Marsh; two grandchildren, Mrs. Albert A. Clagett and Don Craig, and three sisters, Miss Margaret B. Fields and Mrs. William H. Lester, all of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Saturday at 21 Seventh street southeast, with burial in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Son Decorates Father's Grave; Gets Jail Term

By the Associated Press

Uniontown, Pa., May 30.—Charles Bryner, 52, was sentenced to 28 days in jail today because he decorated the grave of his father, a Civil War veteran.

Bryner and a cousin, who was fined $25, were charged with trespassing on a State Game Preserve in Dunbar Township in which Bryner's father was buried several years ago. The Bryners once owned the tract.

"We go to the grave every year," Bryner said in his jail cell. "Nobody ever bothered us before. I don't understand yet what it's all about."

Listen!
with Slocum

One of radio's inexplicable mysteries is a gentleman named Al Pearce, who always manages to work and do the little job his sponsors require. He most certainly would not work if he couldn't satisfy his sponsors and he most certainly couldn't satisfy his sponsors if he couldn't make his listeners happy. Therefore, it is safe to assume that Al is quite an entertainer.

It has come to be an accepted fact that any entertainer who doesn't have the good luck to be born backstage and to live in a theatrical trunk for most of his formative youth is not worth a plugged nickel. With that legend in mind, it is nice to know that Al Pearce is one of the very first milk wagon pilots to make good as an entertainer.

Before Al got to playing around on West Coast sustainers, and while he was playing around for that matter, he earned his coffee and cakes driving a milk wagon.

Al is obviously a born showman. Tonight, for instance, he is doing a parody on a picture entitled "Young Tom Edison." That in itself does not sound very intriguing, but the prospect of Al's latest stooge, Mr. Kitzel, acting as director is quite interesting. Mr. Kitzel is the gentleman who has so much trouble with life and his "woubleyous" and whom I feel is very, very funny, a feeling not unanimously shared by my friends.

Another of radio's better showmen is in action this evening. He is Ted Collins, the guiding genius behind the Kate Smith programs. Ted has lined up Walter Huston, who will do a play based on the legends of Davy Crockett, the Indian fighter who was killed at the Alamo. Abbott and Costello, the Smith show's comedy team, will be on hand, too. There are a couple of gents who are very popular these days because they are very funny. The fact that they are funny can be traced directly to Mr. Collins, because before he began moulding them, their following could hardly be called legion.

Orphans in Love

Marion White

Ellen Carlan has loved Peter Storm since both were children. They take refuge from a storm in the deserted old Tucker mansion and note the resemblance of Peter to Jonathan Tucker. As the result of a fire, Peter is a hero and the papers connect him with the Tucker house. John Abbott and his wife, who manage the Tucker estate, fear their deception 25 years ago when they abandoned the only heir at the orphanage, will be discovered. Abbott offers Peter a job in his firm. Ellen is hurt when Peter says Millicent Abbott is beautiful, and Mother Rosa at the orphanage helps by sending Ellen to Rosalind, a famous designer who hires her as a model. Peter takes Ellen dinner-dancing but her happiness is ended when Millicent monopolizes Peter. The Abbotts decide Peter and Millicent would be a good match. Ellen models a bridal gown at Rosalind's fall show, which Roger Maillard attends with his sister. The handsome millionaire sportsman falls in love with Ellen but she declines his invitations.

Chapter 25

"WAITING for me?" Her face brightened, hopefully. Perhaps Peter—"Did he say who it was?" she asked eagerly.

"No. But you know him. The one who was at the wedding show with Miss Maillard."

She frowned. "Yes, Robert. Will you—"

She did not finish. There was a sudden shrill scream back in the workroom, the sound of a crashing fall.

Dark Stain

Only Mamie was alive, alive with a dreadful hysteria. "I couldn't help it!" she shrieked. "I couldn't help it! Hones' to Gawd. I couldn't." She stood there, wringing her hands and trembling from head to foot.

Not for one instant did she underestimate the havoc she had wrought.

Lends Comfort

Ellen was at her side, trying to lend a comfort she could not feel herself. "Of course you couldn't help it, Mamie. It was an accident. Don't cry so, dear. We'll fix it somehow."

"You can't fix it. You can't fix it now. It's ink, don't you see? I was all ready to go home, and then I saw the ink on the side table, and it belongs in the office. I musta tripped. I don't know. It was dark. But you can't fix it. You can't take ink out of white velvet . . . "

"We'll do something. Mamie. We'll have to!" Ellen's thoughts whirled in a confusion of futility and uncertainty. What could she do? What could she do?

Then someone else was there. She caught sight of the tall, blonde figure peering over Robert's shoulder

She heard him asking "What's all the trouble in here?" And then he was in the workshop with them, looking down at the bedraggled bridal dummy, and not understanding at all.

Roger Maillard laughed. Not unkindly, nor disparagingly, but rather in a good-natured sort of condescension, as one might laugh at some childish folly.

"But it's only a dress, young lady. I thought someone was murdered . . . My good Lord, you mustn't take on so over a dress!"

Raises Eyes

Ellen raised horrified eyes. "You don't understand, Mr. Maillard. It's Iris Van Dorne's wedding dress. For tomorrow."

Still he smiled. "Iris Van Dorne's, eh? Well, what of it? • Let her wear something else. The professor'll never know the difference."

It was 6:30. Roger Maillard and Ellen were alone in the dark workshop. Between them, they had quieted Mamie—Ellen with the firm assurance that she would fix the dress like new, so that not even Rosalind would ever know what had happened; Roger with a $10 bill and the promise that he'd find her another job if the worst came to pass.

Robert had gone home, leaving his keys with Ellen, because there was nothing at all that he could do.

And now Ellen was face to face with the most exacting task of her life, and she didn't know where to begin. The ink was dry now, dry and stiff on the snowy velvet, but the damage was complete.

Spotted Dress

The entire back of the dress was spotted, from the slim, gored hipline right down to the long, sweeping train. One sleeve was blackened to the elbow. Iris Van Dorne could never wear it to the altar tomorrow morning.

"I don't see why you're so worried," Roger Maillard said. "It wasn't your fault."

"No. But I'm here, and I'm going to make repairs. I'm not quite sure how, but I'm going to. I can't call Rosalind back. She's exhausted as it is."

For some strange reason she did not resent his presence. The accident, in a peculiar way, had broken down all barriers of formality and reserve between them: she did not even protest when he insisted on remaining with her.

There was altogether too tremendous a task before her to waste time protesting with determined young men. Besides, he had been very kind to poor, frightened little Mamie.

"Then come to dinner with me first," he pleaded.

"I'd like to, Mr. Maillard——"

"My name is Roger. People who sit side by side on the same workbench as we're doing now dispense with formalities. Will you come?"

"I can't truly. I'll need every hour."

"You'll need your dinner too. I suppose I might offer to go out and bring something in, but it will do you good to get away for an hour.

Likes Him

He didn't try to persuade her against tackling the problem, and she liked him for that. He couldn't understand why this dress was so tremendously important a matter, but at least he didn't belittle its importance to her.

And he was right about dinner. At this moment she was so tired and nervous that she couldn't have held a needle in her hand. If she went out for just one hour.

"If we don't go too far away," she said to him. "Would you go to Schrafft's? It's just down the street."

No One Looked

Everybody in the place could look at them, but nobody did, and he liked that. It was very quiet and restful and informal.

Ellen finished her soup, leaned back against the wall and closed her eyes.

"I'm not tired at all now," she told him. "I know exactly what I'm going to do, and I'm not even afraid. I'm really a little excited. . . ."

"What are you going to do?"

"Why?"

She smiled. "I don't suppose I could explain—to you."

Injured Tone

"Why not?" he demanded in an injured tone. "What's wrong with me?"

"I don't think you could understand. You've probably never wanted to do something very badly—"

"I've wanted to take you to dinner for over a month.'

"That's silly. I mean something serious. Something to achieve." She spoke the word with force, emphasizing it with a fierce earnestness.

To Be Continued.

Federal Editor To Join Chicago Publishing Firm

J. Morris Jones, script editor for the radio division of the United States Office of Education, will resign Saturday to become editorial chief of the Quarrie Corporation, Chicago, publishers of the World Encyclopaedia and Child Craft, it was announced yesterday.

The radio division of the Office of Education is to be discontinued June 30 for lack of Congressional appropriation. Since last July Jones has edited scripts for its educational programs. He came to the office to write a booklet on "Americans All—Immigrants All" to supplement the prize-winning radio programs of the same name. Previously Jones was 15 years an editor for textbook publishers and also served as editor of "The School Executive" eight years.

Last Rites Today For Lieut. Turner

Memorial services will be conducted at the Langley Field Post Chapel at 11 a. m. today for Second Lieut. Sullins P. Turner, who was killed Wednesday in an airplane collision near Langley Field.

Turner, 25, of Atlanta, Ga., was flying in formation when his pursuit plane struck the propeller of a second ship. He went into a spin and crashed while the pilot of the second plane continued safely to Langley Field.

Turner was a son of Prof. and Mrs. E. K. Turner, of Emory University at Atlanta. He was a graduate of the Army's Advanced Flying School at Kelly Field.

In Honor of the Tulip's Crew

The Navy announced yesterday that a memorial to the crew of the U. S. S. Tulip, which went down with all hands in the Potomac in 1864, will be erected at St. Inigoes Bay, Md. Authorized by a recent act of Congress, the memorial will be dedicated sometime in July, officials said. A contract for setting up a 6-foot granite shaft and landscaped approach was recently let by the Navy Department. An artist's drawing is shown. The Tulip was a steam tug operating with the Potomac Flotilla in the Civil War. It blew up November 11, 1864, when en route from St. Indigoes to the Washington Navy Yard

Colossal Christy Painting Puts Capitol Architect in Quandary

By Gerald G. Gross

Post Staff Writer

So you can't make up your mind where to hang that 2x4 still life, eh?

Well, consider the plight of David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, who has an extra colossal painting in his rotunda, only it can't stay there long and he doesn't know where to put it.

While Howard Chandler Christy, creator of "The Signing of the Constitution," was nonchalantly appeasing authograph collectors in the Capitol yesterday, Lynn was down in his office adding gray hairs from wondering where to install "T.S.o.t.C."

"If you want a statement," said the genial architect, "better see Speaker Bankhead. He is the chairman of the commission."

The three-man commission in question was formed by Congress last year to "employ an artist to paint upon canvas, approximately 20 feet by 30 feet in size, at a price not exceeding $30,000, a painting of the signing of the Constitution."

He's Got to Worry

Serving with Bankhead are Vice President Garner and Architect Lynn. Although the Speaker is chairman and mouthpiece, it's up to Lynn, as majordomo of the Capitol, to do the worrying over the permanent location for the $31,000 oil. (Thirty thousand for Christy and $1,000 to pay expenses of the unveiling exercises held in the rotunda Wednesday).

Said Speaker Bankhead:

Because of its size—two stories tall and three stories wide—Christy's interpretation of the signing of the Constitution has only four possible niches in the Capitol—and the law says it must be installed in the Capitol. But all four of these spots are already occupied.

It can supplant "Westward the Course of Empire Takes Its Way," which decorates the west stairwall on the House side, if they don't mind destroying the older painting, by Emanuel Leutze, which is a fresco executed on wet plaster and can't be transplanted.

Almost as prohibitive is the prospect of giving the new picture the place now held by "The Battle of Lake Erie," by William H. Powell, on the east stairway of the Senate wing. This masterpiece just fits the wall space snugly and if it were taken down there would be no other place in the building to exhibit it, officials say.

Worked Eight Months

It seems, then, from what could be gathered yesterday, that either "The Battle of Chapultepec" or "Reading of the Emancipation Proclamation by Abraham Lincoln" will have to come down to make way for the $30,000 masterpiece.

They are the likeliest eligibles because neither fully covers its wall space. The battle picture, by James Walker, is in the Senate wing, west staircase. The other, by Francis B. Carpenter, is in the House wing, east staircase.

Christy, his hand tired from signing autograph books—"I must have signed 2,500 in the last 24 hours"—told yesterday how he spent eight months working on the huge canvas in the Washington Navy Yard's sail loft.

"With research and all, though, four years' effort went into it," he declared.

Examining the painting, you'll notice that two of the 40 faces are totally obscured. That wasn't accidental. Christy didn't know what Pierce Butler, of South Carolina, and David Brearley, of New Jersey, looked like. So he had the former's countenance hidden by Charles Pinckney's (South Carolina) uplifted arm and painted only the top of Brearley's head.

"We have our tricks," he chuckled.

Wife, Mother Of West Point Men Dies Here

Mrs. E. J. Timberlake's Husband, 4 Sons All Graduates of U. S. M. A.

A woman whose husband and four sons were all graduates of the United States Military Academy at West Point died late yesterday afternoon at Walter Reed Hospital.

Mrs. Augusta Wrenne Timberlake, 63, a native of Nashville, Tenn., was the wife of Col. Edward J. Timberlake, U. S. A., retired. The Timberlakes, who had been living in St. Petersburg, Fla., came to Washington three weeks ago so Mrs. Timberlake could enter Walter Reed Hospital for treatment.

One of the sons is Maj. Patrick Weston Timberlake, U. S. M. A., class of 1923, who is stationed in the office of the Chief of the Air Corps here. Two other sons are living: Maj. Edward Wrenne Timberlake, U. S. M. A., class of 1917, is a R. O. T. C. instructor at the University of Illinois; Lieut. Edward J. Timberlake, jr., U. S. M. A., 1931, is stationed with the Air Corps at Kelly Field, Tex.

Another son, the late Lieut. Joseph Coleman Timberlake, was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1927 and served with the Coast Artillery. Col. Timberlake himself was graduated from West Point in 1893.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 a. m. tomorrow in the Walter Reed Memorial Chapel.

Father Flemming, Head of St. Joseph' Institute, Dies

The Rev. Austin Flemming, 68, Australian-born head of St. Joseph's Normal Institute in Ammendale, Md., died early yesterday at the school after 25 years of service in the Archdiocese of Baltimore and Washington.

Father Flemming was formerly connected with St. Martin's and St. Ann's in Washington and taught for two years at Chicago.

St. Joseph's, which he helped develop to its present position, is a training school for Christian Brothers, teachers of boys and young men in Catholic schools.

Burial Tomorrow For Mrs. Staley

Funeral services for Mrs. Gertrude Kessler Staley, 56, of 1750 Sixteenth street northwest, will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow at St. Paul's Catholic Church, with burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Because she apparently died Sunday night while writing a letter to her son, but was not found until Monday, Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald ordered an autopsy. The cause of death was determined to be cerebral hemorrhage.

She leaves her husband, Lieut. Col. Joseph J. Staley, Marine Corps, retired; a son, Lieut. J. J. Staley, U. S. N.; a daughter, Margaret Staley, and her mother, Mrs. Mary Kessler, Columbus, Ohio.

Man Asks $450 for 'Anguish' Suffered in District Jail

William Stroy, 45-year-old colored laborer who charges he was kept in jail two days because officials would not accept his $10 fine, filed suit for $453.80 in the Municipal Court yesterday.

Attorney Frederick R. Wilson filed the complaint in which Stroy said he was fined $10 in the Police Court for drunkenness Saturday, May 18. Stroy was unable to pay and was jailed, but, he said, when his friends got the money at 2 p. m., nobody at the Police Court, the jail or the police precinct station would collect the fine.

Because he was not released until Monday, the complaint said, he missed a day's work, for which he asked his wages of $3.80. He also asked $450 for mental anguish he claimed he suffered through being unlawfully held.

Named defendants were Capt. Thomas M. Rives, superintendent of the District Jail; Ray L. Huff, superintendent of District penal institutions, and Chief Clerk Walter F. Bramhall of the Police Court.

Attorney Wilson asserted that until a few months ago fines were payable at the jail. Chief Clerk Bramhall, however, said the practice had been abandoned many years ago and that fines were payable only in the court.

Wreaths Placed On Takoma Park Pioneers' Graves

The memorial committee of the Takoma Park (Md.-D. C.) Citizens Association made its annual pilgrimage to the graves of pioneer families of Takoma Park.

It placed wreaths on the graves of Benjamin F. Gilbert, founder of Takoma Park, Md., and its first ayor; Mrs. Gilbert and Wilmer Platt, one of the town's first mayor, at Cedar Hill Cemetery. They also decorated the graves of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Lemond, pioneers and charter members of the association, at Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Hooker, Mrs. Mary Lamond White and L. R. Grabill made up the committee.
